The Redskins played super football yesterday to upset the mighty Chicago Bears, 21-7, outwitting as well as outplaying them before 35,672 delighted fans in Griffith Stadium.

Lowly subs responded with peak performances, the Statue of Liberty play worked for a touchdown and the line hung another murderous beating on the Bears' forward wall as the Redskins clicked as a unit to give the Chicagoans their worst beating since they rose to the ranks of the alleged miracle men of pro football.

Sammy Baugh, limping in and out as a spot performer, handicapped by a "football knee," threw terror into the heart of the Bears. In his five minutes of playing time he threw a made-to-order touchdown pass to Andy Farkas for the second touchdown after his mere presence in the game scattered the Bears and allowed Wilbur Moore to scoot unmolested to a score on the Statue of Liberty in the first period.

Cafego Outstanding

George Cafego, with eight days under Coach Dutch Bergman, directed the team as if he had spent his life with the Redskins. Cafego numbered a touchdown pass too to Alex Piasecky among his accomplishments and overcame a 4-yard punt to average better than 40 yards for the day.

The Redskins positively insulted the great Bear team which had not been beaten in league games since early November of 1941. The Bears handled the ball on just one play, and fumbled, before Moore scored midway in the first period. The Bears were out of their own territory only once before Baugh pitched a pass in the second and the third period was all Redskin as the new scoring combine of Cafego and Piasecky added a third touchdown. Bob Masterson accountd for all three extra points.

Just one week after smashing the two most coveted passing records in the books Sid Luckman had a horrible time of it. A brilliant bit of sideline running by Ray McLean in the opening seconds of the fourth period saved Luckman and the Bears from a shutout as the St. Anselm flash took a short pass from the embarrassed Luckman and on speed and deception raced 58 yards to a touchdown.

The Bears were in Redskin territory only three times, excluding the touchdown play. Luckman engineered the T attack to the 27-yard line late in the second period and twice in the fourth period the Bears crossed the midfield stripe, but were stopped short. Their yardage total for the day was 234, a mere 89 yards rushing.

Smith, Aguirre Big Stars

As in the December championship game of last year the Redskin line pushed the heavier and supposedly tougher Bear forwards all over the park. Center George Smith and End Joe Aguirre played scintillating brands of ball for the full 60 minutes, Smith intercepting two Luckman passes in his day's work.

Willie Wilkin hobbled in and out but found Joe Pasqua an adequate substitute. Bob Masterson proudly watched Rookie Piasecky perform admirably and Clyde Shugart was a demon in replacing Dick Farman.

Pressure on Three Fronts

'Hold-the-Line' Program Totters; Bowles Warns of 7% Food Cost Rise

Congressional Revolt Threatens to Doom Subsidies This Week

By the Associated Press

Caught in a storm of congressional rebellion, the Administration's program to hold down the cost of living faces its worst buffeting of the session in the House this week, with this triple assault against the White House home-front strategy:

1. Within 24 hours a House coalition of Democrats and Republicans is expected to swat the consumer subsidy program, No. 1 weapon in the Administration's fight against higher food prices.

2. Before midweek the House will take up a $2,140,000,000 revenue bill which snubs the Treasury's demand for $10,500,000,000 in new taxes to fight the war and inflation.

3. Gaining strength is a congressional move to take control of oil and coal prices away from the Office of Price Administration which has resisted stubbornly several attempts to boost the crude oil ceiling. Sponsors said they had 209 of the necessary 218 names on a petition to get the bill out of committee and said they would get the rest today. The measure would give control to Interior Secretary Ickes, who has approved a coal mine wage boost and recommended an oil price increase.

Vote Probable Toda.

The House probably will reach a vote sometime today on a doubleedge bill to outlaw consumer subsidies while putting new life into the Commodity Credit Corporation, which has finance many of the subsidies. Opposition from both parties in two days of debate showed the subsidy program was marked for defeat.

The Government has used subsidies to pay growers support prices for their products without letting the retail prices go up. Subsidy foes would let the farmers get their full cash return from higher market prices—viewed by the Administration as the first step toward uncontrolled inflation.

The fight against inflation was behind the Treasury's request for $10,500,000,000 in new taxes, too, but the Ways and Means Committee's bill only reached a fraction of that amount. An accompanying report said less Government spending would be a better weapon against inflation.

New Food Setup Demanded

New demands arose in the House for a one-man food administration which would give one executive full power over food production and the prices under which it goes to market. The plan—backed up by the House Agriculture Committee—would strip the OPA of most of its present powers, so far as the average family is concerned.

The battle against subsidies is the main bout, so far as Administration leaders are concerned. Privately, they concede the opponents have the power to outlaw the program. They pin their chief hope on an attempt to hold enough members in line to sustain an anticipated presidential veto of the subsidy ban.

OPA Chief Says Subsidy Dam Break Will Loose Ruinous Price Maelstrom

Abandonment of the Administration's subsidy program on December 31, now virtually assured through congressional action, will result in a 7 per cent increase in the household cost of food immediately, and destroy practically all barriers to much higher prices in the months to come, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles warned yesterday.

In a letter to House Majority Leader John W. McCormack, Bowles said the discard of subsidies will subject the Government to such pressure for higher prices from all types of business that it will become impossible to establish a second price line and resultant inflation can go to almost any heights.

Bowles predicted the following immediate increases in retail food prices per pound:

Round steak, 5.2 cents; rib roast, 4.6; chuck roast, 3.5; hamburger steak, 3.8; veal cutlet, 6; pork chops, 4.6; sliced bacon, 5.2; sliced ham, 6.5; whole ham, 4.5; salt pork, 2.5; leg of lamb, 1.7; lamb rib chops, 3.2, and other meats, 2 to 6 cents.

He said that the price of butter would rise 9.9 cents a pound, milk a cent a quart and cheese 7.8 cents a pound. Canned vegetables, No. 2 can, he expects to increase 1.4 cents, dried prunes 3.2 cents a pound and sugar and dry edible beans a cent a pound.

As soon as the food producer begins to receive these increased prices, other businesses will demand increases, and the OPA will be unable to withstand the pressure, he said. The resulting price spirals will compel modification of the "Little Steel" formula, under

Congressman Ditter Dies In Air Crash

Columbia, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP).—Congressman J. William Ditter (Republican) of Pennsylvania and Lieut. Comdr. J. J. Manshure, executive officer of the Willow Grove Naval Air Station, were killed tonight when their plane crashed near here, the Fourth Naval District announced.

The Navy said the single-engine plane circled several times preparing to land, before it crashed. The plane was en route to Willow Grove from Squantum, Mass., where it took off earlier today. Ditter's home is at Ambler, Pa., in Montgomery County, near Philadelphia.

The plane was approximately 80 miles from its destination, the Navy said, when it crashed in a hilly, wooded section of Lancaster County, 3 miles from the Susquehanna River.

Residents of Columbia and the nearby community of Kinderhook said the craft flew low, dropping flares as though seeking a landing place. One man said he heard the motor spluttering.

The Navy was unable immediately to explain Ditter's presence on the plane, but members of Congree frequently travel in military planes on Government business. Ditter was a member of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

The 50-year-old Republican had represented the 17th Pennsylvania District since 1932. He was a law graduate of Temple University, and long had been known for his sharp tongue in criticism of legislation which he opposed. A leading member of the Republican congressional delegation, he was chosen for the party's National Congressional Committee which planned Nation-wide campaigns for Republicans in Congress.

A heavy rain was falling at the time of the crash. Arthur E. Schaffer of Columbia R. D. 1 said he saw the craft circle the Kinderhook Church. "The motor started to sputter and the pilot seemed to open the throttle wide, making the plane zoom 100 feet into the air.

"A few moments later I saw it crash. There was a tearing sound as the wings ripped off against some trees. Then it caught fire.

Wagner Says Vinson Should Grant Rail Rise

By the Associated Press

Senator Wagner (Democrat) of New York, long an Administration spokesman for labor in Congress, proposed yesterday that Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson back down on his refusal of an 8-cents-an-hour rail wage increase and thereby avoid a congressional vote on the issue.

Worried lest the prospective indorsement by Congress of this increase for the railways' nonoperating employes open the door to other demands of the same nature, Wagner said he believed Vinson ought to acknowledge a mistake had been made and permit the contract agreed upon August 7, between 15 unions and the carriers to go into effect.

Vinson set aside the contract and told Congress recently that if it approves a resolution offered by Senator Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, it would break the little steel wage formula and the executive department would be compelled to abandon it.

The Truman resolution, to be considered in committee soon, would approve the flat rate increase as falling within the scope of thre Railway Labor Act and all other statutes. Vinson has approved an alternate proposal for graduated increases of 4 to 10 cents an hour but the rail workers rejected this and began a strike vote.

Senator Ball (Republican) of Minnesota said it was his feeling that the stabilization director ought not to attempt to upset the findings of a statutory board such as that which operated in the rail wage case.

Truman has been pushing for action before Thanksgiving, but Administration lieutenants are expected to attempt to delay a committee vote on the resolution for a week. In the meantime, they have hopes of some sort of compromise.

"I have no fear that other nations will not join our own in such a union," he said. "Though it start with but a few, the demonherence to those who at first abstain."

Byrd Committee Again Insists U. S. Drop 300,000 Employes

By Jerry Kluttz

The Byrd Economy Committee today will give Uncle Sam specific and detailed information on how he can reduce Federal personnel by 300,000 employes in a report that demands greater utilization of Federal workers, a more uniform and equitable promotion policy, and that the War and Navy Departments stop using able-bodied young enlisted and officer personnel to replace civilians. The report was released yesterday.

The committee took pleasure in reporting, however, that a reduction of 131,058 full-time civilian workers had been made since last spring when the committee called for a reduction in Government. Nevertheless, it charged that some agencies had disregarded its recommendations and it warned that should this report also be ignored the committee would seek legislation making cuts mandatory.

Too bring about a slash of 300,000 workers, the committee specified that:

1. The War Department cut off 150,000 clerical employes. The committee said the department had 457,764 clerical workers, or one clerical employe for every two workers in mechanical, technical and professional work. The Navy, it said, has one clerical worker for every five in other categories. The committee believes the difference between them is "too great" and that war must reduce the ratio to one clerk for every three employes of other types.

2. Between 100,000 and 200,000 additional employes could be eliminated by reducing red tape, duplication and idle workers. It called for the merger of all banking activities within the Agriculture Department: that two million dollars would be saved if Office of Defense Transportation was merged with Interstate Commerce Commission; that Office of Price Administration and Federal Trade should be consolidated; it called attention to the fact that there are seven agencies beside the Labor Department dealing with labor problems; that 22 agencies have jurisdiction over the fishing industry, and 134 bureaus were spending money on research, but it made no recommendation how these problems can be dealt with.

3. Government mail be sharply reduced. The overloading of the postoffice with nonessential "penalty" mail had to some extent

Reds Repel Nazis' Vast Tank Drives

Hold Kiev Bulge In 3 Attacks by Whole Divisions of Mechanized Might GERMANS throw more forces into Yugoslavia, but Tito's headquarters claims they are held on all fronts. Page 3.

Waist-Deep in Mud

London (Monday), Nov. 22 (AP).—The Red army withstood the mechanized might of massive German attacks against the vital Kiev bulge in bloody fighting in the northern Ukraine yesterday, and broadened two prongs of the Soviet wedge aimed at the iron wealth of Krivoi Rog and the manganese of Nikopol, Moscow announced early today.

In battles extending all the way from Rechitsa, west of almost-encircled Gomel, to the area southwest of Dnepropetrovsk, the Russians killed 6100 Germans and destroyed or disabled 121 Nazi tanks, it was stated in the Soviet midnight communique recorded here by the Soviet monitor from a broadcast.

Listing three violent German tank onslaughts against Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's first Ukrainian army in the Zhitomir-Korostyshev battlefield, the war bulletin said the Russians weathered these blows and forced the Germans to retreat. In another sector of the region Soviet troops were said to have killed over 1000 Germans.

Divisions of Tanks

Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, said in a dispatch that the Germans were hurling a large part of their strategic reserves into the Kiev bulge battle, and were employing tanks in groups as large as several hundred or in full divisions, supported by swarms of self-propelled 88-millimeter guns. He said Soviet dispatches frankly labeled the situation serious.

While the German communique yesterday cautiously announced that the Nazis were making "further headway in the face of stubborn enemy resistance," the German news agency DNB in a broadcast dispatch claimed Field Marshal Gen. Fritz von Mannstein's forces had driven back, in a 48-hour period, to within 40 miles of Kiev, or halfway from Zhitomir to Kiev.

The German force in the region was estimated to include 150,000 men.

Lyubimovka Taken

In their drive on a 90-mile front in the Dnieper bend, the Russians killed 3000 Germans south of Kremenchug, the Soviet communique said. In this advance toward Krivoi rog, Red army soldiers also knocked out 60 tanks, 10 self-propelled guns, 50 field guns and several armored troop carriers.

Russian forces also were declared to have captured Lyubimovka, 10 miles south of Dnepropetrovsk on the east bank of the Dnieper. All told, the Germans lost some 4500

Allies Seize 4 Key Points On Italian Line

Taking Up Slack

By Edward Kennedy

Algiers, Nov. 21 (AP).—In sharp fighting Allied armies have captured four key points along the Italian front—Agnone, Archi, Castel San Vincenzo and Rocchetta—straightening out their line and shortening it by some 20 miles, Allied headquarters announced today.

In capturing Agnone, Eighth Army veterans of General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery ironed out an 8-mile-deep German salient, which extended from Carovilli to Salcito in the central sector and which had prevented the Allies from using all of the lateral highway running from Vasto on the Adriatic to Isernia in the mountains.

Clark's Force Moves Up

Overrunning Agnone without meeting opposition, the Eighth Army plunged on beyond.

Near the Adriatic, the troops under Montgomery also pushed forward to capture Archi and nearby heights 13 miles from the sea.

Another 3-mile advance was chalked up in the upper Volturno region where Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army troops occupied Castel San Vincenzo and Rocchetta, northwest of Isernia, broadening their elbow room for a thrust toward the highway center of Castel Di Sangro.

All these operations accomplished yesterday were carried out in extremely bad weather—so bad that virtually all Allied air operations were canceled.

In previous advances the Allies, especially on the Eighth Army Front, had driven salients forward at many points. In these latest operations the gaps between salients were shaken out, thus effecting a shortening of the line as a sailor would take in the slack in a rope.

Foe Chased Into Hills

The gains of the past 24 hours brought the Eighth Army squarely in front of the massive German winter lines at all points.

The German high command communique admitted that Nazi "covering forces" had withdrawn

U. S. Now Striking At Heart of Enemy's Power in Pacific

By Alton Blakeslee

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—American soldiers and Marines sweeping ashore on Makin and Tarawa Islands in the Gilberts are thrusting the first spearheads against Japan's outer shield guarding the Central Pacific.

This offensive, promised by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, forges a threat from a new direction to Nippon's stolen empire, and strikes directly at the sinews of her power in the world's greatest ocean.

The heart of that Japanese power is the Truk Islands, 1600 miles to the west of the new landings, won by Japan as spoils of World War I and fortified secretly.

This invasion brings Americans into battle north of the Equator again in the central Pacific theater, and northeast of the Solomons.

British-held until Japanese conquest overspread the Pacific, the Gilbert group is composed of 16 small, rocky islands, mostly sparsely-vegetated, lying about 2400 miles southwest of Honolulu and some 1100 miles northeast of the Solomons. They lie athwart nearly a direct line from the Solomons to Hawaii.

On Tarawa the Japanese established their main air base in the archipelago, and here the U. S. forces met their strongest resistance. Makin Island, at the northern end of the Gilberts, harbored a seaplane base.

From these islands the Japanese had aerial cover for their sea

Va. Man, Girl End Lives in Plane Dive Into River

Tappahannock, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—Sheriff Sydney Newbill of Essex County said today 20-year-old Mabel Conley of Callao and 28-year-old Harmon C. Balderson of Warsaw, apparently had planned all this month to take their lives by diving in a plane into the Rappahannock River.

They did die that way yesterday after circling over this section for three hours. Sheriff Newbill said an oysterman, Sydney McKendrie, told that the plane nose-dived from a high level "and headed into the water."

The sheriff said a note found on the body of Balderson, whom the officer said was a grounded flier, was dated October 31. This note related that Balderson and Miss Conley intended to die together and wanted to be buried together, Newbill related.

Navy Takes Steps to Counter Nazis' New Acoustic Torpedo

By the Associated Press

Counter measures to combat German acoustic torpedoes are being taken by the Navy.

Rear Admiral Francis S. Low, confirming in effect reports that the Nazis have developed a weapon led to its mark by the sound of a ship's propeller and engines, said yesterday:

"We do not pretend to know all the answers, but we are actively working on counter measures and have no doubt but that we will develop satisfactory ones."

Low gave his opinion that despite the reported new weapon the U-boat fleet "is bent if not broken. We estimate their remaining strength in the hundreds. We feel sure that at the rate they ar being sunk they cannot be making great gains."

Sinkings of submarines have approximated one a day, and estimates have been made that replacement production cannot be more than 25 submarines a month.

Low, however, added a warning that "further great damage" may be caused by U-boats before "we wipe them out."

He reported that in the last six months of the "thousands of ships escorted in Atlantic convoys, the loss rate has been less than one half of 1 per cent."

New Theater Opens

By Charles McMurtry

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 21 (AP).—Powerful United States forces, carrying the fight to a new section of Japan's Pacific outposts, have landed on Makin and Tarawa islands, about midway between New Guinea and Hawaii.

United States Marines and Army troops pushed ashore at both places, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, announced in a communique today, under cover of mighty naval units of all types and after those and nearby islands had been pounded for a week by bombing planes.

The assault forces met only moderate resistance at Makin Island but the Japanese fought back fiercely at Tarawa and the battle still rages there.

Foe Holds Out 24 Hours

Since the Japanese on Tarawa had been holding out for 24 hours when the communication was issued, it appeared that American forces there were up against a win, die or retreat proposition.

Makin and Tarawa are in the Gilbert Islands, British-mandated territory which was seized by the Japanese in December, 1941. The American attack there means a 1100-mile extension of the area of operations on the perimeter of Japan's southeastern frontier.

These operations extend from New Guinea northeastward through the Solomons and to a point about 2400 miles from Hawaii. It brings major Allied forces in the Central Pacific to a point north of the Equator for the first time.

It was disclosed that Army artillery and other units besides infantry were among the assault troops.

The Marines in the operation were reported to include some of those who fought in the Solomons, but no further clew to their identity was given.

Some Aerial Opposition

Apparently the enemy threw up some aerial opposition to the landing, but it seems doubtful whether the Americans encountered any Japanese naval forces.

Landings on atolls such as Makin and Tarawa are tough jobs because they afford no protection to attackers and little to defenders except

War Loan Drive To Open Jan. 18 For 14 Billions

By the Associated Press

The Fourth War Loan drive, with a goal of $14,000,000,000, will begin January 18 and run until Febuary 15, Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday.

Three previous drives raised more than $50,000,000,000, and each exceeded its goal.

Millions of volunteer salesmen will carry the campaign to every individual investor in homes and plants throughout the Nation.

Emphasis will be placed on the $5,500,000,000 quota for individuals. From January 18 to February 1 only sales to individuals will be reported to the Treasury. Sales to other non-banking investors will be included in the reports beginning February 1.

Commercial banks will be permitted to make a limited investment of their time deposits in the 2¼ and 2½ per cent bonds.

French Free Head Of Lebanon Regime

'Little Itie'
Italian Boy Ace Scout For 8th Army

By Daniel De Luce

With the Eighth Army in Italy, Nov. 15 (Delayed), (AP).—Two months ago "little Itie's" mother was shot to death by the Germans on the doorstep of her burning home in Biccari, on the edge of the Foggia plain. Today he rates as an Eighth Army veteran in a scout platoon of Canadians. His real name is Paolo.

Clad in the battle dress great coat and tan balmoral of a highland regiment from the dominion, "little Itie" still looks like a 15-year-old schoolboy.

Yet he already has killed one German in a fair fight, and in a score of skirmishes up the backbone of the Appenines he has won the warm praise of his commander and the solid confidence of his comrades in arms.

Beardless, blackeyed Paolo is 5 feet 6 inches tall and as straight as one of the golden poplars along the high road to Isernia. He is Italian by blood, American by birth, and Canadian by military "adoption."

With aid of an Italian dictionary I interviewed him this morning.

"I was born in New York City, December 1, 1928, but I was brought to Italy when I was 2 yeasr old," he said. "My father is Ittaio Itize—of the United States and lives I don't know where because we've had no word from him for seven years. I also have an uncle, Ricardo Librato, in New York City.

"My home was in Biccari, but I went to day school in Lucera. One night in late September I came home and I found my house was burned down and my mother killed. The Germans had killed her. I suppose it wa sbecause she tried to stop them from burning the house.

"Our carabinieri took revenge. They shot five Germans who were trying to blow up a bridge outside of Biccari. The bridge was never blown up. It was saved for the Eighth Army. I wanted to fight the Germans too. I left by sister Maria, 17, and my brother, Giuseppe, 11, in Biccari and I followed after some Canadian artillery. They let me carry ammunition for them when they stopped to shell the Germans."

Paolo shuffled his big Army shoes nervously at the prolonged questioning but he smiled shyly.

"Soon I join the troop of a Canadian reconnaissance battalion. A sergeant and I were on patrol when we surprised two German engineers laying mines at a bridge at Alberone. The sergeant shot one. I shot the other.

"The next day I left the reconnaissance battalion and joined this platoon. Mister Gray (Lieut. Alan Gray) and the Sergeant (Gordon K. McKee) were brothers to me. I have been very happy. I've learned how to shoot many kinds of weapons. I like to scout."

Lieutenant Gray, 29-year-old former fur trader said Paolo's story was authentic in all of its details.

"Believe it or not he is an able soldier and he is very quick and keen on patrol," the commander declared. "He sees things on the horizon quicker than I can. Italian civilians give him all the information we need about enemy movements and strength."

The primary assignment of the platoon has been to establish and maintain contact with the enemy. Operating in small numbers, the patrols go out for as long as two to three days. They live off the countryside. It's easy stuff for Paolo.

Gray said "Little Itie" wasn't on the official Army personnel lists "but everyone, including the brigadier, knows about him."

"The men each chip in a shilling on pay day so Paolo gets as much pay as they do. And he earns it."

"Paul Testawitch, 19-year-old Cree Indian from Peace River, Alberta, is now Paolo's closest friend. Sergeant McKee use to be, but he was killed some weeks ago in a patrol clash. Paolo broke down at the battalion funeral ceremony for the sergeant. The sergeant used to plan enthusiastically how we'd take Paolo back to Canada with us after the war and help him get a real start in life," Gray continued.

Gray said he felt sure Paolo would be a fine addition to the manhood of the Dominion, adding:

"You can see he's smart as a whip and he's got all kinds of courage. If all the Italians were like him Italy wouldn't be in the mess it is. He's pretty young yet and we don't expect the war to last forever. When we go home to Canada we hope Paolo will come with us."

Premier, 2 Ministers Also Released as Helleu Is Recalled

Algiers, Nov. 21 (AP).—The French National Committee ordered the reinstatement tonight of Lebanese president Bechara Khoury and said it would negotiate on "the regime of independence promised by France" in 1941.

Bowing to the recommendations of its special envoy, Gen. Georges Catroux, and British demands, the committee also recalled Delegate General Jean Helleu from Beirut an ordered the liberation of Premier Riad Sohl and two other ministers who had been arrested by Helleu.

The committee acted during a hastily-summoned session following receipt of oral representations from Harold MacMillan, British minister to French North Africa, who demanded a quick solution of the Lebanese crisis.

Most Requests Fulfilled

The freeing of Khoury and his reinstatement plus Helleu's recall fulfilled most of Britain's requests, but the committee still refused to reinstate Riad Sohl.

MacMillan "requested" a prompt solution with the Lebanese leaders in accordance with Catroux's 1941 promise of independence which was underwritten by Britain.

The way was opened for immediate negotiations with Syria, Lebanon's Levant sister republic over which France also holds a League of Nations mandate.

Helleu Recalled

The communique said Helleu had been recalled to Algiers. He had been under fire for what were though to be hasty repressive measures following the Lebanon Parliament's action severing ties with France.

The commiittee also publicly declared that calm reigned throughout Lebanon, but British sources disputed this, saying more disorders had occurred throughout the country.

The French accuse Riad Sohl of extreme nationalist policies conflicting with the Lebanese obligations to France and France's obligations to the League.

Pearson Says Patton Is Reprimanded

By the Associated Press

Drew Pearson, the columnist, said over the radio last night that Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., had been "severely reprimanded" by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and expressed the opinion that Patton will not "be used in combat any more."

Pearson gave his account in explaining what he termed the mystery surrounding the whereabouts of General Patton, commander of the Seventh Army in the invasion of Sicily.

The War Department said it had no information and no comment on the report.

Date-lining his dispatch as Algiers, where Allied headquarters are located, Pearson said Eisenhower's reprimand followed an altercation involving Patton, a shell-shocked soldier in a Sicilian hospital, and the medical officer commanding the hospital. Pearson said the argument started when Patton ordered the soldier from bed and the medical officer intervened.

Patton, known as "Blood and Guts" Patton and as one of the toughest of officers, commanded troops on the western Tunisian front before leading the successful assault on Sicily. When Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army moved into Italy, it was reported that Patton's Seventh Army was being readied for another assignment.

UNWARLIKE WARRIOR—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa holds Angela Elizabeth Petrina Hugo, 8 months old, after acting as godfather at her christening in England November 3. The girl is the daughter of Group Capt. Peter H. (Dutch) Hugo, South African air ace, and his wife killed in the Dnieper bend, the communique said.

In the marsh land area of Rechitsa, where the Red army is forging west toward the prewar Polish border, Soviet guerillas fighting in the rear of the German line disorganized the Nazi defenders, the communique said, adding that Red army troops "made great use" of this confusion among the Germans.

While the Russian communique spoke only of minor successes in the southwestern push, the German radio said that the Red army was using 50 divisions, 600,000 to 750,000 men, in this struggle. The German communique spoke of "grim defensive battles" which it said Nazi units fought there.

This area is west of Gomel.

Referring to the Dnieper Bend Battle, which it pictured as a major Soviet offensive, the German communique broadcast from Berlin declared that 247 Russian tanks were destroyed in the region yesterday, 107 of that number being knocked out by one German army corps.

The German war bulletin also said fierce battles were in progress north of Gomel.

At the other extremity of the front in the Crimea, the Germans said their artillery fire and repeated air attacks nullified an attempt by Russian troops to enlarge a bridgehead northeast of Kerch. The Berlin radio said German naval units repulsed two attacks by Soviet gunboats in the Kerch Strait, and sank one of the Russian vessels.

beyond the Sangro River in the face of "vastly superior forces."

Archi is two miles from the eastern bank of the River Sangro. It was seized after brisk fighting.

Agnone, famous for its manufacture of churchbells, was occupied after the Germans had deserted the town, but, in a hot pursuit in the hills beyond, the British engaged in a number of sharp clashes with the retreating enemy and inflicted heavy casualties.

Antiaircraft batteries of the Fifth Army shot down five enemy planes which were bombing and strafing at low level.

In spite of the bad weather fighters managed to make a sweep over enemy territory but encountered no hostile aircraft.

Friday night RAF Mosquitos strafed rail targets at Padua, 30 miles west of Venice, and at Ferrara, 20 miles north of Bologna, damaging twoo trains.

Despite the Army gains in Italy, it was evident the Germans were prepared to make a strong fight.

An Allied officer at headquarters said the Germans now have a total of 50 divisions in the Mediterranean area, including Italy, France and the Balkans. Croat and Bulgarian divisions are not included in this total.

Of these 50 divisions, 10 are directly committed to prevent the advance of the Allied Armies in Italy.

Anatolian Earthquake

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Berlin radio said that a severe earthquake shock was recorded today by the Belgrade seismographic center which placed its center about 470 miles southeast of Belgrade in central Anatoli.

forces and could spring attacks against Allied supply lines. Loss of the Gilberts would greatly expand the effective scope of Allied assaults deeper into Japan's Pacific holdings.

Tarawa is the largest of the Gilberts, and the most important strategically. It is 22 miles long, composed of nine small islands, including Leper Asylum, Lone Tree Islet, and Administration Station. One main entrance commands its lagoon. Tarawa also is known as Knox or Cook Island.

Makin is some 11 miles long, with two entrances to its lagoon. Coral reefs protect most of the islets in the Gilbert group.

Altogether, the Gilberts cover an area of 166 miles, and in 1938 had a population of 27,000.

Makin was struck by a hit-and-run landing on August 17, 1942.

The Gilberts and the Marshalls have been punished from the air and sea in other raids, and the invasion was set up by a week-long pounding by bombers. The Marshall Islands, Japanese-mandated to the northwest, may be next on the invasion schedule.

The strategic importance of the Gilberts must seem to compel the Japanese to offer the most formidable resistance and perhaps may draw the great ships of the Japanese fleet into showdown battle.

that the latter have had time to dig in, set up artillery and gouge out shallow foxholes. Most atolls rise only a few yards above sea level.

The landings, made yesterday, were preceded by a heavy aerial and surface bombardment by carrier planes and the big guns of ships.

Text of the communique follows:

"Marine Corps and Army forces, covered by powerful units of all types of the Pacific Fleet, established beachheads on Makin, Tarawa Atolls, Gilbert Islands; meeting moderate resistance at Makin and strong resistance at Tarawa. Fighting continues.

"During these operations Army Liberators made diversionary attacks in the Marshalls."

The landings followed week-long aerial bombings by Army Liberators and Navy carrier planes of Japanese strong points in the Gilberts, Marshalls and on Nauru.

Tarawa and Makin both are small atolls which can be strongly defended by a small number of troops concentrating heavy artillery fire on the beaches.

Landing forces face the necessity of wiping out enemy positions quickly or facing the threat of annihilation. The fact that the Japs on Tarawa have been able to hold out in strength more than 24 hours indicates the bitterest kind of fighting is under way.

The statement that troops met only moderate opposition on Makin, was interpreted as indicating American forces there soon may be in complete control.

Arlington Man Perishes in Rio Plane Crash

Lieut. Comdr. Eugene C. Zachman of North Arlington, Va., who figured in the clean-up of the Pendergast machine in Kansas City four years ago was one of 16 Navy men killed in the crash of a large U. S. naval transport plane east of Rio de Janeiro on Friday, the Navy reported last night.

ZACHMAN

The plane, en route from Recife to Rio in a fog, burst into flames after the crash, the Navy reported, adding that cause of the accident was not known.

In addition to the Navy personnel, an American civilian and a Brazilian were killed. Bodies of the 17 Americans were buried yesterday in Marui Cemetery at Niteroi. A memorial service for Commander Zachman will be held in St. Andrew's Church, Kansas City, at a later date.

Husband of Mrs. E. C. Zachman of 3921 5th st., Arlington, Commander Zachman had been attached to the Office of the Secretary of the Navy and was assistant to the coordinator of war bonds. After traveling widely for the Navy in the interest of war bond sales, he was bound for overseas duty.

City manager for Kansas City after abolishment of the Pendergast machine, Commander Zachman had been executive secretary to Mayor Bryce B. Smith in that city. He then became director of the Municipal Auditorium there until entering the Navy April 1, 1942. Previously he served as a reporter for the Kansas City Journal.

Commander Zachman was born 40 years ago in Oregon, Mo. He was a graduate of the University of Idaho and was a member of the Army-Navy Country Club here, the Lions Club, Kansas City Club, Kappa Sigma, and Auditorium Managers Association.

In addition to his wife, survivors are a daughter, Patricia; a son, Eugene, jr., and his mother, Mrs. S. O. Zachman of Kansas City.

closed by the Navy last week, raised to 690 the announced number of ships destroyed by Axis U-boats in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

The vessel, the 131st of British registry destroyed in these waters since December 7, 1941, represented the fourth sinking announced in the western Atlantic in the last 13 weeks.

Last week Low said Germany still retained "a good deal of potential power" despite the official Allied claim of the destruction of 150 Axis U-boats in the Atlantic in the six months ending October 31.

The Berlin radio last week said U-booat operations "so far confined mainly to the Atlantic and adjoining waters" soon will be greatly extended, which "will force the enemy to transfer naval escort craft and airplanes to other seas" resulting in "a corresponding weakening of his convoy escorts."

Fresh Nazi Troops Rushed to Balkans

War Sidelights

Bismarck's Presence New Swede Puzzle

Stockholm, Nov. 21 (AP).—The arrival here of Otto von Bismarck, envoy to Rome who was replaced just before the Italian capitulation, posed a diplomatic mystery today.

Bismarck and his Swedish-born wife reported by the Stockholms-Tidningen to have come from Berlin last night. He refused to see visitors.

Grandson of Germany's great "Iron Chancellor" Bismarck, he formerly held diplomatic posts both in London and Rome.

Some thought he came too Sweden only on a visit with his wife, the daughter of a prominent Swedish architect. But there was speculation that he might have been assigned to Stockholm for a new German propaganda effort, or that he left Berlin because he was in disfavor.

Nazi Secret Language

Stockholm, Nov. 21 (AP).—Nazi Production Czar Albert Speer is attempting to safeguard German war industry against spies by the invention of a "new language," the Berlin correspondent of Aftonbladet said today. Names of stars and animals are being used to refer to figures and details about weapons.

One Premature Twin Loses Survival Fight

One of twin girls born three months prematurely at Sibley Hospital early Saturday died at 5:45 a. m. yesterday, it was announced late last night. The other child, smallest of the pair, was in "fair" condition early today.

Tipping the scale together at less than 5 pounds, the 6-month twins nevertheless were not the smallest pair to arrive before schedule at Sibley Hospital. In one instance, a little girl weighed 2 pounds 7¾ ounces, while her sister was 2 pounds 2 ounces.

The pair had survived Saturday through incubation treatment, and were given a fair chance Saturday night by hospital officials, who said that there was little change in their condition.

They were born to Mrs. Helen Wolfe, 39-year-old mother of five other youngsters, and C. H. Wolfe, [illegible], guard at the Department of Justice, who resides at 2006 4th st. ne.

The new additions to the Wolfe brood were delivered at 2 a. m. Saturday by Dr. Chester Brady, who declared it was "too early" to predict whether or not the twins could survive six-month births. The odds were heavy, he pointed out, but said that the baby girls had at first shown no disposition to succumb to them.

British Press Levels New Criticism at Surrender of Leros

By Edward D. Ball

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel poured fresh Nazi divisions into his bloody and costly campaign of extermination against Yugoslav guerillas today but the Partisan headquarters of Gen. Josip Broz (Drug Tito) declared the German everywhere had been thwarted.

The Germans struck with strong forces in the Sarajevo-Travnik sector of central Bosnia, where Tito's broadcast war bulletin said the Nazis had been stopped cold.

The hard-pressed irregulars even struck two offensive blows of their own, capturing the southeastern Bosnian town of Foca on the Drina River and lashing out at German positions in Dalmatia.

Bitter battles were reported under way in the Zeta and Moraca River Valleys of Montenegro.

Nazis on Isles Repulsed

Other German forces which have established bridgeheads on the Adriatic islands of Krk and Cherso (Crew) were thrown back when they attempted new advances across those rocky sentinels guarding the entrance to Fiume, Tito said.

As the hard-fighting irregulars kept alive the Allied threat to the Adriatic Balkan flank, the storm of British criticism against the loss of the Aegean Islands of Cos and Leros, just as Turkey was shifting toward the Allied camp, reached a new peak in the London press.

The Sunday Chronicle termed the loss of the strategic Dodecanese Islands to German air and sea forces "Singapore all over again on a small scale."

Referring to the explanation of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, British commander in the Middle East, that British garrisons had stuck through to defeat because the Allied troops could not evacuate the islands and leave the Italians in the lurch, the Sunday dispatch said the Italians had left the Allies holding the bag by surrendering Rhodes and its airbases to the Germans without a struggle.

"Our leaders must not, in the future, consider themselves restricted by an obligation of honor to a back-stabbing cobelligerent," the dispatch concluded.

San.os Evacuation Implied

The Berlin radio reported that 'the first group of refugees has reached Turkish soil from Samos," a British-held Greek Aegean island north of the Dodecanese group. Although obviously implying that evacuation of the island was under way, the broadcast did not say whether the refugees were civilians or troops.

Meanwhile, new accounts of German atrocities reached Yugoslav government officials in Cairo from Belgrade, where 30,000 Serbs have been reported put to death by orders of the Gestapo since Yugoslavia was invaded.

Referring to what were termed Turkoman and Cossack units incorporated in "the army of Traitor General Vlasov now operating in Slovenia and regions of Serbia, Dalmatia and Albania," a Yugoslav government statement said:

"These traitors are committing atrocities that surpass human imagination."

Horses Haul Nazi Supplies to Front

Bombers Give Gasmata Its Worst Beating

Southwest Pacific, Allied Headquarters, Nov. 22 (Monday) (AP).—Australian troops supported by Matilda tanks increased their pressure against the Japanese on the main trail a mile east of Sattelberg on New Guinea while Allied bombers dropped a 138-ton bomb load on Gasmata, New Britain.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today announced also that American troops were engaged in active patrolling from their Empress Augusta Bay bridgehead on Bougainville, last big Nipponese base in the Solomons.

Strong resistance was encountered both on New Guinea and Bougainville, not only from Japanese defenders, but from their air force as well. Our Bougainville positions were raided five times, with minor casualties resulting.

American Mitchell bombers in force heavily bombed Jap supply and bivouac points northwest of Sattelberg Saturday morning while outnumbered P-38 fighters broke up a large formation of enemy bombers and fighters, shooting down one.

The communique said the bombing of the Gasmata area, its heaviest raid yet, was "well concentrated on the target," and that the resulting explosions and fires left a "thick pall of smoke over the area." Here there was no aerial interception and all our planes returned.

We lost one plane to antiaircraft fire in a bombing sweep of the New Guinea coast near Alexishafen.

An American Navy Catalina bomber set a 10,000-ton Japanese merchantman afire in St. George Channel between New Britain and New Ireland Islands.

On Bougainville, where Allied forces have expanded their beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay, active ground patrolling was reported. Japanese planes raided our positions five times, with only minor casualties resulting.

It was part of a convoy apparently seeking to replenish the big enemy base at Rabaul on New Britain. The vessel, directly hit with two bombs, was being abandoned as the Catalina bomber left the area.

At Buin on the southern tip of Bougainville an escorted flight of our dive and torpedo bombers hit the Kahili airdrome.

Japs Gain in China; New Changsha Battle Seen

Chungking, Nov. 21 (AP).—Two spearheads of a Japanese force of 80,000 made progress toward Changteh, in the rice bowl country west of Tungting Lake, today and reports of strong reinforcements at their Yochow base east of the lake indicated the invaders may be opening a fourth great battle for Changsha, capital of Hunan Province, in central China.

The Chinese high command communique suggested that the Japanese were making a determined effort to encircle Changteh, 110 miles southeast of the Yangtze River port of Ichang and 25 miles west of the lake, and seize that communications center as a springboard for a decisive thrust at Changsha, 100 miles to the southeast.

Bloody fighting raged near Japanese-held Tzeli at the junction of the Ling and Liu Rivers 30 miles northwest of Changteh, where the Chinese were hitting back vigorously against repeated Japanese attacks supported by incessant relays of bombers.

The Japanese also were striking southward immediately west of the lake in a move which threatened Changteh's communications from the northwest.

By moving on Changteh, the Japanese were taking heed of three costly failures to capture Changsha in previous campaigns.

It was from the Changteh area that wily Chinese commanders in the earlier campaigns launched flank assaults which wiped out large enemy forces extended up the Siang Valley toward Changsha, 50 miles south of Tungting Lake.

Private reports said the Japanese had transferred large quantities of materials from Hankow to Yochow, their base east of the lake from which they launched their previous campaigns. If Changteh falls, they evidently intended to be ready for a two-armed drive on Changsha.

From the mountains below Ichang, to the west of the Japanese salient, however, the Chinese already were striking back in an effort to smash the invaders' strategy and were mopping up considerable territory already reoccupied.

Brig. Gen. Edgar Glenn, chief of staff of the United States Fourteenth U. S. Air Force, said the Japanese were within 10 miles of Changteh and American planes, both fighters and bombers, were striking from dawn to dusk to support the Chinese in the Tungting area.

"The Tungting Lake sector is area No. 1 in importance at present," he added. "We are giving all support possible to Chinese troops trying to repel the advance on Changteh, which is the corridor of approach to Chungking."

In the past week of operations, American planes temporarily blocked the Burma Road to the Japanese in western Yunnan, wiped out a bridgehead on the east side of the Salween and sank 14,300 tons of Japanese shipping, including a tanker, and damaged an additional 2200 tons, Glenn summarized.

Liberators caused an avalanche where the Burma Road winds back and forth along high cliffs south of Lungling and blocked traffic for a week, he said.

Due to American air attacks, Japanese units which forced a crossing of the Salween north of Paoshan were driven back, he added.

The Chinese air force said one Zero and one Japanese bomber were shot down in an early morning air battle near Enshih, provisional capital of Hupeh, where 30 enemy planes attacked. The raid caused an alarm in Chungking.

Time Bombs Damage Danish Train Ferries

New York, Nov. (AP).—The Nazi-controlled Danish radio said today that one of the two train ferries which ply the Storebaelt the, narrow stretch of water which separates the Danish islands of Sjaelland and Fyn, had been so severely damaged by time bombs that a full year would be required for repairs.

The ferry routes are important military links between Copenhagen, on Sjaelland, and Jutland.

Device Triples Bomb Accuracy

London, Nov. 21 (INS).—The British Empire News declared today that new bomb-aiming devices have been developed which will treble and possibly quadruple the effectiveness of Allied aerial attacks on Europe.

The new instruments, it was said, are virtually automatic in their action, possibly being timed to release bombs at the precise moment that the target is caught in the bombsights.

(CBS Correspondent Paul Manning today quoted the Empire News as saying that Britain has four new secret weapons.

(One, according to Manning, is "a new bomb that will down more buildings and kill more people than the present variety and is larger than those being used at the present time."

(The other three items he listed were "a bett fighting plane than the Spitfire, a naval device which explodes against Germany's acoustic torpedoes and new gadgets which are being installed on British aircraft carriers.")

Petroleum Corp. Pay Plan Approved

The War Labor Board approved yesterday requests of four subsidiaries of the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Corp. for a uniform wage schedule for 1000 office workers in 14 cities, among them Washington. There will be no immediate wage increases.

The four companies are the American Oil Co., Mexican Petroleum Corp., Lord Baltimore Filling Stations, Inc., and the Pan-American Refining Corp. The new wage schedule replaces what the WLB said was a chaotic wage structure, varying from office to office.

Girl 'Chutes to Safety

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP).—A military plane on a routine flight crashed and burned on Tussey Mountain two miles south of Spruce Creek late this afternoon.

Bernice Batten, 30-year-old Army ferry command pilot from Loves Field, Dallas, Tex., bailed out just before the crash and was uninjured. She was alone in the plane.

Succumbs to Injuries

Camden, S. C., Nov. 21 (AP).—Aviation Cadet Tracey E. Peck, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracey E. Pock, sr., Tonkawa, Okla., died today from injuries received in an airplane crash 10 miles south of Hartsville November 16.

Bomber Abandoned in Air

Pittsburgh, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Air Transport Command tonight sought a four-engined Army bombing plane believed to have crashed in the mountains near Cherry Tree, Pa., after its crew of five had bailed out.

Lieut. Jack Clay of the Air Transport Command said Lieut. Donald Crist of the Dayton, Ohio, airbase, the pilot, told him he had left the plane flying by the automatic pilot after it had developed mechanical difficulties.

CIO Speech Replaces Dairy Hour

Chicago, Nov. 21 (AP).—Owen W. Richards, manager of the American Dairy Association, said the organization's regular Sunday radio program from Chicago was "choked off the air at the eleventh hour by the Columbia Broadcasting Co. and replaced by a speech by a leader of the CIO, "which is not in harmony with the farmer's viewpoint."

Richards said the association had "started an inquiry at Washington," and that he expected the investigation to be taken up in the House of Representatives.

He said the talk substituted for the dairy program was delivered from Detroit by R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers of America. He said Thomas "made a political issue" of the subsidy question and attempted to "frighten farmers by reminding them of the agricultural depression following the last war."

"The program sponsored by five million dairy farmers was choked off the air at the eleventh hour when the controversial subject of food subsidies affecting the Nation at large was approaching a congressional decision," Richards said.

"The American Dairy Association has been careful not to involve its members in this controversy. We have always presented both sides of the question and on the Sunday radio program based our views on economics and not politics.

"To have our radio time taken away in this fashion and given to the CIO, which is not in harmony with the farmer's viewpoint, is shocking. The method used borders on dictator nation methods and is not expected in free America."

Bowles Warns Of Sudden Rise In Food Costs

which wages are stabilized, he indicated, adding:

"The wage increases which would result from a breach of the 'Little Steel' formula would add to the businessman's costs in all parts of the country. And any increase in the cost of doing business would in many industries call for further increases in wholesalesale and retail prices.

"There is a third result of breaking the present price line which is, in our opinion, extremely serious, and that is the psychological effect on thousands of businessmen as they see certain prices start to rise in other fields.

"At present we receive several hundred requests for price increases each week. Once our present price levels are broken these pressures from a purely administrative viewpoint will become increasingly hard to deny. It indeed is impossible to exaggerate the pressures for higher prices which will be set loose.

"I have in a sense answered, 'At what point or line can prices be stabilized once the present line is broken?' In effect, I have already stated that there can be no second line. There can be no second line because, without subsidies, we will be deprived of the one tool which can shake off continuing pressures. Unless these are choked off, they will break through any line, wherever we may attempt to establish it.

"Lacking subsidies, we will strive nevertheless in every way to limit the increase of the cost of living, but our policy must necessarily be one of consistent retreat. The rapidity of our retreat will depend on many factors, some economic and others psychological and, for the most part, beyond our direct control.

"I might point out that according to the Department of Labor, the cost of living today stands at the approximate levels of last April when the present hold-the-line program was put into effect.

"It is our opinion that with a relatively limited subsidy budget over and above our present expenditures and with the continued stabilization of our present hourly wage rates, we can continue to hold the present line of retail prices for sometime to come."

town Hospital, where the soldiers were treated and sent on to Walter Reed General Hospital.

Miss Smith was treated for contusions of the chest and was believed not seriously hurt; Miss Ethel Libby, 20, student at Hood College, was in serious condition with laceration of the skull and contusions, and possibly internal injuries; condition of Miss Dorothy Swetser, 20, also a Hood student, was considered serious with lacerations on the head and body; Corpl. James C. Foley, 29, was released after treatment for abrasions on the forehead; Staff Sergt. Gale V. Highsmith, 23, and Corpl. Thomas Doyle, 23, were kept at Walter Reed for treatment of head and body injuries.

Commander Maxted, the third member of the British military staff in Washington to be killed in traffic accidents this week, was said by police to have swerved his car to avoid hitting another which was standing at the roadside after striking a power pole a few minutes before.

Going at High Speed

Maxted's car apparently was going at high speed and overturned several times, landing on its wheels, police said. The officer, whose wife and two children live at 304 Normandy dr., Silver Spring, Md., was taken to Washington Sanitarium by the rescue squad of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department.

Victims in the other fatal accident, killed outright when one of two speeding cars failed to make a turn and plowed into a dirt bank at Sheriff rd ne. and Minnesota ave., were Dr. Bullock, the driver, and Mrs. Muse.

The auto which apparently had been racing with the death car also left the road at the curve, was believed to have been damaged about the front end when it struck a tree, but was driven away immediately, police said.

Police said three witnesses in a car not involved saw the cars speeding west on Sheriff rd. at "at least 80 miles an hour" and traveling almost abreast.

The persons killed were the only occupants of the death car, police said. They were pronounced dead on the scene by an Emergency Hospital staff physician.

Two MP's Hurt

Two military policemen from Fort Myer, Va., were severely injured early yesterday when an auto collided with an Army jeep at Massachusetts ave. and 3d st. nw. They were Pvt. Clair Berger, 19, the jeep driver, and Pvt. Leonard R. Kretsge, 26. Both were treated at Casualty Hospital and removed to Fort Myer. Berger suffered head injuries and possible fractured ribs. Kretsge was bruised about the limbs and body.

Police said the car was driven by Archie A. Ferguson, 31, of 3742 12th st. ne., who was charged with leaving after colliding.

With a broken left ankle, possible fractured skull and other injuries suffered when he was struck by a hit-run car on Georgia ave. nw., near Van Buren st., about midnight Saturday, Master Sergt. McMahan, 48, walked several blocks to Walter Reed Hospital, where he is attached to a medical detachment. He was admitted to the hospital in undetermined condition.

Police were seeking the car which they said struck McMahan while he was walking from a streetcar loading platform to the curb.

Commander Maxted was 41 and had served in the Washington chief signal office of the Royal Air Force for two years. Before he came here, he was stationed in Ottawa, Canada. He has been in the RAF for 18 years.

The car Maxted apparently tried to avoid hitting was reported by police to have been driven by Marshall Johnson, 40, of Hollywood, Md. Johnson was not hurt but two passengers of his car were taken to the hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises and later released. They were Mrs. Doris Rogers, 22, 8223 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., police said, and Sergt. Erwin Kuhlman, 30, of Walter Reed Hospital.

Scene in Civil War Days

THERE wasn't much of the present U. S. A. mapped in geographies on November 20, 1850, when the first train steamed forth on what today is part of The Milwaukee Road.

Many of our mighty cities of the west and northwest were then mere outposts. And eleven years were to pass before the war between the States began.

The little five-mile line of 1850 has grown into an 11,000-mile transcontinental railroad. Through wars and rumors of wars, depressions and years of great development and prosperity, The Milwaukee Road has written its share of American history.

Today all that our free America means is being challenged. And we of The Milwaukee Road, in concert with the rest of the nation, are helping to fling back that challenge.

We are being called on to move more and more freight and passengers every day. We are keeping vital war traffic flowing uninterruptedly over our long supply line from the east and middle west to Washington and Oregon ports—and through the Omaha and Kansas City gateways to California and Texas ports.

Our friends and patrons—both passengers and shippers—are co-operating to the limit. They, as well as we, know the urgency of the situation and the importance of the job we all have to do.

Republic Steel Charges Union Slowdown Cuts Plate Output

Cleveland, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Republic Steel Corp. said tonight a labor slowdown involving CIO unionists at the company's strip mill here has resulted in a "loss of more than 30,000 tons of vitally needed ship plate" since October 10 and caused about 25 per cent reduction in Navy and Maritime Commission requirements.

William F. Donovan, leader, denied union members were responsible.

The company said the plant in September "produced 73,000 tons of plates sheared ready for shipment.

"With the same men on the shearing lines and the same type of work the plate tonnage sheared in October was reduced to a rate of about 55,000 tons a month, and so far this month has been at the rate of 50,000 tons a month."

As a result, the company said, "vessels badly needed in the war effort are being delayed."

Donovan asserted he had conferred with a War Production Board representative and that he found the main cause of the trouble traceable to foremen on the job.

"I'm not convinced there is a slowdown," Donovan remarked. "The trouble is that the company is so rotten that even supervision struck against them. They have appointed as supervisors people who don't know anything about the job."

Protest Transit Tieup

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 21 (AP).—All streetcars and most buses of the San Diego Electric Railway were idle today. Company spokesmen said drivers had stopped work for 24 hours to protest War Labor Board delay in ruling on wage demands.

Release of Mosley Attacked As Sign of Class Favoritism

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—Theodore Bramley, secretary of the London District of the Communist Party, told a protest rally tonight that Sir Oswald Mosley, Britain's prewar Fascist leader, sent a message to his followers shortly before his release from Holloway Prison telling them to "keep your courage up —I'll soon be out."

Bramley asserted 30,000 British Fascists were waiting to rise again.

The whereabouts of Sir Oswald and Lady Mosley, released from prison two days ago, still was known only to officials and a few close relatives.

The government's decision to release the couple, imprisoned since 1940, was based on Sir Oswald's general debility and on phlebitis.

Speaking to 1200 home front workers gathered for the rally, Bramley said there had been a great campaign in Parliament to get the Fascists out of prison.

"Offensive" Against Workers

He added that many Fascists already had been released and declared "the reactionary forces see the end of the war in sight and are getting ready to take the offensive against the working class."

Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the Communist Party in Britain, who presided, said:

"Mosley is Hitler's storm trooper in Britain. His release has sounded a danger signal to this country. Those who let him out should be put where he came from."

The crowd cheered when Pollitt asserted that the granting of even conditional freedom to the couple was "an insult to the living and dead in this war against Fascism."

The meeting adopted a resolution insisting that the government reverse its decision on the Mosleys' release. The resolution said the "influence of the British Fifth Column is growing."

Demonstration on Tuesday

Leaders at the meeting said mass deputations would go to Commons Tuesday to demonstrate against the release.

Labor groups continued to protest the release.

Will Lawther, president of the Mine Workers Federation, said the release was likely to have a serious effect in that industry.

"How can the government square such an action as the sending to prison of boys for refusing to work in the mines with the release of a man like Mosley with a past," he asked, adding:

"A feeling is developing that because he is wealthy he is to be given privileges."

The attitude of the man in the street was reflected in the utterance of a bus passenger who was heard to declare:

"I suppose they will be releasing Hess next."

United Nations Setup Praised

New York, Nov. 21 (INS).—Sir Owen Dixon, Australian Minister to the United States, today described the United Nations setup as "perhaps the world's most successful experiment to date in cooperation among independent policies."

Speaking at Christ Church, Sir Owen, who is leader of the Australian delegation to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration conference at Atlantic City, declared:

"This fact justifies a real hope for a larger future."

Churches Demand Upholding of Sex Standards

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America appealed to "moulders of public opinion" today to join in a Nation-wide program to halt what it called the "widespread lowering of sex standards."

In a statement which characterized the "upholding of the highest standards of sex behavior" as a primary essential in the national welfare, the Federal Council said:

"We appeal to educators, artists, authors, publishers, the press, the motion picture industry, the broadcasting interests and all other makers of public opinion to recognize with us a great national responsibility for upholding high standards of conduct in the relations between the sexes, and for preparing youth to be builders of the future homes of America."

The council protested the "exploiting" in newspapers or magazines of material "which degrades thought and emotion."

"We protest also," the statement said, "against the portrayal of the human body in ways that are sensually provocative and which detract from the reverence in which men and women should be held as creators of homes and guardians of the sacredness of family life."

Spread of venereal diseases through sexual promiscuity and commercialized prostitution has rendered "millions of American men and women unable to serve their country as they ought," the council said in demanding strict enforcement of laws "against this treacherous evil."

Asserting that the essential strength and well-being of the Nation depend on the home, the council's statement said:

"We urge that understanding of family relationships and loyalty to family ties be universally inculcated, and the religious significance of family life so emphasized that even out of this world catastrophe of war, secure family life may emerge as a firm foundation for the rebuilding of the world."

How to Sink a Jap and Save a Yank— At the Same Time

WOULD YOU LIKE TO FEEL that you yourself had a part in the sinking of the Jap cruiser—by our Navy's torpedo bombers in the South Pacific? Then save your used cooking fats and take them to your butcher! For fats make explosives—for shells, bombs, torpedoes. And the next best thing to flying with our Navy pilots is to give them the wherewithal to blow the hated slant-eyes off the seas! But that isn't all—

THAT SAME PRECIOUS INGREDIENT OF WAR, the spoonful of used fat in your kitchen, can ease the pain of a wounded American as easily as it destroys his enemies. It's needed to make sulfa drugs, for tannic acid to treat powder burns, for the merciful needle of opiate that's given to the badly wounded while they are waiting for surgical care.

These and a hundred other battle uses make our needs of useful cooking fats desperately urgent. Don't let a single drop go to waste, not even the blackest used fat. Save it in a can, not glass. Any kind of can will do. Rush it to your meat dealer when full. Start doing it today, won't you?

Approved by the War Production Board. Paid for by Industry.

Millions of good American families like the Walter Petersons, 1 School St., Wayne, Ill., these busy war days are getting a lot of fun out of working and saving. You can plan as they do for a secure and comfortable future in the Post War World.

What do You Want in Your Personal Post War World?

Help make hopes come true by doing these 7 Practical Things now

WALTER PETERSON is doing an essential war job, but he doesn't think for a minute that his responsibilities end there.

He's looking ahead—to the personal benefits he wants in the peace to follow Victory. He's starting now, working and planning for those good things of life for which folks in our land have always been willing to work, fight and save. Many of us are already following his course—all of us can follow it.

Here are seven practical things our Government suggests that we can all do now to win the future benefits we want to enjoy:

1. Buy and hold war bonds—to lend our country the money it needs now to fight the war to Victory.
2. Pay willingly your share of taxes—including increased taxes—that our country needs.
3. Provide for your own and your family's future by adequate life insurance and savings.
4. Reduce your debts as much as possible and avoid making needless new ones.
5. Buy only what you need and make what you have last longer.
6. Live faithfully by the rationing rules to conserve goods of which there are shortages.
7. Cooperate with our Government's price and wage stabilization program.

That's the American way of hard work and thrift. It means a long look ahead to a future rich in the comforts of American living. It also means a great deal for all of us right now . . .

For by saving more and spending less, by doing all the seven things that this plan of action calls for, we do something very practical and effective to hold down the cost of living.

So let's all get together to put our money usefully to work—helping to win the war, to keep the "lid" on prices, and to provide for the kind of future we want in the Post War World. A practical way to get started is to work out a budget, using the form shown here.

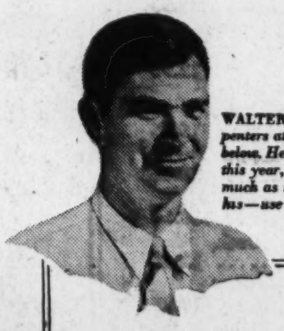
AMERICA'S LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES bring you this plan of action not only to help you to win the kind of future you want, but to urge you to join wholeheartedly with all loyal Americans to keep down living costs during these critical war days.

By acquiring life insurance, with the guidance of their life insurance agents, 67 million policyholders have already joined together in taking one of the effective steps our Government suggests.

Remember that the premiums you pay for your life insurance are also helping to pay for the war —for a large part of them are invested in Government bonds.



WALTER PETERSON is in charge of carpenters at an aircraft plant. Note his budget below. He has added to his "security dollars" this year, so that now he saves two-thirds as much as he spends! Match your budget with his—use the column at the right.

Senators Shy At Absentee Voting Bill

By the Associated Press

Senators from both sides of the aisle are studying the servicemen's absentee voting bill warily for possible loopholes which might confer an advantage on their opponents in the 1944 elections.

Republicans, tentatively agreed on a series of amendments, arranged to caucus today before the measure is called up in the Senate, and a number of Democrats, particularly Southerners, inspected the committee draft from constitutional angles not entirely dissociated from the smouldering poll tax fight.

Both parties look askance at a section which would permit challenge of the electoral votes of any State if it appeared there had not been "substantial compliance" with the terms of the act.

Senator McClellan (Democrat) (Arkansas) said that in his State election officials are bound by law not to permit a voter to cast his ballot unless he presents evidence he had paid his poll tax. The pending bill provides that payment of a poll tax shall not be required of servicemen voting for Federal officials.

In the House, Representative Rankin (Democrat) Mississippi, ranking Democrat of the Elections Committee, protested the bill "would wreck the election machinery of every State in the Union and concentrate dangerous powers into the hands of a Federal bureaucracy."

He proposed a simple resolution calling on States to revise their own election laws so that servicemen may cast absentee ballots.

Industry, Railroad Soft-Coal Quota Limited by Ickes

Solid Fuels Administrator Harold L. Ickes yesterday announced a program to restrict the delivery of bituminous coal to railroads and industrial plants and make increased amounts available to home consumers and war plants urgently in need of supplies.

Ickes, acting to offset a soft coal shortage resulting from recent mine strikes, set December 1 as the date for reducing shipments of coal to plants and railroads with stocks in storage equivalent to more than 25 days' consumption.

Public utilities having more than 40 days' consumption stored away must reduce orders for coal to 75 per cent or less of monthly requirements.

The new limitation program, it was estimated, will "free" approximately five million tons each month to move through retail dealers to householders and to industrial plants and railroads

Dr. Calver said McNary had been under a great strain the last year and was tired out.

Nations Agree on Postwar Job Proposals

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The United Nations have achieved "almost complete agreement in all plans in one point, namely, that the government assume the task of providing employment if and when private enterprise fails to do so," a Twentieth Century Fund survey said today.

The organization, an institute for economic research endowed by the late Edward A. Filene, said that for the purpose of providing employment, should private enterprise fail to fill the gap, the various countries have outlined "schemes of public works ranging from the usual road construction to the building of low-cost houses, schools, hospitals and recreational facilities."

"So far as they advocate such public works, all plans provide for a larger participation of the government in economic life after the war," the report stated.

The survey asserted that the countries of the United Nations "fall into three broad groups."

The first, including the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Australia and some western European nations "assume that private enterprise will remain the dominant form of economic activity," the survey said; the second, including some Latin-American countries, China and some central European nations, "assign a large and permanent place to state enterprise and to other forms of collective organization;" the third "consists of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, with its complete nationalization of economic life and centralized planning methods."

All countries now fighting the Axis have in common a postwar aim to "improve the economic and social condition of the mass of the people," the report said.

Hilding Carlson Made Labor Price Official

A. Ford Hinrichs, acting commissioner of the New York regional office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, United States Department of Labor, announced yesterday the appointment of Hilding Carlson as regional price economist.

He will direct activities of the bureau's prices and cost of living branch in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

Carlson, before joining the bureau in May, 1942, was editor of Dodge Reports Press Service here. He succeeds Robert R. Behlow, who has been assigned to a staff position in the Washington office.

But something weighs upon the heart.
No matter how you smile.
The Peace this season should impart
Has gone away a while!

Every Moment Counts!

NOW THAT WE are launched on the big attack, and the fighting's getting tougher—fiercer—every moment counts!

And that is work that you, an American woman, can do by joining the WAC. It is work you must do now when the need is so urgent—when soldiers' lives may depend on your help.

If you are an American citizen, over 20 and under 50 years of age—if you're single or married, without dependents, without children under 14—then the Army needs you—now—in the WAC.

Go to your nearest U.S. Army Recruiting Station. Or mail the coupon below. Get full information about joining the WAC in your State's own company—now being formed. Do it today! The need is now.

Public to See New Hospital Train 2 Days

An overseas type hospital train, built for Army use in theaters of operation, will be on exhibit at the 14th and Maine st. yards Thursday and Friday en route for training use in the California-Arizona maneuver area.

Civilians may look over the Army's new traveling hospital unit, designated as the Third Hospital Train, from 2 to 9 p. m. both days.

The 10-car unit includes six ward cars, a kitchen car, utilities car and two personnel cars for officers and enlisted men. Of all-steel construction, each of the cars extends slightly more than half the length of an ordinary railroad car and was designed purposely to negotiate the sharp curves, narrow bridges and tunnels of foreign railways.

The train will be used principally to remove patients from evacuation hospitals near the front lines to the larger general hospitals in the rear lines.

USS Guam Named ByGoverno.'sWife; He Is a Prisoner

Camden, N. J., Nov. 21 (AP).—The USS Guam, second of a class described as heavy cruisers, was launched today by the New York Shipbuilding Corporation. The big vessel, a sister ship of the Alaska, launched August 15, was christened by Mrs. George Johnson McMillin, wife of the governor of Guam, who is a prisoner of the Japanese on the island of Formosa.

Matrons of honor were the wives of Commander Donald Giles and Marine Corps Capt. Charles Todd, both of whom also are prisoners of the Japanese.

The authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships lists Alaska class ships at 27,000 tons displacement, designed to carry six 14-inch guns in three turrets and 16 5-inch guns.

Burma Advance By U. S.-Trained Chinese Reported

New Delhi, India, Nov. 18 (AP).—American-trained and equipped Chinese troops have penetrated 20 to 30 miles deeper into extreme northern Burma across mountain chasms and jungle since October 26, a communique from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Advancing in front of American units building a supply road from India to China's Burma road, the Chinese pushed south into the Hukwang Valley. They now hold the north banks of the Chindwin River and the Taraung, a northern tributary.

The troops have completed occupation of villages from Sharaw Ga south and west to where the river flows through the Nagai hills to Taro in the southern part of the Hukwang Valley, the communique said. The Japanese have been driven from their positions south and east of Shingbwiyang at the head of the valley, it added, and "continual progress is being made north and west of Taro."

Church to Defy OPA Point Rules

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 21 (AP). The congregation of the East Side Missionary Baptist Church today "unanimously voted to defy" the Office of Price Administration regulations requiring charitable organizations to collect points for rationed foods given needy persons, the pastor, the Rev. James Mackrell, announced.

The pastor sent a telegram to President Roosevelt and the Arkansas Senators which said the action was taken "in full knowledge" of penalties prescribed for violation of OPA regulations.

Mail Gifts Early, Walker Warns

Gifts should be mailed as early as possible before the end of November to guarantee delivery by Christmas, Postmaster General Frank C. Walker warned yesterday.

"Indications are that Christmas shopping is in full swing," Walker said. "Some wiser shoppers are mailing gifts now, but the volume is very small—far below the November mailings necessary if we are to avoid a holiday jam."

Reich's Neighbors Watch Closely When He Goes to Berlin

(The following dispatch was written by a correspondent who has just returned from a tour of duty in the Mediterranean area, including a considerable stay in Turkey.)

By Paul Kern Lee

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Every time Franz von Papen goes to Germany, as he did the other day, observers on the Reich's perimeter wonder if this time he is going to stage a coup against Adolf Hitler.

The sly gray fox of German diplomacy is considered a good bet to try it when he thinks the time is ripe. He has had a lot of experience along those lines.

"Keep an eye on Von Papen for the future," I was told once by a very careful diplomat. "When he goes to Germany at Hitler's bidding, it may or may not be important, but if he ever bobs up in Germany unexpectedly, you can bet that real trouble is brewing for the Nazis and that if Von Papen escapes assassination for 48 hours he will be a man to reckon with—and perhaps to deal with."

It is not hard to see why. Von Papen has worked for the Nazis for years but has never been a true member of the gang. He gives an impression of coolness toward the men who run his fatherland. Many a Nazi, probably including Hitler, hates him bitterly, and Von Papen undoubtedly knows it. His role calls for personal courage. He apparently has it, for he has survived several assassination attempts.

The Kid Glove Type

Despite all the tasks he has done for Hitler, including a super-fifth-columning job in Austria, he has stayed in the "reasonable" diplomatic school of kid gloves and striped trousers rather than adopting the Ribbentrop Nazi style of boots, bluster and bravado.

He is a Prussian, one of the old school Junkers; he is of good family; he has years of prestige; he is a practicing Catholic. Few if any Nazis can claim any of these qualifications.

He probably hopes to present himself in Germany as the one man to whom the Allies might accord the role of a Badoglio or a Darlan. People who know him say he is a lot smarter than either.

As a diplomat, especially in recent years, he often has been made to look inept. He either has not been too cunning, or he has been playing his own personal game at the expense of Nazi ambitions. The latter is probably the answer. According to his lights, he has been consistent all the way through—consistently an intriguer.

Kicked Out of Washington

Americans remember him as the young military attache who was kicked out of Washington in 1915 under suspicion of sabotage. Typically, it never was proved.

When Hitler came to power Von Papen became vice chancellor. But his name was on the "blood purge" list of 1934. He barely squeaked out with his life, only to come up with the plum of ambassadorship to Austria. He gave Austria the kiss of death. It was the cheapest of all Hitler's victories. The Fuehrer was so pleased that he made Von Papen a member of the Nazi Party and sent him off to Turkey in 1939 to continue the "good" work.

In Turkey he never made much progress. The nation that might have been the key to success for Hitler's whole program of conquest remained outside the Nazi fold.

But in June, 1941, Germany and Turkey signed a 10-year friendship pact. It looked like a great success for the Nazis. It looked as if Von Papen was doing what he had promised Hitler he could do.

It did not work out that way. Quietly, Turkey moved closer to Britain. Von Papen retained his standing with the Nazis by undercover work in Syria, Iran and Iraq, but he did not seem to be able to deliver Turkey. Perhaps he wanted it that way just as insurance, in case the Nazis did not finally prove to be the winning side.

He exhibited astonishment when he learned that Churchill had visited Turkey last January. He was host at a party when he learned of it, after Churchill had gone. A guest said he appeared so upset he couldn't keep his mind on his usually good bridge game. He had to ask repeatedly which suit was trumps. It may have been an act. It may have been genuine.

The important thing is that he kept his job at a time when everyone thought so grave a diplomatic defeat would have caused his recall.

Now he has made another trip back to Germany to explain why Turkey has come out so openly for the Allies. It looks like another diplomatic failure for Von Papen; it may be only a diplomatic failure for the Nazis.

D. C. Gets Mere Trickle of Coal; Dealers to Meet

Inadequate shipments of coal into Washington which fail to meet the city's needs will be discussed by coal merchants at a luncheon meeting to be held at the New Sheraton Hotel today, Alonzo P. Brown, head of the coal division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, said last night.

Reports from dealers were to the effect that shipments of anthracite to the city are woefully short of the need, one saying that where he would have used 600 tons during the past month he received 45 tons.

Dealers in general asserted their stockpiles were virtually depleted and it will require the fullest cooperation of the public to insure heat for all during the cold days to come.

Continuation of the limited deliveries to one ton per customer, or a 10 days' supply, has been necessary to conserve what little coal is in the city, dealers said.

Dealers today are expected to be able to give a clearer picture of what is in store for the city after they compare shipments received and demands that have been made upon them.

National Symphony Concert Provokes Several Ovations

By Ray C. B. Brown

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra on Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall. Soloist: Nathan Milstein. Program: Sarabande, Gigue and Badinerie (Corelli); violin concerto in D major (Brahms), Preiud and Toccata (Read), Entr'acte from "Khovanschchina" (Mussorgski), "Pini di Roma" (Respighi).

There were ovations yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall at the National Symphony Orchestra's second Sunday concert of its thirteenth season. One was directed at Nathan Milstein for his splendid performance in the Brahms violin concerto just before the intermission, and the other at Hans Kindler and the orchestra for the powerful projection of Repigni's "Pines of Rome" which closed the program. Inasmuch as Milstein constrained Dr. Kindler to share the applause at his third recall and the conductor signaled the musicians to stand in joint acknowledgment, it was a congratulatory occasion all around, and the enthusiastic applause was fully justified.

That Milstein has definitely taken his place among the great violinists of his day was evident in the assurance with which he handled the technical and artistic problems involved in one of the severest tests of virtuosity and interpretation. There are some concerti in which the solo player can achieve brilliant effects through skill alone, but Brahms demands qualities of head and heart, of intelligence and emotion, that only a completely rounded artist can supply. His concerto is a masterpiece on both the structural and ideational planes; and one that infallibly reveals any weaknesses or deficiencies in the soloist.

In execution Milstein was poised and able, and in phrasing eloquent. His tone was warm in the lyrical passages and glittering in bravura figurations. There was an appealing ardency in his reading which was characterized by unflagging vitality and imaginative insignia. His conception of the music was artistically sound both in the broad outlines and the detailed thematic structure. There was a fine rapport between him and Dr. Kindler in the niceties of dynamics and accents, and the performance had an admirable unity.

A first local performance was given to Gardner Read's prelude and toccata, a work ingenious in orchestration and pungent with dissonant counterpoint. These themes are more astringent and mellifluous and the harmonic acidity is biting.

Dr. Kindler began the concert with the Corelli suite that the orchestra's patrons know well, included another familiar item in the entr'acte from Musorgski's "Khovanshchina," and closed with a work new in the repertoire, Respighi's "Pines of Rome." One congratulates conductor and musicians on the richness of coloring applied to this pictorial pageant. It is not one of Respighi's best works because it displays the penchant for flamboyance which led him away from his poetic instincts.

National Gallery of Art presents Bernard Greenhouse violoncello, and Earl Wild, piano, on Sunday night in the East Garden Court. Program: Sonata in G major (Sammartini), Sonata in A major (Franck), Variations on a rococo theme (Chaikowski), Toada (Braga), Nocture in C sharp minor (Chopin), Zapateado (Sarasate).

The usual capacity audience in the National Gallery of Art enjoyed last evening a recital by two talented members of the U. S. Navy Band Orchestra, Bernard Greenhouse and Earl Wild, who played music and violoncello and piano in very agreeable collaboration. Their program boasted only one unfamiliar piece, Gaetano Braga's arrangement of a Brazilian song, "Toada,"

The CROW'S NEST
The old limestone spring . . . Old Crow has gone to war . . . Keep asking for it Until America entered the war, Old Crow was still being made at its original site on Glenn's Creek, Frankfort, Ky. Here, still in operation, was the same limestone spring which Col. James Crow used in distilling his first batch of whiskey nearly a century ago.

Today, of course, Old Crow has gone to war. The Old Crow distillery is devoted entirely to the production of alcohol for war purposes, and the Old Crow you now buy comes from reserve stocks which must be strictly apportioned to make them last throughout the war. If your store hasn't any Old Crow today, they will have some before long. Those in the know keep asking for Old Crow.

UNRRA Plan Assures Aid By All Lands

Atlantic City, Nov. 21 (INS).—The United Nations approved today a stringent financial policy for handling world relief and rehabilitation, and inserted checks on any government attempting to hoard its wealth and ride free on the relief wagon.

The program specifically guaranteed that poorer nations shall not be left with enduring debts for the aid they receive from the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

More Scope for Lehman

The plan, adopted by a financing subcommittee and due for approval by the full committee early in the coming week, likewise grants Director General Herbert H. Lehman a second check on any single government with ready cash from going over his head to get relief supplies which UNRRA might need itself.

The program is expected to allay any uprising in Congress against world aid, for which the United States is expected to put up about $1,500,000,000 of the $2,500,000,000 believed necessary.

The money will be raised by appropriations for each noninvaded country amounting roughly to 1 per cent of national income in the 12 months ended June 30, 1943.

Guarantee Won

Under the financial formula, Lehman won his first guarantee for a voice in world distribution of supplies.

The original proposal would have permitted wealthy occupied nations to go over his head to the Anglo-American combined war boards controlling most of the world's available supplies, and seek permission to buy as much as they wanted.

As finally decided, Lehman must be consulted first on any individual application for relief supplies by a member government. He will have the right to take the case before the combined boards with the weight of his office behind his approval or objection. There is, however, nothing to prevent the allocation boards from overruling him and the war boards will continue to have final authority.

House Committee To Consider Four D. C. Bills Today

The House District Committee will meet at 10 a. m. today for consideration of four District measures. The proposed legislation would:

Affix the boundary line between the District and Virginia, beginning at a point where the northwest boundary of the District intercepts the high-water mark o the Virginia shore of the Potom and following the mean high-wat mark south to Little River, thenc to Boundary Channel to the main body of the river, and across the mouths of all tributaries affected by the tides of the river to Second st., Alexandria, to the pierheads already established:

Grant members of the District Boxing Commission salaries of $1800 annually.

Waive renewal fees on driving licenses for men who have served in the armed forces.

Permit laying of pipe lines for steam heating purposes around the Mayflower Hotel.

Baldwin Joins CIO Committee On Political Action

C. B. Baldwin, who plans to resign Tuesday as area director in charge of economic operations in Italy for the State Department, will become assistant to Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO political action committee.

Hillman, announcing the appointment yesterday, said the committee is "mobilizing labor's forces for political action on a national scale."

Baldwin, 41, came to Washington from Radford, Va., in 1933 to become personal assistant to Henry A. Wallace, then Secretary of Agriculture. He was administrator of the Farm Security Administration from July, 1940, until a few months ago. At the time he left the post Congress was in process of reducing the FSA's funds drastically after hearing the agency accused of collectivism by the American Farm Bureau Federation and congressional opponents.

Draft Official Approves Calling Men From Prisons

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Col. Edward S. Shattuck, general counsel of the Selective Service System, said today that men of military age now in prison should be inducted into the armed services, provided they are physically and mentally fit.

He estimated at least 5000 of 90,000 now in prison are fit for service, and added:

"If we can get these 5000 men now in prison, physically and mentally sound, and give them an opportunity to don the uniform of the country and make good in it, we will not have to take another 5000 men who should remain home looking out for their families."

SUNOCO

helps them take off faster, carry more bombs and fly farther!

Ask any bomber crew—they'll tell you how important quality is in the aviation fuel that powers their engines. For the higher the power—the quicker the take-off, the bigger the bomb load, the farther they can fly!

A Super Aviation Fuel Concentrate

Today high-powered aviation fuel flows from Sunoco refineries in larger quantities than ever before—largely because of Dynafuel, an exclusive development of Sunoco engineers and chemists.

Dynafuel is more than a gasoline. It is a super aviation fuel concentrate which is never used undiluted but is blended with gasolines produced by other methods in order to step-up their quality.

50% More Power Than U. S. Standard 100-Octane Test Fuel

Dynafuel contains a larger percentage of certain ingredients with extraordinary power-producing qualities. That is why it actually tests 50% higher in power than U. S. standard 100-octane test fuel! The Dynafuel Process increases quantity, too—because it utilizes even those portions of the crude which formerly went only into low grade fuels.

A Triumph of Private Initiative

Dynafuel was developed by Sunoco without government aid or subsidy. The company risked its own capital, its own credit, in order to pay the huge costs of building the plants for its production.

It is through such free play of private initiative that all American progress has been achieved.

Better Motor Fuel for Post-War Cars

Today every drop of Dynafuel is reserved for military needs. But after the war, Sunoco's advanced processes and equipment will bring you far better fuels for tomorrow's improved automobiles and airplanes.

New Offensive

A new phase of the war in the Pacific has begun with the landing of American Marines and Army forces on Makin and Tarawa in the Gilbert Islands. The attack on these outposts of Japanese power in the Central Pacific plainly indicates that the United States has no intention of following an island hopping course to Tokyo. It suggests rather a closing in on the Japs from many directions. They are now being subjected to the sort of push-out movement that they inflicted upon the United Nations forces in the Central, Western and Southern Pacific areas after Pearl Harbor.

What the attack signifies most of all is our growing naval and air power in the Pacific. Secretary Knox taunted the Japanese navy a few days ago for its unwillingness to come out and fight. Now our Navy has given clear-cut notice that it will choose its own fields of battle in what will undoubtedly prove to be a great new offensive. The attack on the Gilberts is just a curtain raiser. Our forces are now carrying the fight to the enemy in a way that will force the Jap fleet to face a showdown. The fact that this offensive has been launched in the Central Pacific, along with the United Nations' continued offensive in the South Pacific, should be ample warning to the Japanese of what is in store for them. The Gilbert Islands, like the Solomons, are a long way from Tokyo, but our new foothold there will hasten the day of liberation for the entire Far East.

Government Lands

In translating the question into terms of real estate, the Byrd Committee has given the American people their first clear notion of the extent to which the Federal Government has come to dominate the life of the country. If and when present plans for condemnations and purchases and other acquisitions are completed, the committee's supplementary report says that the Federal Government will own one-fifth of the entire land area of the United States.

The implications of this statement are staggering. Of course, a large part of the Government's holdings consists of uncultivated public domain. Nevertheless, this condition represents a curious inversion of the problem of mortmain in medieval England. Then it was a question of whether all the lands in the realm might not ultimately pass into the hands of private or ecclesiastic corporations holding them in perpetual tenure. Now, apparently, it is a question of whether a large part of our population may not ultimately be reduced to a condition of tenancy under a Government which has already become the greatest landlord in the history of the world.

However, it is the State governments which have been first to feel the effects of this tendency. The more land that is taken from the taxable areas within a State, the greater the burden placed on the remaining taxpayers. Conceivably, the burden might become too heavy to be borne. There is also the question of the ever-shrinking jurisdiction of State governments within their own borders, since Federal law and jurisdiction are applicable on all Federal property. The property which the Federal Government now owns or plans to acquire is, according to the Byrd Committee, equivalent in area to the Thirteen Original States, plus Maine, Vermont, Florida, Ohio, Alabama, Kentucky and Indiana. In many States the number of Federal administrative employes is vastly greater than the number of State employes. Mr. Mark Sullivan the other day gave us the instance of Ohio where, he said, the ratio of Federal to State employes is more than 4½ to 1.

Of course, a great part of the recent and contemplated acquisitions has some connection with the war program and does not necessarily imply permanent Government possession. Nevertheless, the committee finds that the tendency toward excessive purchases of land and real estate has been evident since 1938. It recommends an immediate liquidation of all land and real estate holdings "which are not needed for Federal activities." It is a question, however, whether a sudden liquidation of these properties would not precipitate a collapse of real estate values, especially when it is remembered that the Government has title or leaseholds to a vast number of office buildings, hotels, theaters, laundries and buildings of almost every conceivable character.

The problem is serious enough to have been made the subject of a recent speech by Undersecretary of War Patterson. He admitted that in many areas hardships have been worked on State and local governments, but, apparently, he agrees with the Federal Real Estate Board that these hardships should not be remedied by admitting Federal property to local taxation, as has been proposed, but by direct Federal grants from the general funds. The notion that property no longer needed should be offered to the original owners for repurchase, Mr. Patterson dismisses as utterly impracticable. "I know," he said, "of no error-proof formula" concerning the postwar disposition of Government land. Nor do we; and neither, we suspect, does the Byrd Committee. It is another example of how much easier it is for governments to create great problems than to solve them.

Reason On Subsidies

It is a pity that the House of Representatives has worked itself into a lather over the subsidy issue. If there is any one question before Congress that demands especially thoughtful analysis and cool judgment, it is this one. Yet the issue is being fought on the lines of prejudice, emotion, politics and special interest. To be sure, the debate indicates that some members are cutting through the fog of false issues, but there seems to be little hope that their voices will be controlling when the vote is taken today.

The more we read of the debate the more we are convinced that no basic principle is at stake. Sponsors of the bill are moving heaven and earth to show that their stand is taken on the high ground of opposition to Government hand-outs. They want to deny the Commodity Credit Corporation power to use any of its funds, with minor exceptions, for subsidy payments. Benefits paid out of the Treasury have become suddenly obnoxious to them. Actually, however, our agricultural policy has been shot through with subsidies for more than a decade. Congressman Ford pointed out that cotton farmers have had over 1.3 billion dollars in subsidies and other farmers about six billions. The bill itself allows continuation of subsidies on cottonseed and peanuts produced in large quantities in its author's home State. So the oratory about abolishing subsidies on grounds of principle is bunk. Use of subsidies to keep prices down in time of inflation is no more un-American or unreasonable than use of subsidies to keep prices up in time of deflation.

The argument against continued regimentation may be as readily disposed of by thoughtful persons. Farmers welcomed regimentation throughout the thirties in order to obtain benefits from the Government. That was in a period when our only emergency was depression. Wartime has greatly intensified the need for Government controls over agriculture as well as industry and labor. No one can reasonably expect to shake his special interest free from Government regulation at a time like the present.

We think that sponsors of the bill do have a powerful argument against lavish use of rollback subsidies simply to put more money into the pockets of the people. It doesn't make sense for the Government to borrow large sums to reduce the cost of living for consumers who by and large have far more money than they can spend. But this objection can be met by holding the line against unreasonable expansion of the Administration's subsidy program. It calls for limitations, not crippling prohibitions. The best that we can hope for now is a holding of present lines against wage and price inflation, and holding of those lines under present circumstances appears to require limited expenditures in the form of subsidies.

Congress also has good reason to be deeply perturbed over the bulge in the anti-inflation line caused by the Administration's surrender to the coal miners. That action, more than anything else, loosed the present avalanche of demands for higher wages. But one costly error is not wiped out by committing another. Passage of the CCC bill in its present form would probably be accepted by the Administration as a signal to give way on wage stabilization. Chaos in our financial system would then be just around the corner. And responsibility for that chaos would fall partly upon Congress. Surely the fight against inflation is not yet so hopeless as to justify Congress in thus throwing in the sponge.

Regardless of how angry Congress may be over the origin of the present rollback subsidies and the capitulation to John L. Lewis, its duty to the Nation demands that it strengthen rather than weaken the President's hand in this home-front crisis. That duty ought to rise above petty politics, prejudices and slogans. Even from a selfish standpoint Congress could not afford to take upon itself the onus of breaking down the country's stabilization efforts. Sampson may have found some personal satisfaction in pulling the temple down upon his head, but let the House remember that his desperate action was nonetheless disastrous to himself, his associates and the cause for which he stood.

Overseas Investments

Since last June the Treasury has been acquiring information in regard to the investments of Americans and alien residents in foreign countries. The returns tabulated to date show holdings of approximately three billion dollars, but the final total will probably amount to between 10 and 12 billions. Of the investments so far reported 40 per cent are Canadian, while assets held in Germany rank second in value.

Obviously a large proportion of the securities and tangible possessions representing claims on Axis-dominated countries will eventually have to be written off as total losses. Indeed, some of these holdings had little or no value before war was declared. Nevertheless, the assembled data will be very valuable in future negotiations looking toward restitution of property and the establishment of claims for losses suffered.

Furthermore, there are numerous ways in which the data may prove useful to the Government while the war is in progress. The military and occupational authorities may, for example, want to get in touch with individuals who have knowledge of conditions in occupied territories. In carrying on discussions with neutral countries in regard to wartime business, financial and economic matters, it is also highly important to know to what extent American investors would be affected by any agreements that might be made. The Army, too, might turn American-owned property in occupied countries to good use in producing war materials, buying war supplies, or developing sources of raw material.

When the war is over, problems of exchange control, questions as to the amount of private loans that can safely be made to foreign countries, and related matters can be handled much more intelligently if we have advance knowledge of the volume and value of amounts already due us on investment account. We have always been handicapped by lack of precise knowledge of the extent and character of foreign investments. Hence, it is to be hoped that the wartime census of overseas hoidings will be continued and kept up to date when the war is over.

Payroll Levy Freeze

The miserably inadequate tax bill that has emerged from the Ways and Means Committee makes it exceptionally difficult to take a firm stand against doubling of the old-age insurance levies on payrolls. Nevertheless, we believe that Senator Vandenberg is justified in continuing his fight to "freeze" the existing payroll levies at 1 per cent for employers and employes respectively.

These payroll taxes were originally imposed for the purpose of defraying the costs of insurance benefits. Although the actual money goes into the Treasury's general fund, the receipts are credited to an old-age and survivors insurance and trust fund that invests its "credits" in Government securities. Of course the actual money paid in by insured workers is disbursed by the Government, just as it disburses receipts from regular taxes. But there is a fundamental difference between the two types of imposition. Taxes represent a deduction from income taken for the purpose of defraying governmental costs. Payroll levies, on the other hand, are supposedly payments for benefits to which the insured has a right. They are presumably adjusted with a view to covering the cost of providing such benefits. No matter how greatly we need revenue to combat inflationary trends, it is not playing fair with insured workers and their employers, as Senator Vandenberg points out, to boost social security taxes for that purpose.

Owing to high wartime employment, together with a tremendous increase in payroll totals, receipts from payroll levies have greatly exceeded expectations, while the drain on the insurance fund has been limited. The result is that the old age insurance reserve, even with levies at 1 per cent, is enormous, having risen to 4½ billion dollars by the end of September. During the past fiscal year these payroll levies yielded $1,130,000,000, while benefits paid out totaled only $149,000,000. To sum up: The reserve fund is growing at a tremendous rate and is now far in excess of any sum that could reasonably be required to assure the actuarial soundness of the system.

It is also possible that the social insurance system will be eventually extended and liberalized. In the latter event, the whole scale of charges and schedules will need to be adjusted; but it would be unreasonable to increase present levies to finance an existing insurance system, merely because we may later provide new kinds of benefits.

Finally, an increase of 1 per cent in payroll levies is a feeble and unfairly discriminatory method of attacking inflation. These levies do not reach all workers, and they fall with very unequal force upon employers. We need a form of taxation that will apply to both insured and uninsured workers—preferably a retail sales tax. Every boost in payroll levies will increase the obstacles to any such general tax and raise the cost of labor.

Local Forum

There can be little doubt that the American people are seriously and soberly concerned with the complex problems of peace and the postwar world. They are aware that they must bring to the challenging task of preserving peace not only the dynamic energies which have been harnessed for fighting the war but also a "new mind and a new heart." Washingtonians will, therefore, wish to avail themselves of the opportunity offered them by the United Nations Forum Lecture Series to hear expert discussion of some of the more thorny international problems. The organization is sponsored by members of the Cabinet, the Supreme Court and Government agencies and workers. During this winter's series of six meetings, it will present outstanding specialists in the field of economics, transportation and education in an effort to develop community understanding of postwar plans.

The first session is scheduled for this evening at Constitution Hall. Four members of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration conference, now meeting in Atlantic City, Messrs. Jan G. Masaryk of the Czechoslovakian government, P. A. Kerstens of the Netherlands government, Carlos Davila of Chile and Dr. T. F. Tsiang of the Chinese government, will be the guest speakers. The fact that these experts are willing to take time out from their work at the conference to come and report directly to the people speaks, we believe, for the very real importance of the United Nations Forum program. We shall do well to lend them an ear. For the only peace worthy of the cruel sacrifice and suffering of this war will be one built upon a broad base of intelligent and enlightened public opinion.

Farm Subsidies

By Mark Sullivan

Distrust of Farmers

THE VEHEMENT OPPOSITION by farmers against subsidies for crops is in large part another chicken come home to roost. The farmer knows, from experience in the recent past, that subsidies paid to him by the Administration at Washington, have been accompanied by strict regulation of what he could raise, and how much he could market, with penalties put upon him for marketing more than the Department of Agriculture said he could raise. Recalling that—it went on as recently as last year—farmers may apprehend that the new form of subsidy now proposed may be accompanied by the same kind of regulation.

Actually this seems not to be so. The new subsidy—the mechanism for paying farmers a subsidy on milk for example—is simple and does not involve severe regulation. To get the new subsidy on milk, a farmer merely provides a record of the amount of milk he sold during a given period, as shown by his receipt from the buyer of his milk. This record the farmer takes to a local agent of AAA (Agricultural Adjustment Administration). The agent okay's it and it is subsequently okayed by a higher official. Thereafter the farmer gets his subsidy. Aside from going through this process, no stipulation is put upon the farmer as to how much milk he may produce, nor other conditions.

Farmers, however, have not become familiar with the present type of subsidy, and the comparative simplicity of it. But they remember vividly what went on in connection with the previous type of subsidy, which was designed to restrict production.

THE PREVIOUS TYPE of subsidy, begun when Vice President Wallace was Secretary of Agriculture, was in practice as recently as the wheat, cotton and other crops of 1942. The process began with offering the farmer a subsidy. He could refuse the subsidy—and be free to plant what he wished, and free from other forms of regulation. But if farmers accepted the subsidy, difficulties descended upon them. If their planting exceeded the quota of acreage prescribed by AAA, they were penalized on the excess. As to the excess, they had to pay a penalty, which in the case of wheat was about one-half the value. If they wished to escape the penalty they were given an option. They could store the excess until a future year, and deduct the amount from the acreage they were permitted to plant in the future year. Or, they could plow under the excess acreage, and this some farmers did. If they chose plowing under as a way out of their difficulty, they were required to have their acreages resurveyed and pay the cost of the resurvey. The whole process was accompanied by intricate regulation and red tape which not all farmers comprehended. As one detail, no raiser of wheat could sell it, and no dealer could buy, unless the farmer produced a "marketing certificate" prescribed by AAA. The certificate—which every producer had to show to the dealer to whom he offered his wheat—read: "To the buyer: You may purchase from the undersigned producer wheat owned by producer (S) on this farm as being wheat for which you have no liability for collecting or paying a marketing penalty."

That old form of subsidy, for reducing crops, was always disliked by many farmers. It was defended by AAA on the ground that no farmer was required to accept the subsidy; and also on the ground that the mechanism was not put into effect until after an election had been held of farmers who raised a given crop. But the system came to be disliked by farmers who voted against it, by farmers who did not vote at all, and even perhaps by some who voted in favor of it.

IT IS THE RECOLLECTION of the old subsidy system that has caused much of the present opposition to a different type of subsidy, for a different purpose. (The present subsidy is designed to increase production—the former subsidy to reduce it.) It is the recollection of the former subsidy system that caused Congressman Wolcott of Michigan to say that a subsidy is a "step to regimentation and control . . . which eventuates in the farmer finding himself under the yoke of bureaucracy, where free enterprise on the farm is destroyed; where the Government . . . tells the farmer when and what to sow, when and how much he shall reap."

If the present subsidy were brought forward as a new thing, dissociated from the memory of a former subsidy for a different purpose; if the present subsidy were brought forward as what it is—a device to meet the emergency of war, a detail of a large program designed to prevent inflation—it would have escaped much of the opposition which has arisen against it among farmers.

New Alliance

By Paul Schubert

Strength Of Union

"IN UNION There Is Strength." This old truism appears to each generation of men as a new discovery.

Americans and Britains, rivals in so many commercial ventures, rivals in wars and in diplomacy, discover that by working together they attain a strength far greater than the simple sum of their individual powers.

Russia, added to the fold, finds that Russia loses nothing by associating with the suspect "capitalist" states—and we, in turn, learn that Russians, like ourselves, are merely "people trying to get along."

Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill form a team, to our inestimable benefit, and learn that their qualities enhance each other. "Uncle Joe," once caricatured as a monster, earns grudging recognition, then admiration, for his staunchness and leadership in the face of mortal peril—we rejoice to see him added to the team. We rejoice to see men as diverse as Hull, Eden and Molotov display the strength of union.

WITHOUT THIS union, we should not be winning the war. Strong as America, Britain and Russia are, individually, we are not strong enough to win separately and diversely. Union, teamwork—what the British aptly call "mutual aid"—has brought us up out of the valley of disaster, and shown us the way to beat the German, and after him, the Jap.

How simple it is, after all, in this day of swift travel and instant communication, for Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, to meet at an agreed spot, and talk together. How intelligent. Yet how revolutionary and remarkable, in the light of old-fashioned jealousies on points of "sovereignty," "prestige," and "national" separatism.

We in this country spend infinite time and patience molding nine men into a baseball team, eleven men into a football team. We understand the importance of strong individual players. We try to get the best individual players that are available, and search restlessly for new talent. We don't find it at all incongruous to have our universities interested in enrolling young men who were good ball-carriers in high school. Yet it is our ideal to form these individuals into a cooperating team, in which the individuals merge their "sovereign" abilities for the good of the whole.

GERMANY'S GREAT lack, as a nation, is the inability to cooperate with others. The Germans express this, with characteristic egotism, by speaking of themselves as "friendless," "isolated," "surrounded by envious enemies who wish to destroy the superior Reich."

The fact is, Germany isolates herself time and time again by being a bad, even a dangerous companion, friend, ally. Falsehood, treachery, vanity—all are characteristic of this nation's dealings with others. How contemptuous the average German always was, in speaking of his Axis partner, Italy. How the Germans sneer at the Japanese—"die Japsen) (pronounced Yopsen)—"die kleine Teufeln."

How ready the Germans always were to speak of the French as decadent, of the British as stupid, of the Americans as money-grabbing Hollywood characters . . . of the Poles as "false," of the Russians as "Bolsheviks."

Germany, alone in Europe, brought to bay, is the classic example of a power that believes it can dominate—dominate by trickery, by force, by "will power" . . .

Hooey.

No man can stand alone. No power can stand alone.

We are born onto this earth among our fellow men—and the game is won by those who discover the axiom: In Union There Is Strength.

The discovery doesn't come easily. We learn it under stress of danger, in time of peril. Then, having saved ourselves, we glorify the doctrine—but proceed to forget it.

The World War alliance which finally won victory in 1918 was a team of nations. That time teamwork was harder won than it has been in the present war—we were all dumber nationally.

But how quickly the team fell apart.

The important thing, today, is the perpetuation of teamwork. If we can achieve that, the rest will be relatively easy.

D. C. Health Dept.

The 7500 women represented by the Joint Committee on Public Health have laid an egg in your paper. It was not even a good egg, either, as you shall presently see.

In the first place, the self-styled Committee on Public Health admits it obtained the information in its letter to your newspaper from the District Health Department—a report which, obviously, lavishly praises its authors. This report was written by the Health Department. It is not a survey made by some disinterested agency.

The Committee on Public Health did not get any of its information by actually visiting Gallinger Hospital, and seeing with their own eyes what the senatorial committee saw; filth, neglect of duty, insufficient and ill-cooked food—in short, a sordid, disgracefully administered institution.

Instead, the Committee on Public Health got its information from a nice, clean sheet of paper.

But what are the facts? Why was the year 1935 used as a "control" date? What are the corresponding figures for comparative communities?

Since 1935 a Nation-wide depression has been overcome—this fact alone contributing mightily to the lowering of the national death rate and raising the national health standard.

The Committee on Public Health says that they have noted, "As grateful citizens" that the Health Department reduced the death rate in the District from 14.3 to 10.8 per thousand of population, since 1935, the control date used by the Health Department in its deceptive figures.

Since 1935, beside the social revolution above noted, the medical profession and the great scientific laboratories have developed therapeutic techniques and chemical formulas undreamed of, then, by the most optimistic prognosticators.

But, despite this great revolution in medicine and chemistry, perhaps the most significant factor in making America the healthiest great Nation in the world has been the American press. Besides devoting increasingly more space to dietetic and hygienic subjects, they have also led the vanguard of those who dared to bring social diseases into the open, call them by their right names, and then to develop programs for stamping them out.

It is, therefore, to a free and enlightened press that we owe most of our progress toward better health. NORMAN STONE.

Miner's Ingratitude

The ingratitude of man is one of the most disheartening weaknesses to cope with. The attitude of the miners in this country is a striking example. Regardless of anyone's politics or personal feeling about Mr. Roosevelt he has certainly been the laboring man's greatest friend. Because of his prestige and admiration abroad his legislation must have a world-wide effect. When the miners ignored his order and depended upon John L. Lewis it was not only disheartening but disgusting. What price sympathy and understanding on the part of Mr. Roosevelt? There must be a great number of people in this country who feel that Mr. Roosevelt has not been appreciated. READER.

Credit To The Uniform

The letter of J. R. R. published in your paper concerning the sick dog and his soldier master demands a reply.

When I read the letter (I, too, have been the owner of dogs for over 30 years), I shed wet tears, and thanked God we had in the War Department men with so much understanding and humanity.

A companionship of boy and dog for 17 years is not easily broken. The dog does not understand why his playmate is gone and grieves, sickens, nears death. Why should his last hours not be made happy?

The husbands and sons J. R. R. mentions will get their leave if and when they are entitled to it. No doubt the soldier had already earned his. A boy who so greatly loved his dog must have been a credit to the uniform he wears. What an incentive to any boy or girl who reads the story to cherish their pets.

Farmer's Trials

In 1942 the AAA under the Department of Agriculture were prohibiting the harvesting of wheat in this section of the country.

They were also limiting the acreage that could be planted in tobacco. In one district there were more than 100 people whose crops were limited to 1 acre or less.

This same Washington crowd are now estimating a shortage in both crops.

Hogs are going to market weighing 170 pounds when they should weigh 240 to 300.

Chickens are being put on the market because their raisers cannot buy feed for them.

Stock cattle are going on the market and so are dairy cattle because under the controlled conditions both are unprofitable to the owners.

And now they propose to subsidize cattle raisers out of the peoples taxes to cover the errors that they have made.

Shoes and Soldiers

My husband is an officer in the armed services. When his No. 3 ration book arrived there was an airy little notation on it that airplane stamps 1, 2, 3, 4 had been removed, as he did not need them. Those are the stamps for shoes. As he needs a pair of new shoes, he asked me to find out how he was supposed to get them. This is the answer: Whenever he wants a pair of new shoes he gets form number umpteen, which he then takes to his superior officer for approval. This having been obtained, he then goes to his ration board, submits this form, and is then given permission to buy a pair of shoes.

My husband works every day, including Saturdays from 8 to 5. In the last three years he has had a total of 15 days' leave. He is so tired he cannot stay awake after dinner. And this is what his Government expects him to do whenever he wants a pair of new shoes.

The King's Jargon

THE READER OVER YOUR SHOULDER: A HANDBOOK FOR WRITERS OF ENGLISH PROSE, by Robert Graves and Alan Hodge. (Macmillan, $3.)

It is curious that in all these sermons about the perils and horrors of monetary inflation, no one, as far as I know, has mentioned the rather obvious and frightening analogy of literary inflation. The English language is now in a state of wildcat confusion; the volume of printed words is being rapidly multiplied at a time when the general stock of ideas and the general capacity for thought are perceptibly dwindling.

English of course has always had what might be called a low foreign exchange rate. That is to say, the number of English words required for the expression of a given thought or concept is usually larger than is required for the expression of the same thought in, say, French or Spanish, and even so the expression in English is apt to be less precise. As between English and a highly inflected language like Latin, the disparity is even greater, as you can see for yourself merely by translating any familiar classical tag or quotation. In a language so slightly inflected as English the principal parts of speech tend to become interchangeable and the function of a word is determined not by its form but its place in the sentence. It is also possible for a word to acquire so many mutations and dilutions of meaning as to become in the end meaningless in almost any context.

Doubtless it is this inflation of language which explains the recent excitement about semantics and the current enthusiasm about basic English. In its literary and semantic aspects, basic English amounts to a scheme for checking the inflation by withdrawing something like 499,150 English words from circulation.

Messrs. Graves and Hodge, however, propose a very different remedy. They suggest that if authors, journalists and politicians can be persuaded to write neither more nor less than they mean, the inflation will be cured at its source, the equilibrium between language and thought will be restored, and English prose will be rescued from degraded condition into which it has fallen.

For Messrs. Graves and Hodge the inflation is a problem of style and syntax rather than of vocabulary. Among the various reasons they find for the present degradation of the language are the loss of the classical disciplines, the recourse to rhetorical devices to conceal poverty of ideas, and, probably more important than either of these, the extent to which the sloppiness of conversational English has affected the quality of written English.

The main qualities of good English prose, as expounded in this book, are clarity, congruity, naturalness and grace. There will scarcely be much argument about that. But in their insistence on clarity Messrs. Graves and Hodge are led to champion the prose tradition known as "the plain style"—variously exemplified by Ben Jonson, Bunyan, Defoe, Goldsmith and Fielding, but at its best, they seem to think, in the novels of Samuel Butler—as against the "ornate" or rhetorical tradition, traceable in its various developments through Milton, Dryden, Addison, Gibbon, Burke, Gladstone and Winston Churchill. "Writers who have something original to say tend to cast aside rhetorical devices as interfering with the sense. Where they fail to do so, because of hoping to impress as well as to inform, the reader's attention is divided." And Messrs. Graves and Hodge are audacious enough to illustrate the point with a passage from Milton.

But it might be well to set against this an observation by the late G. K. Chesterton about some of the rhetorical excursions of Sir Walter Scott. "The man," said Chesterton, "who is afraid of bombast, will never achieve eloquence." For myself I find the plain style a bit monotonous and am grateful to Messrs. Graves and Hodge when they insert an eloquent passage from some other author as an example of what is to be avoided. But in general I think it can be agreed that rhetoric is a dangerous tool which few nowadays know how to use and that most of us would be well advised to let alone.

Messrs. Graves and Hodge set forth 25 "principles of clear statement" to serve as the criteria of a sound English style. I have not room to enumerate them here, but they are all very sound, and most of them should even be obvious. Yet, very few of them, apparently, are any longer observed. The later section of the book is devoted to a phrase-by-phrase analysis in the light of these principles of excerpts from the work of numerous contemporary writers, including Ernest Hemingway, T. S. Eliot, Aldous Huxley, Daphne du Maurier, John Middleton Murray, Stephen Spender and H. G. Wells, and the speeches or writings of various politicians, professors and soldiers. The result of these analyses is shocking indeed. Yet when Messrs. Graves and Hodge undertake to rewrite the passages according to their 25 principles the improvement is much less impressive than one has been led to hope. It is even more discouraging to discover here and there in the book instances where even the prose of Messrs. Graves and Hodge fails by one or another of their own tests.

Reporting To Congress

By Ernest Lindley

Kefauver Plan

SECRETARY HULL'S report to Congress on the Moscow Conference has been generally applauded by Washington observers as a wholesome innovation. It was an innovation in only one respect: that a member of the Cabinet reported in person to Congress as a whole.

LINDLEY

Mr. Hull said nothing that he could not have said in a statement transmitted in writing. He was not questioned—although his statement anticipated some of the most important questions which might have been asked. He said less, perhaps, than he might have said at an executive session of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations or of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, or in informal conference with the chairmen and ranking members of these committees or with the leaders of the two houses.

Direct personal contacts between department heads and Congress are not an innovation: they are the common practice. Indeed, the practice is so common that the heads of some agencies have to spend a disproportionate amount of their time appearing before congressional committees. Some of these appearances are at open sessions, some behind closed doors. At these meetings department heads or their deputies are often submitted to exhaustive questioning. What they have not had is the opportunity to appear in person before Congress as a whole.

THE COMMITTEE encourages, if it does not require, specialization. Under the committee system, each member of Congress tends to become rather minutely informed about a few matters, while few acquire the information necessary to make sound judgments on a wide range of public policies. The exceptional Senator or Representative can overcome this handicap, especially if he does not permit himself to become tied down by the performance of a multitude of petty favors for his constituents. But time and energy impose limits. The average Representative is not well informed about many large public questions. In lesser degree, the average member of the Senate also tends to be a specialist. This is a fundamental respect in which the ordinary member of our national legislature differs from the ordinary member of the British Parliament who hears the reports of all the ministers and has the opportunity to question them.

This is the defect which Representative Kefauver of Tennessee proposes to remedy in part by an amendment to the rules of the House. Under the Kefauver plan, at least once every two weeks but not more than once a week, heads of departments and independent agencies would be requested to appear before the House to answer written and oral questions. The Committee on Rules would determine the date and the length (not to exceed two hours) of question period, and allot the time to each department or agency head to be questioned. The written questions would be reviewed by the appropriate committees of Congress before being transmitted to the department or agency heads. But the second half of each question period would be reserved for oral questions by members of the House.

This is not the first time that some such arrangement has been proposed. In earlier years one of the obstacles—perhaps the chief one—was the attitude of some of the committee chairmen. They are often jealous of their prerogatives and influence. If the House as a whole were better informed, it might rely less on the recommendations dished up by its committees.

MR. KEFAUVER seeks to overcome this obstacle by filtering the written questions through the committees. This probably is essential also to orderly and effective questioning. Questions can be consolidated and phrased to go to the heart of the problem. Picayune questions can be sifted out.

The House cannot compel any department or agency head to appear before it for questioning. It would not need to. The invitations certainly would not be declined. As in the House of Commons, the department or agency head could decline to answer a question and give his reasons.

The Kefauver plan is not a cure for the deficiencies of Congress. If adopted and practiced with good judgment, however, it should help to educate both the members of Congress and the members of the executive branch who are questioned. It is a constructive idea. Surely no harm could come from giving it a thorough trial.

Steinbeck Tells Joke on Italian Who Waited for Brooklyn Boat

By John Steinbeck

This story isn't very funny, and yet it was nobody's fault. It was one of those jokes that get out of hand.

One day not long after the taking of the city of Palermo in Sicily an American officer was directing a large labor gang in clearing some of the bomb rubble that lay in piles on the waterfront. The American bombing had been accurate and efficient, very efficient. The waterfront was a mess. The buildings were spilled into the streets—great piles of building stones and carved cornices and dust and torn sheets of lathe. The harbor itself was a tangle of wrecked ships, sunk but with their superstructure sticking out of the water. One sizable fishing boat had been bounced out of the water by a bomb and it lay with a broken back in the street.

War is a process of wrecking and rebuilding and wrecking and rebuilding. The dust of the American bombing had hardly settled before American engineers were clearing and sorting the wreckage and dragging the harbor to make it available to our shipping. The Sicilian population, which had hit out for the hills during the trouble, was back clamoring for food, for work, for clothes. Every one had a complaint about something or a plea or a request.

His Temper Worn Thin

Already the engineers had bulldozers ashore pushing the debris aside to make the waterfront passable for trucks. Hundreds of high-wheeled Sicilian carts with picture-painted sides were loading with stones and pulling away to throw the stones in bomb craters.

It was in this atmosphere of shouting and balking mules and dust and general noise that the American officer worked. He was very tired and his temper was worn thin. As he strode about, a small, round man walked with him, a man with a dark red face and a great mustache, a man with a pleading, open and persistent smile, a kind of patient-dog smile.

Over and over he tried to speak to the officer, but he never got to do it. After about an hour of following he tugged at the officer's sleeve and his hand was shaken off. So many people wanted so many things and meanwhile the quay had to be cleared.

It was nearly 3 o'clock and the officer was exhausted. He sat down on a pile of paving blocks and put his tired head in his hands for a moment. When he looked up again there was the little man with his patient persistent smile and he had the officer boxed in.

"When goes the next boat to Brooklyn?" he asked.

The officer said, "What?"

"I been to Brooklyn. Nineteen years ago—long time," said the little man. "Atlantic Avenue, Prospect Park, goddam." Now the officer was looking at him in amazement. "I like to go there again. When next boat he goes?"

A Wet Mustache Kiss

An imp stirred in the tired officer's brain. He started to say something about "Don't you know there is a war?" but instead, he said wearily, "Oh! We're going to start a tourist line tomorrow or the next day."

"Good," said the little man. "I like to have ticket, first boat. You give?"

Again the imp stirred in the officer at the preposterousness of the request. And then almost without his own consent he brought out his notebook. "What's your name?" he asked.

"Giovanni Vassetti. I been to Brooklyn. Nineteen years ago. I like."

The officer wrote, "Reserve one place for Giovanni Vassetti on the first boat to Brooklyn," and he signed his name and rank. Giovanni read the note carefully, moving his lips over the words and when he comprehended his eyes filled with tears. Before the officer could protect himself he had been kissed on the mouth with a big wet mustache kiss, and Giovanni, sobbing a little, was walking rapidly away, holding the precious paper carefully between thumb and forefinger so that it wouldn't get dirty.

Shines in Brooklyn Garb

Even then the officer knew the joke had got out of hand. He considered running after Giovanni and taking the paper away from him, and then he thought of the argument that would follow and he was just too tired. He thought, "What the hell," and forgot about it.

The next day Giovanni was back on the quay, but a changed Giovanni. He was dressed in Brooklyn clothes of 19 years ago, brushed and clean and apparently never used since he had come home. The shoulders were padded and his shirt was delicate purple stripes. He wore needle pointed shoes, a little cracked but brilliantly polished and with pearl gray cloth tops. He had on a most improbable hat, a wide brimmed flat straw, yellow with age but wound with a band of the most glorious Roman stripes. Giovanni carried a suitcase also from Brooklyn, and it was made of very durable cardboard stained to look like leather. Giovanni's face was gay and festive. He carried his ticket in his breast pocket, but sticking out a little so he could keep his eye on it. And Giovanni smelled deliciously of some obscure perfume.

And He's Still Waiting

Rakishly he came down to the quayside and he set his suitcase down and sought another officer.

"When goes the boat?" he asked.

"What?"

Giovanni proffered his ticket. The officer read it in amazement. He started to get angry and then the same imp stirred him. Perhaps he had been sent for sky hooks in his day. "It doesn't go until tomorrow," he said, and he took out his pencil and initialed the ticket solemnly and handed it back.

It isn't a funny story but it was really nobody's fault. Two weeks later Giovanni was still there. His ticket was covered with initials and the boat was still one day off. He didn't dare leave the harbor for fear it might go without him. He slept in a doorway. His shirt was no longer clean, the shirt with the rich purple stripes, and his Brooklyn suit was no longer pressed. But his smile was just as patient and triumphant and ever present. And as each officer initialed his ticket Giovanni said with passion, "Oh, Atlantic Avenue; oh, Prospect Park; oh, Coney Island; oh, goddam."

And as far as I know he is still there.

Ickes to Open California Field To Private Oil Development

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes moved yesterday to protect the public's share in an estimated 17 million barrels of oil and gas deposits underlying California's Cerritos Channel by offering them for development under lease from the General Land Office on a royalty basis.

At present, Ickes said, the oil and gas resources under approximately 92 acres of Government-owned land in the channel between Los Angeles and Long Beach are being drained at the rate of one million barrels annually by private interests without directly repaying the Federal treasury.

The Cerritos Channel supply is estimated at 185,000 barrels per acre, nearly four times the capacity of the known Elk Basin Field reserves.

The right to develop Cerritos Channel resources will be granted to the highest qualified bidder for the leasing privileges, said Ickes.

The new program, under which the Government will receive a 16 2-3 per cent royalty on production from the area, calls for drilling to begin within 60 days after delivery of the lease and the drilling of 10 wells to production within 12 months. An additional 6 wells, making a total of 16, must be producing within 18 months.

The highest price ever paid in the United States for the opportunity of drilling for oil in Federal lands was reached in August, when $1,407,500 was offered as a bonus for leaisng 262½ acres in the Elk Basin. In this transaction, the highest per acre bonus bid was $5800, Commissioner Fred W. Johnson of the General Land Office reported.

Sealed bids for Cerritos leasing privileges must be filed at the Interior Secretary's office in Washington before 10 a. m., December 13. Each bid of a bonus must be accompanied by a certified check or cash equal to one-fifth of the bonus bid. The successful bidder must pay the remainder of his bonus bid and file a $25,000 bond before the lease will be issued, Ickes said.

Drilling will be subject to the supervision of the U. S. Geological Survey. The War Department will retain jurisdiction over any surface installations affecting flood control and navigation.

Russian Magazine Says Jap Plotted Anti-Soviet Plans

Moscow, Nov. 21 (AP).—The labor magazine War and the Working Class, saying the initiative in the Pacific was completely in American hands, charged today that Japanese extremists had "inspired various anti-Soviet plans" in behalf of Germany.

(This was one of the frankest statements concerning Russian-Japanese relations to be transmitted from Moscow in recent months. By the magazine's charge, Japanese have meddled in Russian affairs, if not actually conspired against the USSR.)

The magazine said the Japanese had entered the war despite a shortage of materials.

"In their hopes of a victory of Fascist Germany over Europe," it said, "these extremist elements in Japan also inspired various anti-Soviet plans."

Vichy Cancels Another Petain Radio Speech

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Vichy radio, for the second consecutive weekend, canceled a scheduled broadcast by Marshal Henri Petain, French chief of state, the British radio reported tonight in a broadcast heard by NBC.

The broadcast by Petain, as well as another program, was canceled with apologies, BBC said.

(Advices reaching Bern, Switzerland, Friday, from France, said the aged marshal offered his resignation as chief of state after Pierre Laval and the Germans prevented him from making a radio address last week promulgating by decree a new and democratic constitution and renouncing Laval as his successor.

Gas Workers Elect Claude B. Johnson To Presidency

Claude B. Johnson of 4008 Pennsylvania ave. se., has been elected president of the District of Columbia Gas Workers Union, it was announced yesterday.

Voting was by mail for the first time since the union was founded in 1937, Johnson said. He received 374 votes and defeated Arthur McGinn Johnson, president in 1942, succeeds David L. McGonegal.

Other officers are R. Milton O'Connor, vice president; Mrs. Anne R. Gimbel, secretary; Edgar R. Mellon, treasurer, and Henry Holton, sergeant at arms.

The union, which has a closed shop agreement with the Washington Gas Light Co., is not affiliated with any national labor organization.

Appeal to Pray For Injured Boy Widely Heeded

Widespread response to the plea for prayers in behalf of a 15-year-old Gonzaga High School student, paralyzed as the result of injuries received in football practice November 5, was received yesterday, according to the Rev. Francis E. Garner, S. J., headmaster of Gonzaga.

Meanwhile, Tommy Dunigan, the injured boy, who suffered a broken neck and a severed spinal cord, lingered between life and death at Providence Hospital.

Father Garner had asked Saturday that a novena to Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal be said throughout the Nation.

National Distillers To Buy, Distribute Big Whisky Stock

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The National Distillers Products Corp. announced today it had contracted with 14 associated distributors to purchase Century Distilling Co. assets including about 250,000 barrels of whisky. Hastening distribution of the whisky to the consumer is contemplated.

Seton Porter, National Distillers president, said the proposal must be approved by the stockholders of Allied Mills, owners of Century Distilling.

"It is hoped all the whisky now owned by Century may be bottled and made available to the consuming public within two years or less," Seton said.

He said the purchase would amount to about 23 million dollars and the 250,000 barrels would produce about four million cases of whisky.

Congress Group Visits Airbases

U. S. Employment At Record High

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—Total employment, including men in the armed forces, rose to a record peak of 64.7 million persons in September the National Industrial Conference Board estimated today.

Employment rose 820,000 during the month, but the number of people working in private industry, excluding agriculture, continued to decline, dropping 300,000 below the total for September last year.

An Old Friend Returns in Heavy Disguise

'Old Acquaintance' Greatly Amplified; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

JOHN VAN DRUTEN'S stage play, "Old Acquaintance," when presented in the National Theater, with Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood costarred, was a closely knit and delightful piece of stagecraft . . . Although adapted to the screen by Mr. van Druten and Lenore Coffee,

MIRIAM HOPKINS

Saturday's preview screening of the Warner Brothers picturization of the comedy drama, suggested to at least one in the slender matutinal audience that any resemblance between the footlight version and the film is purely coincidental—as we say in the main titles . . . The picture has been so amplified and embellished that save for its thematic integrity, the story is hardly recognizable . . . This is not by any means to condemn the celluloid edition . . . "Old Acquaintance" has been handsomely cast and produced and is one of the season's better exhibits, with Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins in the Cowl-Wood roles . . . One wishes, however, that Miss Hopkins might have had a slightly more rational role to which to bring greater effectiveness by less hysterical playing . . . Bette Davis portrays her part with dignity and strength and John Loder and Gig Young are in there on the male side to strike a nice masculine balance . . . Among numerous others, Dolores Moran, in whom Burbank latterly has been taking so much pride, is on view in her first important assignment . . . Miss Moran is quite a lot of girl . . . Not quite so platinum, there nevertheless are moments when she is startlingly reminiful of the late Jean Harlow . . . It is not impossible that she might enjoy the same sort of meteoric career . . . You'll see, beginning Thursday, at the Earle . . . If you are interested in other kinds of pictures, there is now on exhibition in the National Gallery of Art a collection of 101 paintings, water colors and drawings of all phases of Naval Aviation . . . Exhibition will continue through December 12 and then move on to the Metropolitan Museum in New York . . . For the first time in the history of naval training films, two are being shown in conjunction with the still studies—"History of Naval Aviation," made by the March of Time staff, and Walt Disney's "Thunderstorms" . . . Shown twice daily at 1:15 and 4 p. m.

Local "Cricks" Vindicated

When we encountered the topcoatless, hatless and gloveless Abe Tolkins 'way up this way on F st. Saturday night, he professed to be catching himself a piece of fresh air—probably meant cold—after a hectic day with "Jeannie," at the Little Theater . . . Seems "Jeannie," in the first few days of its run, is scoring a dead heat with "The Baker's Wife," the Little's record film, with a nine-week run to its credit . . . As Mr. Tolkins was storing up his sneezes, he confided that the Little had had a lockout crowd continuously from 2:30 p. m., and at time of talking, had a box-office line all the way down to F street on Ninth—a considerable spread of footage by any tapeline . . . We told you so a week ago—all of us on the local drama desks . . . If "Jeannie" doesn't run nine weeks, too, Washington ought to be ashamed of itself . . . But don't go expecting a picture of stupendous dimensions—merely a superfine one . . .

When you see Walter Huston shoot Erich von Stroheim in Samuel Goldwyn's "The North Star," now packing 'em in at RKO-Keith's, you really see him shoot him . . . After the filming of the scene, Von checked in at the studio hospital where a doctor—both he and Huston are cast as medicos in the picture—removed fragments of wadding and powder from a painful, but not serious, wound in his hand . . . Overcharged blank cartridge . . . Mr. Goldwyn's latest announcement, by the way, is that he will present Teresa Wright and Dana Andrews in "Those Endearing Young Charms," the Edward Chodorov stage play, to which he has recently bought the screen rights as well as the Teresa.

The Man Is Right

Mr. Leonard Traube, indoor editor of the Billboard, with offices in New York, is nurturing a modest and understandable irk because in lauding his abandonment of the customary, annual holiday greetings number of his publication, in favor of war bonds, we referred to his valued journal as running "almost neck-and-neck with Variety in the profession" . . . "Billyboy," it seems, has the largest circulation, by far, in its field—a fact which somehow got itself buried in the back of our skull . . . All we meant was that in this neck of the woods Variety is seen a little oftener than Billboard sticking out of actors' coat pockets . . . There are, of course, many more branches of show business than that . . . In most of them—maybe all, the country over—Billboard is on top . . . Anyhow, it was a nice gesture to call off that Christmas book and divert all that dough to the Treasury . . . And a Merry Christmas to you, Len—just in case I don't get my cards out until Washington's Birthday, as usual! . . . Prodded, no doubt, by his recollection of the high box office altitudes attained by "Air Force," Executive Producer Jack L. Warner has turned "Ground Forces" over to Hal B. Wallis, husband of our old Hoosier friend, Louise Fazenda, for production . . . Expects it to do for the infantry, field artillery, armored command, coast artillery, antiaircraft artillery, tank destroyer units, air-borne command, barrage balloon training centers and desert training center—those are the ground forces—what "Air Force" did for the flying branch . . . Emphasis will be placed on the infantry, which, after all, is the one that slogs out the final seal of victory.

Where-to-Look Note

In case you can't find the critical gang these next few days, try the projection rooms . . . Managements are previewing everything, under the delusion that there'll be two or three turkeys in every editorial pot, come Thursday . . . Flatterers!

Olivia de Havilland and Sonny Tufts seem to have solved the transportation problem to their own excitement, if not satisfaction, in RKO-Radio's "Government Girl," coming in due course to a local screen. Great town, Washington!

Meek Murderer!

JOSEPH SCHILDKRAUT

as he appears in the title role of "Uncle Harry," which tonight enters its second and final week at the National Theater, with Eva Le Gallienne costarred

LEONARD LYONS

Broadway Gazette

New York, Nov. 21.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT: Lucien Kirkland, president of the Overseas Press Club, presided at the "Trial of War Prisoners" session, in which Ben Hecht, Hendrik Willem Van Loon and Justice Ferdinand Pecora participated. Kirkland, who covered the Versailles conference, said that he possesses documents attesting to this story: At the conference a formal indictment of Kaiser Wilhelm was drawn, for a war-guilt trial. The then Secretary of State, Robert Lansing, wrote across the face of the indictment three words which compelled the others to forgo the planned trial. Lansing wrote "This is Ridiculous."

FRANK SINATRA

ART DEPARTMENT: Frank Sinatra went to the Museum of Modern Art last week. No rug cutters, autograph hunters or cameramen, he reasoned, would be there . . . Sinatra found a Picasso he liked and leaned forward, to study it closely. Just then he was startled by a camera flashlight. When he recovered he noticed a well-groomed lady, closing her camera. She fluttered her upraised hand, as she rushed away, and explained: "Harper's Bazaar."

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT: Vice President Wallace and Senator Happy Chandler agreed to take joint lessons in how to speak Russian. There was a conflict during the first lesson, and Wallace thereafter began studying Russian from recordings. The conflict was over the kind of Russian phrases they wanted to learn. Wallace wanted to learn how to say "How many of these do you produce each year?" and "How much does it cost you?" . . . Chandler wanted to learn how to say "You look beautiful" and "What are you doing tonight?"

BEAUTY DEPARTMENT: Eddie LeBaron, the band leader whose Selective Service trouble was announced last week, is married to the granddaughter of Mrs. George Washington Kavanaugh. After their marriage, Mrs. LeBaron suddenly appeared in the night clubs with dark make-up, hair dyed black, and wearing an Egyptian dress and jewelry. Her friends were amazed by the complete transformation. "I dress her differently each time," said LeBaron. "It satisfies my bachelor desire for variety."

DRAMA DEPARTMENT: Max Reinhardt, who died this month, was to have gone to Russia next year. Michoels, the Russian actor, told Reinhardt that the Soviet Union will have a Shakespearean festival throughout the country in 1944. He asked Reinhardt to direct one of the productions in Moscow. When the producer agreed, Michoels sent a cable directly to Stalin, who immediately replied that he approved, and that if no other transportation were available, he would send a military plane for the great producer.

LOCAL NEWS: H. L. Mencken is at work now revising his "American Language," to include the aviation and war phrases which have come into usage . . . Burton Rascoe, the drama critic, and George Jean Nathan, whom he attacked bitterly a short time ago, chatted amicably at the premiere of "The Innocent Voyage." Nathan told his friends: "I've known Rascoe for years.. Just because he denounces me in print doesn't mean we still aren't friends."

Diversified Bill Circles Globe

With a little more emphasis than usual on the Far East and the South Pacific, the news section of the new bill at the Trans-Lux Theater still manages pretty thoroughly to circumnavigate the globe.

Of importance, but distant, interest is the Chungking Conference, at which the Allies planned their drive against the Japs. There are, too, the splendid "clips" of the Moscow Conference and Secretary Hull's return home, and, as a corollary, views of the Soviets' birthday party in Washington. The capture of Lae also is a prominent inclusion.

In Italy, Gen. Mark Clark is decorated by the University of Naples, and the valiant work of American engineers in restoring that city is comprehensively shown. On the home front, style shows, important sports events, the return of the bootlegger and Paramount's "Second Year of War" hold places of prominence, with the inimitable Lew Lehr telling the "joke of the week."

Foremost among the short subjects is the March of Time release of "Europe's Crossroads," dealing with the tiny republic of Portugal. Columbia's "Screen Snapshots" is intimately diverting and, in the Government's behalf "Food and Magic" is presented. "The Cocky Bantam," cartoon comedy, is in there for laughs.

HEDDA HOPPER

Producer Back With Three Cooking!

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 21.—John Considine's back in his stride with three stories at Metro. Seattle will be glamorized in the gold rush days, and gosh, how he'd like to have Walter Pidgeon, Lana Turner and Myrna Loy for it — as who wouldn't! Then he's doing "Mrs. Stanford" — the only woman who ever built a university. She built it twice—once after the San Francisco earthquake, when she'd neraly gone broke. Quite apart, that. Another is "Hold High the Torch"—a dog story, with Margaret O'Brien, done in color. Johnny produced "Sequoia"—remember? . . . Nice to see Bob Milton at RKO. He's dialogue director and consultant on "International Zone." Bob did the first version of "Outward Bound." It was so good they're doing it again.

LANA TURNER

What Next?

Katherine Dunham and dancers signed for Andy Stone's "Sensations of 1944." Andy's scouring the country for original acts, whether animal, mineral or vegetable. He's rounding up a bunch of girls to dive into a pool covered with burning gasoline. . . . Bonita Granville and George Raft want you to know it's not romance that takes them together to the night clubs—it's merely friendship and business. Ha, ha! . . . Sorry Vincent Youmans canceled "Life of Tschaikowsky" on silver screen. . . . George Balanchine has arrived to spend Thanksgiving with Zorina. . . . Marilyn Day headed a fan club for Gloria Jean, then decided on a career of her own. Went to New York, somebody heard her sing, Universal signed her, and she'll be in Gloria Jean's next picture.

Got There First

Bill Goetz of International Pictures is in New York for opening of Moss Hart's "Winged Victory." He's competing with his father-in-law, Louis B. Mayer, for the rights to it. Anyway, Bill's Johnny-on-the-spot . . . Goldfish aren't safe, since Johnny Arnold, Metro's ace, has completed a photographic equipment which will shoot anything in, on, or under the water. He'll use it first on Esther Williams in "Mr. Co-Ed."

What—Again?

Since June Havoc's still in New York, Venita Oakie came on the set of "It Happened Tomorrow" on Jack's birthday with a great big present. They'll probably reconcile for a week anyway. Venita was asked if she thought she could take the place of June Havoc. "Why not?" she said. "I'm still married to the guy." Jack still refuses to do any entertainment in Army camps or Hollywood canteen . . . I knew Merle Oberon had no intention of returning to England, even though she announces before each production this will be her last picture here. She's landed George Sand, opposite Paul Muni, in "Night We Dream," which Frank Capra wanted to do before the war, with Marlene Dietrich. In those days the picture was called "Chopin." It was called off when Harry Cohn remarked, "Who ever heard of him?"

Need More Like Him

We haven't heard much lately about "Buy a bed for a buddy" and how many beds were bought with money raised in motion-picture theaters, but Phil Goldstone, our least publicized independent producer, has remodeled an annex to the old Alexander Hotel and 1200 beds, a canteen, showers, baths, and other facilities are being turned over free to men in uniform. He's also deep in plans for a maternity hospital which will be free for wives of men in service, as a memorial to his mother. Quite a guy, Phil Goldstone.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

IT'S AN OLD STORY in Washington that an official's wife can't keep abreast of her husband's bureaucratic reorganizations. But it is something of a new story when the officials themselves get lost in the labyrinth.

C. B. ("Beany") Baldwin resigned as Farm Security Administrator to become "Area Director for Economic Operations in Italy." Cordell Hull himself asked Baldwin to take the job, so he naturally thought he was going to work for the State Department.

But one executive order followed another, with BEW becoming OEW, and OEW becoming FEA, all being absorbed by Leo Crowley, along with the Foreign Economics Office of the State Department. Result is that some people aren't entirely sure where they are working.

A friend approached Baldwin at a cocktail party one afternoon. "Beany," he said, "have a drink."

"No," said Baldwin.

"What's the matter?" persisted the friend.

"Not tonight," was the reply, "I've got to keep my mind clear, because tomorrow I'm going to make a final attempt to find out who my boss is."

Note: Since then, the State Department has appointed Henry Grady, former State Department assistant, to represent it on the Allied Control Commission in Italy. This is somewhat the same function to which it originally appointed Baldwin, so the situation is more confused than ever.

Republicans and Willkie

SWIVEL-TONGUED DEMOCRATIC Representative John Rankin of Mississippi doesn't know it, but House Republicans are getting irked at his stock tirades against Wendell Willkie, which cost the taxpayers hundreds of dollars in Congressional Record printing bills.

Recently, House Minority Leader Joe Martin of Massachusetts gave his advice to some of his colleagues who applauded Rankin:

"It's not going to get you anywhere cheering a Southern Democrat's attack on a Republican. If you want to be against Willkie, that's your business, but no good will be served by making an exhibition of it. Whether you like him or not, Willkie is still the titular head of our party and he may be the Republican nominee again in 1944. That's something for you to remember."

Good Neighbor Peace

TEN YEARS AGO there was a very serious war between Bolivia and Paraguay in the jungles of the Gran Chaco. Last week the Presidents of Paraguay and Bolivia met at the border of the two countries in the Chaco, erected a large cross, and pledged themselves and their countries to everlasting peace.

The bitterness which animated these two South American countries has been wiped away and they are good neighbors in every sense of the word.

Some diplomats hope this incident is a forecast that the bitterness actuating the enemies of World War II may likewise be eliminated after the passage of time.

Inside Story of Hornet

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT has okayed publication of the inside story of the famous airplane carrier Hornet, written as a book, "A Ship to Remember," by Alexander Griffin of the Philadelphia Record.

For the first time it reveals the spectacular operation of the ship which carried General Doolittle's bombers within a stone's throw of Tokyo. Among other things, the Navy okayed publication by Griffin of the fact that, at one time, the Hornet practically acted as a substitute for Henderson Field in the Solomons. That badly messed up airport on the night of October 14, 1942, had only five planes left and gasoline to send out only four. So the Hornet came alongside the island, threw her planes into action and, for 36 hours, substituted for Henderson Field.

Even more astonishing is the revelation that, at one time during the low point in the South Pacific battle, the United States Navy had only one aircraft carrier left undamaged in that entire expanse of water—the Hornet.

Employment Service Red-Faced

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT SERVICE officials, who have been trying to recruit civilian defense workers for full or part-time jobs in war plants, are red-faced about an experience at USES regional headquarters in Milwaukee, Wisc.

A young lady in the Milwaukee office who was contacting a list of OCD workers by phone finally reached a woman whom we will call Mrs. Smith, and suggested that she take an industrial job in the Milwaukee area.

"I'm sorry, but my husband won't let me work," was the reply.

"Do you mind giving us the business address of your husband?" requested the Employment Service caller. "Maybe we can induce him to change his mind."

"You ought to know my husband because he works right in your office," the OCD worker responded, nesitantly. "His name is John Smith."

An investigation revealed that not only was there a "John Smith" in the Milwaukee USES office, but that several other men in the same office also were preventing their wives from taking war plant jobs.

Note: Afraid that the same thing might be happening elsewhere, the USES has sent out blanket orders to regional officials to begin the recruiting of woman volunteer war workers from the families of their own staffs.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Griffith Stadium, Nov. 21.—There are 35,672 long-range planners assembled in the park. They constitute no visionary New Deal agency, just 35,672 very fore-handed folks who had ideas many weeks ago about tickets to the game.

POVICH

The Redskins win the toss, the only even-money bet connected with the game. On the theory that the Bears can't score if the Redskins have the ball, Capt. Bob Masterson chooses to receive the kick-off. Any other choice would have to be accompanied by his resignation.

They line up for the opening kick-off, and at this point the Better Business Bureau could cite both teams for false advertising. Neither Sammy Baugh nor Sid Luckman are to be seen in either line-up.

After five minutes of play, the customers aren't quarreling though because of Baugh's absence. A fellow named George Cafego is running the Redskins with nice know-how and he gets around nicely himself, what with recovering McEnulty's fumble on the Bears' 36.

At the end of seven and a half minutes of play, there hasn't been a pass thrown yet by either team, but there will be presently because here comes Sammy Baugh into the line-up and with the ball on the Bear's 20-yard line he certainly isn't going to punt.

Yep, it's a pass, all right. Baugh's fading back. Nope, it ain't no pass. It's the musty, old Statue of Liberty play with Wilbur Moore filching the ball from Sammy's hands, and it's 20 yards and a touchdown and are the Bears' skins red?

Bob Masterson kicks the seventh point with Baugh holding the ball, and then Baugh leaves the ball game and come to think of it, that Baugh is some kind of dynamite. He's in the game for two plays, does nothing but hold the ball on each play, and the Redskins get seven points.

Harry Clark takes the next kick-off for the Bears and a moment later he is grateful for the fact that there are three doctors playing with the Bears. He needs the attention of all three after bumping into Bob Masterson in a futile attempt to run his own interference.

At last Luckman gets a pass away, a beaut to Ray Nolting for 42 yards, but something about it was very unsportsmanlike. At least that's what the officials say when they call the pass back and penalize the Bears for unsportsmanlike conduct.

At this point, the game officials are giving their own interpretation of the men-in-motion play. They're stepping off more yardage than either team. The Bears run three consecutive plays and it's still first down, on account of penalties.

That pigeon of last week is back. He's a smart bird, though, and probably reads the papers. He knows it's the Bears in town this week, and is keeping a discreet distance from the huddles, unlike last week when he was lining up in the backfields of both the Redskins and Lions.

Washington is a crowded city all right, and nobody knows it at this moment better than Sid Luckman who can't find room to draw his arm back with a half-dozen Redskin linemen hanging on his neck. What Luckman is telling the Bear linemen in those huddles can't be repeated in this family newspaper.

Right now, Bob Masterson is doing the kicking for the Redskins. He just punted Ray Nolting of the Bears out of his lap after disliking the way Nolting slapped him down in a blocking role.

George Cafego is in a kicking duel with himself just before the half ends. He quick-kicks a beaut 63 yards but the play is called back because the Redskins are offside. So Cafego punts over again and succeeds in out-kicking himself with a 68-yard punt to the Bears' 12, a 5-yard gain on the non-exchange of kicks.

The between-the-halves show features a bear act but it is doubtful whether it's a compliment or an insult to the Bears. One scrawny, underfed bruin goes down the ladder and promptly falls on his nose, which, come to think of it, is what happened to the Chibears in the first half.

Meanwhile, it's a pretty safe guess that there is no frolicking by the Bears in the dressing room. From the press box you can almost smell the sulphur.

In the third quarter, Luckman is still having a horrible time of it. When the Redskins aren't dropping him for losses behind the line, the Bears are dropping his passes. The T-formation isn't winning many friends.

Any time the Redskins want 9 yards they seem to have the perfect strategy—give the ball to Ray Hare. He's carried it twice now and each time he gains 9 yards, no more, no less.

Frank Seno, the boy from George Washington U., is doing very well at this moment. He's off on a 51-yard run through left tackle when he is grabbed on the Bears' 12 by Luckman and Clark, a couple of very grasping fellows.

There's another touchdown for the Redskins. Baugh just came in and threw a pass to Andy Farkas into the corner of the end zone. To the great consternation of the Bears, Baugh wasn't throwing where he was looking. He wound up and faked a throw over the middle before hauling his arm back and slanting a pitch to Farkas. "Balk!" screamed Baseball Umpire Bill McGowan from his 40 yard line seat.

There's just no limit to what the Redskins will do to get a touchdown. George Cafego just pitched one to Alex Piasecky in the end zone. You couldn't blame the Bears. It's a fine state of affairs when the Redskins score on a pass and Baugh doesn't throw it. That hadn't happened all year.

Right now some guy is going down the sidelines with a pass from Luckman and the Redskins chasing him know Thar's B'ar in Them Thar Heels. It's little Ray McLean and he's going all the way, 58 yards, for a touchdown.

It was a fancy play, at that. Luckman sent big Famiglietti crashing into the line and the Redskins stopped him cold, except that Famiglietti didn't have the ball which Luckman was now throwing to McLean far out on the flank.

Bob Snyder takes over the passing for the Bears and finds a receiver in George Smith who happens to play with the Redskins. After intercepting the pass, Smith discovers the ball getting hot in his rands and tries to lateral it, but finds no colleagues in the vicinity and is compelled to run with the ball, which he does exactly like a center running the ball.

Some guys will still believe that any day the Redskins run up 21 points against the Bears they must be using a lively ball.

Man In Motion—Bob Seymour Catapults Through Bears for 12 Yards and First Down

Steagles Edge Lions In Wild Battle, 35-34

Pittsburgh, Nov. 21 (AP).—Detroit and Pittsburgh-Philadelphia tossed the defense to the wind today, putting on a wild, thrilling offensive show which the Steagles finally won, 35-34, in a National League game before a crowd of 23,338. The lead changed hands four times and the battle was not decided until the final gun cracked.

The Lions, after spotting the Steagles 14 points at the outset, came roaring back to get two touchdowns in the second period and then matched the Pennsylvanians stroke for stroke in one of the wildest scoring battles ever seen here.

The deciding point actually developed after Detroit's second score when Ernie Steele charged through to block Augie Lio's try for extra point.

Zimmerman Booted Five

Roy Zimmerman, a 200-pound quarterback who played 59 minutes of the game and figured in all five of his team's touchdowns, made good on all five of his extra-point tries for the Steagles, although he had to kick three times for one point because of offside penalties against both teams.

Detroit, closing out its season with a record of three victories, six losses and a tie, led 20-14 and 27-21 in the game. Three of the Lions' touchdowns came on spectacular plays, Ned Mathews' dashing 98 yards with a kickoff in the longest run to date in the pro season, Johnny Hopp scampering 88 yards for another, and a Chuck Fenenbock-to-Arthur Van Tone pass clicking for 71 yards for the third. Passes by Frankie Sinkwich, former Georgia All-American flash, set up another Detroit touchdown.

Lions Had Led—But . . .

After the Lions had jumped into a 27-21 lead on the first play of the fourth quarter, Zimmerman all but put the game on ice for the Steagles by engineering two quick scores. He shot a 7-yard pass to Larry Cabrelli after a 76-yard drive and went over on a center sneak from the 2-yard line moments later after Kish had intercepted a Lion pass on the 18 and returned to the 7.

This put the Steagles in front, 35 to 27.

Johnny Butler rammed over from the 4 for the game's first score after an 80-yard march which Jack Hinkle had set up with a 59-yard sprint. Hinkle went over from the 1 for the next after the

Baugh Stopped:

Sammy Signs Autographs For Full Hour

Sammy Baugh was stopped for 60 minutes yesterday—stopped cold, for the first time in his career. He didn't throw a pass, he didn't kick, he didn't gain an inch.

Luckily for the Redskins, however, he was stopped between 4:15 and 5:15 p. m. and the fact he was outnumbered about 2000 to 1 had something to do with it.

Sammy's bad knee slowed his progress from the bench to the dressing room and as his teammates left him behind the fans surrounded him and for one hour Baugh was in the midst of admiring kids and undignified grownups who were flaunting programs and pieces of the goal posts in his face to be autographed.

Finally, after the other Redskins were dressed and most of them had left, several firemen went out and rescued him. In the meantime goal posts at both ends of the field had been ripped to splinters for souvenirs—with no opposition.

Sid Luckman has been bragging about his receivers all season but the Bears' slot man in the T-formation was let down yesterday. Sid's best pass of the day, a sure touchdown if caught, was dropped by Hampton Pool as he crossed the goal line in the second quarter. Had Pool held it the game would have been tied.

George Wilson and Jim Benton didn't do Luckman any favors but on the other hand

Giants Deal Cards Ninth Setback, 24-13

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Steve Owen's New York Giants clung to a faint playoff hope in the National League pennant race by handing the Chicago Cardinals their ninth straight setback, 24 to 13, today at the Polo Grounds.

As a result of this victory over the much-carved Cardinals the Giants still have a chance to tie Washington if they win three while the 'Skins drop the same number. But the Redskin triumph over Chicago's Bears today makes that a faint possibility.

A fair-sized crowd of 19,804 watched the Giants run things all their own way in the first three periods only to have the cellar dwellers rally with two late scores against second-stringers.

Ward Cuff collected the first 10 points all by himself as he swept over from the six to climax a 36-yard drive in the first period, booted the extra point and then added three more on a 43-yard field goal early in the second.

Tuffy Leemans started to toss the ball in the third session and pitched for two touchdowns. A 21-yard pass to Frank Liebel set up the first one and an end-zone aerial to Neale Adams registered the points.

Then the Cards Dealt

Later in the same quarter Tuffy heaved to Liebel for an 18-yard scoring pitch after another toss to Leland Shaffer had brought the ball into scoring territory. Cuff automatically added both points for a 24-0 margin.

The Cardinals, who had not been past the Giants' 43 until the late stages of the third quarter, marched 75 yards and connected for a touch-who watched in street clothes from the bench.

'Skins All But Clinch Title

The Redskins and Bears both missed clinching their respective divisional titles but the worst the Redskins can get out of the Eastern sector if they lose their next three games while the Steagles and Giants are winning, is a tie. The Bears must only beat or tie the poor old Chicago Cardinals to clinch a second meeting with the Redskins just one month off—for the chips.

Redskin Coach Dutch Bergman called the first Redskin touchdown with Baugh as the engineer. Third down and 6 to go on the Bears' 20, Baugh replaced Cafego in the backfield after seven minutes of the first period had elapsed.

With Sammy in the passing slot, 7 of the 11 Redskins broke to the right. Moore hesitated for a second, slipped back of Baugh, picked the pigskin off Sammy's fingers and behind the blocking of Shugart and Slivinski scampered untouched, far to the left and cut down the sidelines to score standing—and untouched. The Bears had seen the Statue of Liberty worked to perfection.

Redskins March 70 Yards

The Redskins moved 70 yards to their second touchdown, in the second quarter. Moore broke through the center of the line from his own 39, saw Dante Magnani was catching him after a 30-yard gain and lateraled to Farkas who added 7 yards before George Wilson grabbed him around the ankles. The Redskins drew a 5-yard penalty for too much time but Ray Hare went around the left side for 9 yards to the 20.

Baugh, in for the second time, sent Hare on his gallop before Sam decided the time was ripe for a pass. Behind the faithful protection of the Redskin line Sam went back on his one good leg, half-dragging the bad one and seemingly searched for a receiver down the left side. Unnoticed by the Bears Farkas had cut swiftly to the righthand corner of the end zone and presto, Baugh sailed a 17-yard pass which Farkas tucked expertly in his arms, without a Bear in sight.

Seno Runs 51 Yards

Frank Seno was behind the Redskins' last touchdown in the fading moments of the third period. Moore batted one of Luckman's long desperate aerials into the hands of Piasecky for an interception on the Redskins 33 and that was Seno's cue.

The high-running rookie from George Washington University wasted no time getting through one of those openings in the center of the Bear line and it looked like "Kitty bar the door," as he started on a 51-yard dash. Harry Clark from the left side and Luckman from the right gave pursuit and just at the moment it appeared Seno's speed would enable him to pull away Clark leaped and pulled him to the ground and Luckman, who timed his diving catch a split second later, rolled with them on the Bears' 12-yard line.

The Bears didn't figure Seno for the next play but he came around on a double reverse and again lacked a step of being away before that man Clark tossed him out on the 7-yard line.

Cafego, not good enough to make the Dodgers' first team mind you, spotted Piasecky between the posts in the end zone and slammed a bullet pass which Piasecky took in the manner of a shortstop for the touchdown.

The Bears scored two minutes later, three plays after the kick-off. McLean went wide to the right, the man-in-motion to the left and as the Redskin line went after Luckman he flipped a short pass to McLean who had been neglected by Redskin Leo Stasica in a slipup of the defense.

McLean used his speed to pass all Redskins but Stasica and Bob Seymour, who attempted to force him out of bounds midway in his 58-yard dash. McLean gave them the slip and the only thing which could have stopped him in the last 20 yards of his run was a bolt of lightning.

On Bears' 4-Yard Line

The Redskins were on the Bears' 4-yard line at the final gun but time prevented a fourth touchdown. Joe Aguirre tried three field goals but two were wide and one was blocked in the only other scoring threats of the day.

Cafego, just a name to Redskin fans who sighed at the announcement that Baugh would not start, excelled with his kicking, stealing a note from Baugh with two brilliant quick kicks. The officials called back a 63-yard surprise boot in the second quarter for offsides and "Bad News" George simply replied by catching the Bears flatfooted with a 68-yard quick kick from five yards further back, one which died on the Bears' 12-yard line. Another quick kick settled for 47 yards and his punting, with the exception of one which sliced off his foot for four yards late in the game, was excellent.

Cafego played a bit of safety man, recovering a fumble, blocked Luckman passes, twice picked up the necessary yardage for first downs and nobody can question his quarterbacking, a result of many hours with Coach Bergman since Tuesday when Bergman was confidentially informed Baugh would not be ready for the Bears.

The Redskin back most appreciated by his teammates and the students of football but least appreciated by the Bears was Ray Hare, who blocked to perfection, was in on countless plays on the defense and twice bolted through for 9-yard gains.

Don Hutson Leads Packers to 31 to 7 Victory Over Dodgers

Scores 19 Points in 1-Man Show

Brooklyn, Nov. 21 (AP).—Don Hutson put on a one-man show at Ebbets Field today as he led the Green Bay Packers to a 31-to-7 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in a National Football League game before 18,992. He caught two forward passes for touchdowns, set up a third score, kicked a field goal and converted four extra points.

Hutson snared a 42-yard aerial from Tony Canadeo for Green Bay's first score after six minutes of play. Before the first period was over, his glue fingers hung on to a 30-yard pass from Lou Brock for a first down on the Brooklyn 6, a play that set up Tony Kalkenstein's touchdown plunge from the 3.

Don Boots Field Goal

In the second quarter, after the Packers had marched to the Brooklyn 8 only to be set back to the 13 on a penalty, he booted a field goal from the 21 to give Green Bay a 17-0 edge at half time.

His most spectacular play came in the third period when he caught a 79-yard pass from Irv Comp for his second touchdown. Comp had stopped a Dodger advance by intercepting Dean McAdams' pass on the Green Bay 21. On first down he flipped to Hutson in the flat. Hutson grabbed the pigskin on the Green Bay 45 and hotfooted it 55 yards down the sidelines, neatly sidestepping several would-be tacklers.

Packers Relax, Dodgers Prowl

Boasting a 31-0 lead, Green Bay relaxed. The Dodgers took the kick-off and battered their way to a first down on the Packer 43. Pug Manders then found a big hole at tackle and sprinted all the way for the lone Brooklyn touchdown.

Except for Manders' run the Dodgers never penetrated the Green Bay 30. They got that far with the opening kick-off before Charles Goldenberg intercepted Ken Heineman's aerial.

Outrushed, 128 yards to 107, and swamped in the air, 270 yards to 97, the Dodgers nevertheless stopped Green Bay cold at the 1-foot line midway of the third quarter.

Navyators Down St. Mary's Preflight

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 21 (AP). Del Monte's Navy Preflight football team convinced 40,000 fans today it is one of the most powerful in the Nation by crushing its preflight rival, St. Mary's, 37-14.

They Didn't Like It

'Them Bears' Were Sizzling From Case of (Red)Skin Burns

By Al Costello

The Bears didn't like it. No kiddin', Bub, they were really burning. Maybe sizzling.

Their dressing-room protection was much better after the game than their pass protection during the frolic.

"Hunk" Anderson, the old Notre Damer who shares the coaching duties with Luke Johnsos since George Halas went into the Navy, gave strict orders "nobody" was to come into the dressing room outside of club members. Nobody did. That made it all even 'cause outside the Redskins there seemed to be "nobody" on the ball field.

It was learned, however, the Bears were read the riot act more than somewhat by Anderson, a soft of blunt character who doesn't like the idea of his ball club taking a shoving around such as the Bears took yesterday.

More Punishment Tuesday

"Hunk" told them there would be a practice in Chicago Tuesday morning and he suggested it would be nice if everybody showed up promptly. He said something about a good long practice with plenty of contact work.

After dressing up after Anderson's dressing down, several of the Bears, notably Clyde "Bulldog" Turner, eased into the Redskins' boudoir for a few congratulatory exchanges. Turner particularly picked out George Smith, 'Skin center, whom you may have noticed during the game, for praise. "The Bulldog" said Smith played the greatest game of center he had ever seen. And in that, he wasn't far from wrong.

Anderson and Johnsos congratulated Redskin coach "Dutch" Bergman on the field with the usual "Nice goin', pal." They didn't came near the Redskins' dressing room. Line Coach "Turk" Edwards met Anderson on the steps for a brief handshake. That was all. It is hinted by the rumor-mongers there isn't too much love evidenced between the two teams.

Maniaci Wasn't Stopped

Ensign Joe Maniaci, a former Bear back, now coach of Bainbridge (Md.) Naval Training Station's undefeated Commodores, was locked out of the clubhouse and refused admission at first. After threatening to punch somebody's nose if he didn't get into see "my ball club" he finally was recignized by Frankie Baxter, who gave the "Open Sesame" signal to the unworried and apparently unimpressed gatekeeper. Joe was the only Bear who wasn't stopped yesterday but it might have been different if a Redskin had been the gate keeper.

An unidentified Bear breezed out of the dressing room to meet his waiting wife. "Too bad, honey," she said.

"Don't worry," he said, "there's a big day coming next month and I don't mean Christmas.'"

All in all, the Bears weren't very happy.

It could have been worse as far as the Bears are concerned. It could have been 74-0!

Fort Sheridan Tips Camp McCoy

Chicago, Nov. 21 (AP).—Vic Rosenblum of Brooklyn, former end at Long Island University, joined the Fort Sheridan football squad only three days ago, and today scored two touchdowns to lead his team to a 26-0 victory over Camp McCoy, Wis.

Fort Monroe Scores, 12-6, Over Marines

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—Sergt. Stan Strepka, 165 pounds of dynamite who hails from Chicopee, Mass., and Pvt. Dick Lock, former Richmond, Va., prep school star, accounted for seven touchdowns here this afternoon as the Gunners of Fort Monroe smashed the Norfolk Marine Base eleven, 44 to 6. It was the tenth straight defeat for the leathernecks.

Strepka ripped the Marine line to shreds as he scored four touchdowns, while Luck tallied three six-pointers during the afternoon's scuffle.

Corpl. Fred Lapp, former Franklin and Marshall luminary, chalked up a touchdown for the Marines in the last quarter. Faking a forward pass, Lapp, sprinted 12 yards to pay dirt.

Hollejo Wins Hunter Crown At North End

Coming from behind in true championship style, Frances Crouse's flashy chestnut mare Hollejo yesterday managed to nose out U. S. Randle's Gee Ray Bee for the hunter title of the North End Horse Show at Silver Spring.

The Randle entry, with Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, jr., aboard, leaped into prominence in the early stages of the show as he captured blues in the open hacks, the hunter hacks and the ladies' hunters. Claws, his older and more experienced stablemate, was forced to take a back seat as Gee Ray Bee performed in sparkling style.

Then Hollejo (whose name is Spanish for "mare" and not a contraction of Holy Joe, as most horse show folk believe) took the top award over Gee Ray Bee in the working hunters and thence piled up sufficient points to capture the tricolor.

Among the jumpers, C. W. Hudson's popular veteran, Cody, ridden by Sam Nash, won the touch-and-out and several lesser awards to win the championship. The reserve ribbon wound up in a deadlock between Mrs. Gardner Hallman on Capt. and Mrs. Alvin Kay's Applejack and Howard Miles' Shiner. In the resulting jumpoff, Shiner took the award when Applejack scored a hind tick.

Baugh Signs Autographs For Full Hour

Luckman threw several terrible passes, badly rushed on most of them.

Redskin Coach Dutch Bergman's favorite compliment yesterday was a "nice going, Dad," from Corpl. Arthur Bergman, jr., who begged a furlough from his Indiana Army camp to see the game . . . Somebody had better tell those rookies, Bob Masterson and Sammy Baugh, about reporting when entering the game. Masterson drew a 5-yard penalty in Philadelphia and Baugh yesterday . . . A weary Bronko Nagurski picked up the pieces late in the game and signaled to the Bear bench for a replacement—for Nagurski . . . Luckman's touchdown pass to Ray McLean tied Cecil Isbell's record of 24 touchdown passes in a season. The Bears were putting two and sometimes three men on Lou Rymkus, leaving other Redskin linemen open, in an attempt to stop the powerful rookie from Notre Dame . . . George Smith left questions in the minds of the experts who have already assigned Bulldog Turner to the all-league team at center. Smith outplayed Turner from here to next week.

The Bears pulled the antique Statue of Liberty after the Redskins used it for a touchdown but Ray McLean lost a yard. The Redskins used it a second time and Moore picked up 5 yards . . . Nagurski was warned by Field Judge William Downes to lay off the rough stuff as the Bronk shook the little official after a Bear penalty . . . George Smith and George Cafego turned up with Bear fumbles for the Redskins . . . The Redskins gained 212 yards rushing, nearly 100 more than the official who marked off 128. WHITTLESEY.

Lichtman Bear Cagers Clip Eagles, 35-32

The Lichtman Bears, Negro pro quint, opened their season last night at Turner's Arena with a 35-to-32 victory over Dutch Dehnert's Detroit Eagles, before a capacity crowd.

The Eagles led, 16 to 14, at the half, but Puggy Bell broke the tie with a looper as the second period started and Dolly King tossed a basket overhand and another from the foul line. Bob Holmes and Bill Cornheimer tied the count at 19—all.

Pop Gates and Dolly King came to life and drew away despite the frantic efforts of Jack Peters and Lol Simons to hold them safe, and with the aid of Bell took a seven-point lead, 31 to 24, coasting in from there.

Fighting Irish Earn Title of 'Great'

Notre Dame Gained Peak In Victory

By Charles Chamberlain

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 21 (AP).—The fight in the Fighting Irish is legendary.

But probably seldom has that determination to win been aroused to such a dramatic peak as yesterday, when Notre Dame twice battled from behind to score a pair of touchdowns in the last half and defeat the Iowa Seahawks, 14 to 13.

That triumph, which maintained the South Bend supermen's perfect record through nine games, was for the immortal Knute Rockne as well as for Coach Frank Leahy.

Before the game, Leahy took his boys to the solemn setting of "Rock's" grave, and as they bowed their heads, he said:

Greatest Fighter of All

"Fellows, there was the man who made the Fighting Irish a great tradition. There was the greatest fighter of them all. Let's not let him down today."

Notre Dame met an equal in the Seahawks—an equal in power as well as the spirit to win. Incongruously, an 18-year-old V-12 student from Parkersburg, W. Va., Fred Early, decided the margin of victory which cinched the mythical national football championship for Notre Dame.

He placekicked the points after touchdown drives of 64 and 55 yards. A week ago against Northwestern, he had failed to convert on three attempts.

This inexperienced lad calmly booted the vital extra points while Barney McGarry, a 4-year veteran with the Cleveland Rams and one of the five former pros the Seahawks used most of the game, connected once, then in the electrified tension, missed. The ball struck high on one of the uprights and bounced backwards.

Wilbur Moore produces the first thrill for Redskin fans with his 20-yard gallop to a touchdown yesterday on the Statue of Liberty play from the hands of Sammy Baugh. Moore is nearing the 5-yard line, where Ray Hare (42) throws a block on Dante Magnani of the Bears. Moore finally hurdled Magnani to complete his touchdown run.

Duke Claims Seventh S. C. Grid Crown

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—Duke University's football squad, powered this season by Navy and Marine trainees, has wound up its campaign atop the Southern Conference for the seventh time since the loop was reorganized after secession of the southeastern members in 1933.

Coach Eddie Cameron's Blue Devils wrote an impressive finis to their season by defeating North Carolina's V-12 team, 27-6, yesterday. This was the second triumph for Duke over the Tarheels, conquerors of Penn, and regarded as the loop's No. 2 outfit.

Duke's 1943 record shows eight victories, four of them over Conference rivals and one defeat. A 14-13 setback administered by Navy. The Blue Devils rolled up a massive 335 points in trouncing Camp Lejeune, Richmond, N. C. Navy Preflight, Georgia Tech, North Carolina State, Virginia and North Carolina.

Only one other game involving a loop member was played Saturday, Clemson losing to Georgia Tech by a 41-6 margin.

Gibson Grays Triumph

The Gibson Grays scored a 6-0 victory over the Taft Ramblers at Taft Field yesterday. Santmeyer scored the only touchdown.

With Irish at Top

Week's Contests Clear Several Loop Titles

By Harold Claassen

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The final big Saturday of the 1943 football season brought Notre Dame an almost unbreakable grasp on the national championship, cleared up titles in numerous conferences and cleared the way for a double-edged program this week that includes the annual Army-Navy fray on Saturday.

The Irish squeaked through to a 14-to-13 verdict over Iowa Preflight in a game that was every bit as rugged as anyone might expect in the meeting of teams rated first and second by the country's grid experts.

Only the erring toe of Barney McGarry, substitute guard for the Seahawks, enabled the Irish to gain their ninth victory and Notre Dame's melancholy mentor, Frank Leahy, make history by admitting that his club was of "championship caliber."

McGarry's attempted conversion of the second Seahawk touchdown was inches wide and his try for a field goal in the final minutes from the 16-yard line was caught by Julius Rykovich on the 3-yard line.

At Least A Moral Victory

The result was a virtual moral victory for the Iowans who outgained Notre Dame 14 first downs to 12 and pierced the Irish front wall for 197 yards along the ground.

In contrast to a majority of Saturday's competitors, both teams have a game remaining. The Irish conclude their season Saturday at Great Lakes and are favored to complete their first unbeaten season since 1930, while the Seahawks are carded against Minnesota, 25 to 13 winner over Wisconsin. Great Lakes downed Marquette, 25 to 6, in its tuneup.

Even if the exploits of the warborn Seahawks allowed one to forget that this was the approaching end of the most topsy-turvy season of them all, Louisiana State kept the faith. The Bayou Tigers were crushed by Tulane, 27 to 0, but announced from their dressing room that they had accepted a bid to compete in the Orange Bowl on January 1. Last weekend Southern California and Washington were picked for the Rose Bowl a day after the Trojans were punished, 35 to 0, by March Field. Both were idle Saturday. Their game will decide the Coast title.

No Opponent for LSU

An opponent for LSU, a civilian team, has yet to be selected. Unbeaten Purdue and Michigan, spilled only by the Notre Damers, replaced Ohio State at the top of the Big Ten heap by defeating Indiana and the Buckeyes, respectively. The Boilermakers were outplayed but won, 7 to 0, while Michigan crushed Ohio State, 45 to 7. Otto Graham guided Northwestern to a 53 to 6 decision over Illinois and Iowa stepped outside its circle for a 33 to 13 conquest of Nebraska.

Idle Oklahoma backed into the Big Six title when Kansas upset Missouri, 7 to 6, and rubbed away any chance the Tigers had of winning the crown for the third straight year.

Tulsa, also idle, ranks as the best in the war-abandoned Missouri Valley Conference and Georgia Tech, playing under wraps in its 41-to-6 win over Clemson, is designated as tops in the Southeastern circuit. The Engineers play Georgia, last year's kingpin, Saturday.

Hyattsville B. C. Wins

The Hyattsville Police Boys' Club 140-pound team defeated the Green Hornets, 18-7, at Magruder Park yesterday.

Crusaders End Season; Crop Tufts, 41 to 0

Boston, Nov. 21 (INS).—The Holy Cross Crusaders closed their season by overwhelming Tufts, 41-0, before 15,000 fans this afternoon.

Crusaders' left halfback, Stan Koslowski, proved why he is rated with the Nation's leading backs by scoring three touchdowns.

Koslowski caught a pass from Capt. George Titus in the first quarter for the first Holy Cross score. He went 19 yards off left tackle for another six-pointer in the third period. Later in the same period the Rumford runner shot through center for his third touchdown.

Bobby Sullivan plunged over for another Holy Cross touchdown in the first quarter.

Titus scored a fifth Crusader six-pointer in the third on a right-tackle from the Tufts 7. A pass, Ted Moraskey to Jack Parent, from the Tufts' 32 gave the Crusaders their sixth touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Liquor Famine Seen Breeding Prohibition

A return of national prohibition unless the liquor industry starts a housecleaning immediately was predicted last night by Senator Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina on the eve of a Senate committee investigation into the retail liquor shortage.

Reynolds suggested that manufacturers, wholesale and retail distributors and hotel operators had "better get busy on their own account."

"Unless they get wise," he added, "they will find a tremendous movement for a return of national prohibition."

Chairman Van Nuys (Democrat) of Indiana of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee authorized to spend up to $10,000 in the liquor inquiry, called a meeting for today to select investigators and schedule public hearings.

The Justice Department already is investigating whether the liquor scarcity is genuine.

While the Senate investigators have announced their intention of learning whether distillers are seeking to evade taxes and hoard liquor in Government warehouses to advance prices, manufacturers' spokesmen have declared the investigation "useless," because "there isn't anything to probe."

Kentucky bourbon distillers attributed the shortage chiefly to a decline in whisky supplies.

Police Chiefs Here Discuss Delinquency

As a basis for sounder rehabilitation of juvenile delinquents, emergency training courses for police officers handling child problems were proposed yesterday by the International Association of Police Chiefs and the National Sheriffs Association.

The groups, which conferred at the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department on child welfare problems arising from the war, today will ask the bureau to head a cooperative committee, including other Federal agencies, law enforcement and social groups, to investigate the possibility of such a program.

As Regular Training

It was pointed out that the proposed courses might well become a regular part of the training of police officers dealing with youngsters.

"The need for specialized training for police officers dealing with children must be met and met promptly if the Nation is to control its wartime delinquency problem," Michael F. Morrissey, president of the police chiefs association, declared yesterday, as he called attention to increasing offenses by teen-agers.

Police Information

Deputy Inspector of Police William Kent of the Juvenile Aid Bureau, New York City, asserted that "the greatest source of information on the predelinquent that we have in New York City is the policeman on the beat."

His bureau, he said, handled the cases of juvenile delinquents not serious enough to require arrest—about 25,000 a year.

Eleanore Hutzel, chief of the women's division of Detroit's Department of Police, said:

"We feel that police who are handling children would profit from training in such things as patrol work, interviewing, methods of investigation, child behavior, community resources, laws protecting children and youth, military rules and regulations and some medical information on sanitation and venereal disease."

Reventlow, Nazi Journalist, Dies in Munich

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The death of Count Ernst zu Reventlow, 74-year-old National Socialist author and journalist, in Munich was reported today in a DNB dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio.

Count Ernst zu Reventlow was for more than 30 years the stormy petrel of German political life. His pugnacious attacks on persons and systems earned him the nickname of "The Everlasting Anti."

Born August 18, 1869, in Holstein, he was the scion of a distinguished north country family.

At 31 years of age he married a French woman, Countess Marie Blanche d'Allemont, and resigned a naval commission to try farming in Central America.

He soon returned, however, and became a newspaperman. He made wholesale attacks on everything and everybody from Kaiser Wilhelm II to the German navy, army and diplomatic corps. With the advent of Adolf Hitler, Reventlow thought he had found salvation, and in 1927 he became a member of the Nazi party.

Thomas Indorses Roosevelt as a Candidate in 1944

Detroit, Nov. 21 (AP).—R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), gave President Roosevelt the nod for a fourth term over either Ohio's Gov. John O. Bricker or New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey at a rally of Ford Motor Co. employes here today.

"This Nation can use a little more of the New Deal," Thomas said.

Thomas assailed unauthorized strikes as detrimental to the war effort and to the cause of unionism as well.

"I would rather die of starvation than have a brother killed by a Nazi bullet," he declared.

Americans Must 'Put' Not 'Take' in War, Says Atherton

Ravenswood, W. Va., Nov. 21 (AP). Warren H. Atherton, national commander of the American Legion, declared tonight the bulk of the Nation's civilian population must begin to "put" instead of "take" in the war effort.

"We cannot fight this war with 10 per cent of our population making all the sacrifices," the Californian said.

"Too many people have been 'taking' during the war; too many are trying to formulate little tricks designed to make extra money. The time has come for every American to begin to 'put' a little during this struggle."

Britain, Russia Pick Aides for United Nations

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—William Strang was named British representative and Fedeor Tarsovich Gusev was appointed Soviet representative tonight on the United Nations European Advisory Commission which was established at the tripower Moscow Conference.

The United States delegate has not yet been announced, but there has been speculation here that Ambassador John G. Winant would get the post.

Strang, Undersecretary of State in the Foreign Office, was appointed Britain's representative with the rank of Ambassador.

A communique broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet Monitor said Gusev, Soviet Ambassador to Britain, had been appointed as the Russian representative on the commission which will be set up in London and will advise the three governments on European problems as the war progresses.

Strang has long been known as central European and Russian expert in the British Foreign Office and was Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's assistant at the Moscow conferences with Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and Secretary of State Cordell Hull. He also accompanied Eden on numerous other trips, going to Washington last March for talks with President Roosevelt.

Gusev, 39, was born in the Leningrad region and was graduated from the law school of the Leningrad University. He has occupied various responsible posts in the Peoples' Commissariat of Foreign Affairs and in 1939 was appointed chief of the Second European Department in the Commissariat.

Soviet Events Affirm Liberty Of Religion

Moscow, Nov. 21 (AP).—The magazine War and the Working Class, answering foreign press comment on election of Metropolitan Sergei of Moscow as patriarch of all Russia and reconstruction of the Holy Synod, implied today there was no change in the formal position of the Soviet government, whose constitution guarantees freedom of religion against anti-religion.

Both events, it said, "very clearly refute the slanderous inventions of the Fascists and their agents about persecution of religion and the church in the Soviet Union on one hand and, on the other hand, confirm and emphasize the fact that during the war the Russian church decisively took the side of the people in defending the country from the German invaders."

"This of course will contribute to strengthening the confidence and sympathies for the Soviet Union among believers abroad, who had been persuaded by hostile elements that religion was persecuted in the Soviet Union.

The article criticized same American, English and Australian newspapers which, it said, "understood this event not as a change in the church's position as a result of the general patriotic exultation of the people, but presume this is due to a change in the Soviet government's attitude toward religion.

Why the Classics Club Offers You This Book Free

WILL you add this lovely volume to your home library now—as a membership gift from THE CLASSICS CLUB? It is offered to you free, to try membership in the Club and enjoy its many advantages. You are invited to join today . . . and to receive on approval beautifully bound editions of the world's greatest masterpieces, which were chosen by the four distinguished judges shown below.

Suppose an expert on the world's greatest reading were to visit your home. No matter how much or how little education you may have had, you would listen enthralled as your famous guest spoke glowingly of the greatest books of all time; what warm friends you can make of them, and how they can help anyone attain a fuller, richer life.

You would remember, of course, the many times you had resolved to read only the best books. All you needed was someone you could depend upon to tell you how to go about it. And here would be that someone right at your elbow.

At the request of The Classics Club four authorities formed themselves into a Selection Committee to choose the masterpieces which offer the greatest enjoyment and value to the "pressed for time" men and women of today. They agreed that every book selected must receive the unanimous vote of all four members of the Committee. And the Classics Club now presents these great books to you.

Why Are Great Books Called "Classics"?

A true "classic" is a living book that will never grow old. For sheer fascination it can rival the most thrilling modern novel. In its vitality of inspiration it can arouse a new freshness of viewpoint and a new breadth of understanding, so necessary in times like these.

Perhaps you have often wondered how these truly great books "got that way." First, because they are so readable. They would not have lived unless they were read, and they would not have been read unless they were interesting. And, of course, to be interesting they had to be easy to understand. And those are the very qualities which characterize these selections: readability, interest, simplicity.

It is not necessary to have a "higher education" to appreciate these books and, after you read and know them, you will have acquired a broader and more liberal education than most of your business and personal acquaintances. You will have lost any personal concern about an "inferiority complex" and any fear about being the equal of others whose "formal" education is greater than your own.

The Only Book Club of Its Kind

The Classics Club is different from all other book clubs in these four ways: 1. Its sole purpose is to distribute to its own members the world's great classics at low prices. 2. Its basic price is lower than that of any other book club. 3. Its Charter Members are not obligated to take any specific number of books. 4. All its volumes are bound in attractive, uniform Classics Club bindings.

The Federal Diary

forced the department to add 16,723 additional workers. Several thousand employes preparing the literature also could be dropped.

4. Duplication of personnel work must be stopped. The committee pointed out that most all agencies recruited, investigated and classified employes—the very work of the Civil Service Commission. In this connection the committee said it costs the Government $57.95 for every employe the commission recruits and investigates. That may be true, but the commission investigates only a minor percentage of the employes it recruits. The report implied all employes are investigated.

5. The Civil Service Commission, in conjunction with the Budget Bureau, proceed immediately to make manpower utilization surveys throughout the Federal service and to report their finding to President Roosevelt and the Congress by February I. It suggested that the work be done by the commission's investigation division, a job it's unprepared to do.

The committee criticized both the Budget Bureau and Civil Service Commission for failing to compel agencies to make better use of their personnel.

6. The Budget Bureau place personnel ceilings on all agencies. The committee was critical of the bureau of applying its autohrity to force reductions in the Overtime Pay Act to 735,338 employes while the act covered 2,180,000 workers. Apparently it overlooked the fact that both War and Navy Departments were working a 48-hour week before the Overtime Act was enacted. The act required the Budget Bureau to make reductions to offset the longer work week and the committee denounced the orders as "ineffective." Federal employment hase increased 194,941 since the law.

7. Speedier liquidation of NYA, CCC, WPA, Bituminous Coal Division, Farm Security and other agencies abolished and cut down was demanded. The committee credited Congress with forcing what decreases had been made in Federal personnel.

Despite the fact that employment had dropped 131,000 in the past several months—practically all of it in the War Department—the committee admitted that agencies had orders with the Civil Service Commission for 180,000 people and if these orders had been filled the Federal population would have continued to soar.

The committee investigation also went into grade promotions and found "flagrant violations of good personnel management and a waste of thousands of dollars." It checked the 10 old-line departments to find that 20 per cent of the employes were given grade promotions in the six-month period from December, 1942, to May, 1943.

But in the newer agencies it discovered grade promotions had been given up to 47 per cent of the employes in the same period. This policy, the committee said, is detrimental to morale, hinders effective prosecution of the war, and encourages a high turnover rate. It called on the Civil Service Commission to produce a more equitable policy.

The highest percentage of promotions went to these agencies in this order: Central Administrative Services, Office of Strategic Services, Railroad Retirement, National Labor Relations, Lend Lease, Office of Scientific Research and Development, Government Printing Office, War Labor Board, Office of War Information, Censorship, NYA, WPB, OCD and Selective Service.

But the committee touched on rank-climbing young Army and Navy officers who have replaced civilians and it promises a fuller report very soon. Meantime, it has called on the military to supply the committee with the number of its officers and enlisted men between the ages of 18 and 35 who are in clerical and administrative jobs that aren't directly connected with the task forces, combat or training units. The report should be interesting.

Shoemakers To Have 50th Anniversary

"Religion in the home" is the recipe for a happy married life, according to Mr. and Mrs. J. Eugene Shoemaker of 5310 Belt rd. nw., who will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today.

"We always have tried to live a sane, honest life," says Shoemaker, who is one of the city's oldest piano tuners.

In his 54 years' experience here, he has tuned pianos in the living quarters of Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and Taft, and also instruments for many prominent pianists coming to Washington for concerts.

Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker were married November 22, 1893, in Luther Place Memorial Church by the late John G. Butler, founder and first pastor there. The Rev. L. Ralph Tabor, present pastor, was among the guests who called at the Shoemaker home yesterday to felicitate the couple.

Shoemaker has served as president and in other capacities on the council of Luther Place Church. He was born in Harrisburg, Pa., Mrs. Shoemaker is a native of Washington and one of the oldest living members of Luther Place Church.

The Shoemakers' daughter, Ruth, was one of the organizers and first members of the cast of "The Other Wise Man," nationally famous Christmas production presented annually at Luther Place Church.

SPARS Celebrate at Cathedral

American and Coast Guard flags flying, 600 SPARS marched into Washington Cathedral yesterday to attend services marking the opening of SPAR week—commemorating the first anniversary of the signing of legislation admitting women into the Coast Guard for the first time in its 152 years f service. The women were led by Lieut. Comdr. Dorothy C. Stratton, director of the Women's Reserve of the United States Coast Guard.

More than 600 SPARS yesterday participated in services at Washington Cathedral celebrating the first anniversary of legislation admitting women into the United States Coast Guard.

Early in the morning, the SPARS assembled at Massachusetts ave. and Woodley rd. nw., and marched into the north porch of the Cathedral to the music of their drum and bugle corps.

Then, from their seats in the nave and transept, they heard Chaplain Merritt F. Williams of the sunken carrier Wasp stress in his sermon the virtue of loyalty, discipline and enthusiasm in days of war and peace. Chaplain Williams, on leave from his post as canon of the Cathedral, is executive officer of the Navy Chaplains Training School at Williamsburg, Va.

The SPARS were led by Lieut. Comdr. Dorothy C. Stratton, director of the Women's Reserve of the United States Coast Guard.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will review the SPARS tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. on the Ellipse. There will be a dance in the evening at the Statler Hotel.

World Travail Ascribed to 'Soul Sickness'

Dr. Justin W. Nixon, prominent cleric of Rochester, N. Y., said yesterday that "the sickness of the modern soul is beyond the reach of statesmen."

Addressing an interfaith service at the Washington Cathedral, Dr. Nixon said this "soul sickness" is because "multitudes of men and women have ceased to believe in anything above and beyond themselves."

Dr. Nixon said the remedy for this "soul-sickness" must be "man's rediscovery of himself, the rediscovery of an inviolable or sacred core of being in his own nature."

Reminding the congregation that the Washington Cathedral crypt is Woodrow Wilson's resting place, Dr. Nixon called him "a man with a dream."

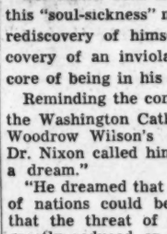
"He dreamed that a great society of nations could be so organized that the threat of war would be greatly reduced or banished. He said that we must so organize the world or war would come again. We chose not to believe him," he said.

Dr. Nixon is professor of Christian theology and ethics at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School. He was delegate to the Oxford Conference before the war, and has served as mediator in labor disputes.

The service was sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches and the Cathedral. Among the participants were the Rev. L. Ralph Tabor, pastor of the Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle; the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, and the Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Powell Made Bishop Of Marryland

More than 1300 worshipers in Baltimore's Cathedral of the Incarnation yesterday saw the Right Rev. Noble C. Powell, former dean of Washington Cathedral, installed as new Bishop of the Protesant Episcopal Diocese of Maryland.



DEAN POWELL

The service, attended by many Washington friends of Bishop Powell, was reportedly the first of its kind in the Free State diocese, since the Cathedral started in 1908, was not ready previously for installation ceremonies.

The 52-year-old prelate was escorted to the bishop's chair by the Rev. Arthur Chilton Powell and the Right Rev. Edward T. Helfenstein, retired bishop of the diocese. Bishop Powell was elected coadjutor bishop May 28, 1941, and named bishop on Bishop Helfenstein's retirement.

Bishop Powell was dean of Washington Cathedral and warden of its College of Preachers from February, 1937, until May, 1941. Previously, he had been chaplain of Episcopal students at the University of Virginia, rector of St. Paul's Memorial Church there, and pastor of Emmanuel Church, Baltimore. He was graduated from the University of Virginia in 1917 and from Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, in 1920.

Biddle Buys First Health Seals for 1943

Attorney General Francis Biddle purchased the first sheet of health stamps yesterday in a preview to the thirty-seventh annual Christmas seal drive, which opens today. Biddle urged citizens to support the drive.

The keynote was sounded yesterday by Brig. Gen. Charles C. Hillman, who disclosed that the number of persons who died from tuberculosis last year greatly exceeded this country's battle deaths.

General Hillman, one of three honorary vice presidents of the drive, is chief of professional services, Office of the Surgeon General. He recently made a tour of observation of medical problems in the Pacific.

This year, the seal depicting a little girl watching Santa Claus drive across the sky will be used by the tuberculosis organizations of England, Canada, Mexico and Brazil in their campaigns. The National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliates are conducting the sale in this country.

The District of Columbia affiliate, located at 1601 18th st. nw., announced that 95 per cent of the income from sales here will be used in the District, the remainder going to the national organization.

General Hillman said in a radio address:

"Last year 57,000 persons, many of whom might have made good soldiers or aided in war production, died of tuberculosis, a number greatly exceeding the toll of deaths from battle casualties in this war. The war itself is aiding in the fight against tuberculosis. Chest X-ray examinations, which every man and woman must have before entering the armed services, have discovered thousands of early cases which otherwise would have gone neglected. The services, as a result, have a low rate of tuberculosis, and public health has gained greatly."

Butter Supply Expected To Be Short

Meager supplies of butter for Washington for the next two or three weeks were forecast here yesterday by dairy products wholesalers.

While there has been some easing of the tight market of several weeks ago when practically no butter was obtainable, most stores are rationing it at the rate of half a pound to a customer while some stores are unable to get any at all.

Butter sold here is "imported" from the large dairy producing sections of the country. The shortage is attributed to huge Government purchases of dairy products and also the fact that dairy herds are producing less milk now than at any other time of the year.

When herd production increases, which normally can be expected by the first part of December, supplies of butter generally are expected to increase.

Coincidentally there also is a shortage of top grade, large eggs and most dealers are being forced to offer only the smaller ones.

This is caused by the fact that the older hens are "resting," and only pullet eggs are now moving to market. The heavier hens are due to start laying within the next week or two and thus this shortage will be eased also.

D. C. Stores Open Today Until 9 P. M.

Washington's stores will be open today from 12:30 to 9 p. m. in preparation for Thanksgiving and crowds of downtown shoppers who ordinarily throng the streets on Thursday night, will shop tonight instead.

Though the second Thanksgiving for America at war will be characterized principally by the spirit of sacrifice with Federal Government workers spending the day at their desks, it appeared yesterday that there will be ample turkey for District residents despite the large number of holiday fowls supplied to the armed forces.

Turkey will not be as abundant this year as on previous holidays, wholesale poultrymen said yesterday, but it is expected that there will be enough for those who hold the traditional view that a real Thanksgiving celebration must include golden brown meat and savory dressing.

Ample Civilian Supply

There was some concern as to whether too many turkeys might be sent to other Eastern cities with higher ceiling prices instead of the Capital but previous estimates of turkey stocks in the country placed at 485,000,000 pounds by the Department of Agriculture, with 35,000,000 pounds going to the armed forces indicated that an ample supply would remain for civilian consubption.

However, there appeared to be a definite shortage of cranberries and of canned cranberry delicacies. The dinner tables will also run low this year on lettuce and butter.

Announcement was made yesterday that Thursday will be a holiday for school children throughout the Capital and that offices in the District Government building will remain closed.

Special Church Services

Special services will be held in many Washington churches as worshippers express gratitude for brighter news from the world battle-front and pray for men in the armed forces.

Diplomatic representatives of the Latin-American countries will join with high ranking officials of the United States Government in attending the Thirty-fourth annual Pan-American Thanksgiving mass at St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of the Catholic University of America will deliver the sermon. The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore and Washington will be celebrant. Holiday services will also be held at other churches throughout the city.

Travel during the holiday period is expected to be heavy as servicemen come to this city and relatives of soldiers and sailors visit the posts. Servicemen in the Eastern Defense Command area, including the District, will feast on turkey at noon and a number of dances will be held by organizations interested in the soldiers' entertainment.

Poor children of the city will be guests at a traditional Thanksgiving dinner at the Children's Aid, Inc., 466 H st. sw. at noon on the holiday. Approximately 75 children who otherwise would not be able to enjoy a special dinner will be invited.

6 Taken for Scalping Football Tickets

By Joseph Paull

Approximately 300 persons crashed the gate yesterday at the Redskins-Chicago Bears football game while the scalper's price rose to $16.50 a ducat and police arrested six persons charged with violations of ticket-selling regulations.

Despite the black-market charge of five times the regular price, tickets from scalpers were hard to get. The box office announced three weeks ago the game was a sellout and even the scalpers had no tickets less than 15 minutes after the game began.

The gate-crashers pushed down the turnstiles at center field gate No. 2 and streamed through in a block until a heavy metal door was shoved down quickly to stop the ingress. Several persons narrowly escaped injury.

Arrested and Charged

All Negroes, those arrested and charged with violating an Internal Revenue code regulation prohibiting the sale of tickets without payment of tax or sale at a price above that marked on the ticket were: Kelly Miller, 47, of New York City; James T. Trice, 22, of 25 R st. nw.; Emmett M. Long, 21, of 212 S st. nw., 15-year-old and 16-year-old Negro youths.

Clarence M. Winchester, 33, of 407 T st. nw., was charged with selling tickets on a public space.

Bond in four cases was set at $300 and the juveniles were released in the custody of their parents.

Five Negro juveniles were arrested on charges of soliciting parking for a fee on public space in violation of the traffic code.

Scalpers Wary

The prevalent black-market activity in tickets was exposed last week by The Washington Post, and the vigilance of police appeared to have increased. While last Sunday, scalpers were numerous and operated openly, even haggling with customers within a few yards of police, this week they were fewer and refused to solicit sales.

Two WACS were seen going up an alley to buy tickets from a burley scalper. The sale was made and the women entered the ball park.

The price scale of the scalper was relatively uniform, averaging $15 for a box or good grandstand seat, $10 for a poorer grandstand, and $5 for the bleachers.

At 2004 Georgia ave. nw., opposite the ball park, tickets were sold legally for $16.50, with police and internal revenue agents on hand to keep the sales legal. This licensed ticket agency pays the 10 per cent Government tax on the tickets. Since a tax is also paid at the park box office, the Government made $1.80 a ducat.

Doing a Favor

A few servicemen were able to purchase tickets at the agency for the "bargain price" of $11 yesterday, with salesmen announcing they were "doing a favor." The operators would not go below that price.

One soldier, a private, with an eye missing, futilely begged to be sold two tickets for $5 each. He was told, "in these days you have to use good business strategy, just like in war."

Several scalpers were working off of parking lots, rather than on the street as before. They insisted customers go into a car with them before making a sale. Several persons were observed reselling tickets from season books.

A Choice Cut for the Axing

WOOD FOR THE WILLING—Vincent J. Heffernan, an attorney with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and his son, Jimmy, 17, a senior at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, were among the energetic woodchoppers who took advantage of the National Capital Parks Service's offer of free firewood

The family outings in Rock Creek Park yesterday were intended for warmth, not peasure, as the National Capital Parks Service declared an open season on wood for amateur choppers.

Several hundred wood hunters took over the lower section of the Melvin Hazen Parkway, first section of the park ever to be opened for timber gathering by private citizenry. Other sections will be opened in successive Sundays for the dual purpose of clearing the areas of dead timber and trees while providing fuel for homeowners.

Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks, dropped over in the morning to see how the work was going and was surprised to see such an enthusiastic turnout. He said they seemed to be "serious woodchoppers" although the majority appeared to be tackling an ax for the first time.

Family groups, working cooperatively, predominated, and most ignored the dead trees available for sawing in favor of lighter timber and brush. Park service men were on hand to give advice to the inexperienced.

Car trunk compartments, small trailer carts and wagons were utilized for carrying the booty away by the amateur woodsmen, who found two or three hours work with an ax preferable to handing out $21 for a cord of firewood.

Chaplain May Become D. C. Bishop

By Robert Tate Allen

Should Navy Chaplain Donald B. Aldrich be elected new Bishop of Washington at tomorrow's special diocesan convention, and accepts, the Navy will release him to carry on his bishopric duties, it was learned last night.

Chaplain Aldrich, now on leave from the Church of the Ascension, New York City, is one of the four whose names will be presented by the nominating committees, headed by Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts.

Other nominees whose names have been approved by the committee are the Very Rev. Angus Dun, dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.; the Rev. Dudley Scott Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's Church, Chicago, and the Very Rev. Sidney Edward Sweet, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis.

According to Capt. Robert D. Workman, Chief of Navy Chaplains, the Navy would put Chaplain Aldrich on an "inactive duty" status if he becomes new Bishop of Washington, automatically returning him to civilian life.

Precedents Cited

Dr. Arthur S. Devan, director of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains, with headquarters here, yesterday cited two cases where the Army released chaplains when they were elected bishop, because of the larger sphere of service that a bishop could render.

He referred to Bishop Oliver J. Hart, now Bishop of Pennsylvania, former chaplain at Fort Dix, N. J., and once rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, and Bishop Henry Page, whose diocese is in Michigan.

Dr. Devan told The Post that he could see no reason why the Navy might not follow the same policy in the case of Chaplain Aldrich.

Order of Procedure

If a bishop is elected at tomorrow's convention at the Church of St. Stephen and The Incarnation, and his acceptance is received, there is still another step before he actually becomes fourth bishop of Washington.

Notification of the election is sent to every diocese of the Episcopal Church in the United States and consent received from their bishops and standing committees before the election is ratified and a date set for the consecration of the bishop-elect.

If none of the nominees wins the required majorities among the lay and clerical deputies at the convention, nominations of Washington clergymen will be made and voted upon until a bishop is selected.

Bus Drivers' Action Awaits WLB Hearing

Drivers of the Arnold-operated bus lines in Arlington, whose wage dispute led to a work stoppage last Friday, are waiting for the WLB hearing tomorrow before deciding on their next move, the union head, O. B. Hiner, said yesterday.

Hiner, president of Local 1079 of the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, added, however, that he believed the bus operators would stand by the 10-day truce effected Saturday, whether the 14-cent per hour increase they seek appears assured.

The company, it was understood, does not consider the word "truce" in its understanding of the 10-day period mentioned by Hiner. Officers were under the impression last night the union had simply adjourned its meeting for the 10-day period. No "truce" proposals have been received by the company, it was said.

The Arnold company has offered a 5-cent boost but driers demand a larger increase over their present 71-cent wages (81 cents after the first year) to equalize their pay with that of other local transit companies.

Some of the drivers will be called on to attend the WLB hearing, scheduled for 10 a. m. tomorrow, but Hiner pointed out that the resulting bus tie-up will be negligible, since the hearing will be held after the rush hour. Eli Oliver will represent the operators at the hearing, and members of the union committee will attend.

The dispute, which inconvenienced about 40,000 commuters during the one-day walkout, will be aired before a three-man WLB panel, which will report to the regional WLB in Atlanta, Ga.

Hurts Keep 50,000 From Work Daily

More than 50,000 manufacturing workers are absent from their jobs every day because of industrial injuries, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported yesterday.

"Industrial injuries disabled approximately 69,000 manufactuing workers during August with a resulting loss of 1,300,000 man-days of production," she said. "This loss, which does not include any allowance for the continuing economic effect of the many deaths and permanent physical impairments, is equivalent to full time employment during August for 53,000 workers."

D. C. Officer, Missing, Figures in Tale of Heroic Squadron 26

The heroic story of Fighting Squadrqon 26, which made aviation history in its 15-month career by hammering the enemy on two fronts on opposite sides of the world, was disclosed yesterday by the Navy Department, coincident with the report that a native of Washington, now missing, had participated in the squadron's daring feats.

LIEUT POPE

Lieut. David H. Pope, USN, 26, of 5080 Lowell st. nw., who was reported missing in action July 18, received a Silver Star for his service with Squadron 26.

The Navy Department announced that Fighting 26, formed on May 15 of last year and disbanded September 4, was in the thick of the battle strafing troops and supply columns and blasting enemy planes when the United Nations pushed into North Africa.

When the United Nations' offensive against the Japanese in the Solomons opened on June 30, the Fighting 26 was in it again. The squadron's pilots shot down 26 Jap planes and scored at least that many "probables" in helping to drive the enemy from strategically vital regions, the Navy said.

Three members of the Fighting 26 failed to return from combat missions. One was killed in line of duty. Six of the squadron's members are now teaching the lessons of war which they learned in action to naval aviators at Sanford, Fla., at a station of the Naval Air Operational Training Command.

The squadron's members included Lieut. (j. g.) Maurice H. Lee, USNR, of Angier, N. C., a direct descendant of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Lieutenant Lee, a combat air patrol veteran who looked for a fight every day he was up and never found one, was downed for a month by maliaria. He is now teaching at Sanford.

Lieut. Comdr. Fitzhugh L. Palmer, jr., USN, of Emporia, Va., led his men to more than a score of victories and himself accounted for three enemy planes. He is now training officer at the Marine Air Base at Cherry Point, N. C.

Lieut. Pope, 26, born and reared in Washington, was graduated in 1934 from Western High School and in 1939 from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Pope, were notified August 11 that their son had been missing in action in the Pacific area since July 18.

After leaving the Academy, he went on active sea duty. In the early part of 1941, he received his flying training at Pensacola, Fla. He received a silver star in recognition of his services during the North African invasion.

Lieutenant Pope has a sister, Mrs. Richard T. Kreuzburg of Silver Spring, Md., and a brother, Lieut. Col. Phillip H. Pope of Camp Cooke, Calif.

Art of Pacific Air War Given To Sec. Knox

An exhibit of 101 paintings by artists who studied naval aviation life from preflight training to combat operations in the Pacific area was opened yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox at the National Gallery of Art.

S. DeWitt Clough, president of Abbott Laboratories which sponsored the painting project, presented the collection to Secretary Knox. A reception for the artists followed at the Carlton Hotel. The paintings will be sent later by the Navy to the Metropolitan Museum in New York and then throughout the entire country.

The artists were sent out as a group to make the pictorial record of wartime naval flying. They lived at the various naval air bases and quartered with the men to get first-hand experience which they portrayed in pictures. Captions for the paintings were supplied by the Bureau of Aeronautics.

Is that what he works at? Haunting houses?
Of course I don't work at haunting houses, little girl... I don't work at anything. I'm, er, retired. Not that all my humanitarian and scientific interests don't keep me occupied...
And at present I am engaged in a mission fraught with danger—an investigation of a curious psychic phenomenon in a haunted house.

1963,
On train and bus, would drown out a Calliope;
Conductors and porters deserve a lot of commendation
For putting up so patiently with tomorrow's generation.
(Twenty years hence, I wonder, will the world again be wacky?
Will these squalling youngsters then be wearing khaki?)

Babies en route to meet daddies of whom they are not aware,
Suggest drama with which there is none to compare,
Droll and yell as they may today on the train,
Beauty, brightness, perfection, tomorrow they will attain.

Of all the goodbyes spoken,
To those who depart or remain,
The advice of "Take it easy,"
Seems most apt and sane.

People who eat fried chicken and deviled eggs out of a box,
Are no longer of snooty passengers the laughing stocks, Ineed they are considered a lot smarter and finer,
Than the shortsighted, hungry ones who can't get in the diner.

Even a colonel or commodore
suffers of glamour a dearth,
When getting in and out of an upper birth.
In the brave new world I hope,
We will no longer have to survey,
The unpainted shacks down by the depot
That ruin a Pullmanite's day.

Passengers who ride in Pullmans may have things more exclusive,
But those who crowd on coaches find life more inclusive;
And those who ride vestibules and washrooms,
Will have a lot more to talk about when peace resumes.

How nice to be able to carry one's own grip
Without wondering if other people think you are a drip!
How fortunate to be husky enough to do without a red-cap,
When fat, aggressive gentlemen his services entrap!

Surely somewhere there is a city or town,
Where swarming crowds of people do not get you down.
What can be the destination on which they all converge?
Where are the human ant hills from which they all emerge?

Now that Americans have gotten thoroughly scrambled,
As over the U. S. A. they have rambled,
Perhaps we will have an end to
State and city bragging,
And of hinterlanders, Yankees, Southern belles have no more ragging.

The behavoir of people crowded together in unpleasant circumstance,
Inspires the encouraging thought that humanity still has a chance.

Emotional Upsets Cause of Indigestion, Says Medico

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

"If I were going to write a treatise on indigestion I would start out by writing a treatise on the nervous system."

This is an aphorism by Dr. J. Goodhart, one of the prominent specialists in the field of digestive diseases of another day. The idea it conveys will never cease to be true. Nobody is ever going to find a powder to cure acid dyspepsia permanently.

Nobody is ever going to invent a stomach tube which will work infallibly on all stomach cases. Nobody is ever going to invent some kind of an enema which fixes things up in one shot. Nobody, in short, is going to be able to neglect the man and treat only his stomach or bowels.

Rare Experiences

Oh, to be sure there are a few conditions in the abdomen that yield to physical measures alone. Every once in a while you find an ulcer that is nothing but an ulcer, that doesn't seem to be attached to a man and you can cure that with the Sippy treatment.

Every once in a while a surgeon can remove an infected appendix and doesn't have to call the Christian Science practitioner in afterward. Every once in a while you find a fine pancreatic cyst or hepatoma. But any practitioner will tell you these are rare experiences.

Most forms of indigestion are due to emotional upsets. Indeed most forms of heart disease, uterine disease, kidney disease—every other organ you can name—are due to emotional disturbances. That is the truth that is at the bottom of Christian Science. In practice it works well. I use it, every doctor uses it every day.

Difficult Subject

This is a complicated and difficult subject to explain. Of course, there is such a thing as organic disease—cancer, tuberculosis, gallstones, measles, etc. And they can and must be treated with organic remedies. But most adult patients (children escape, thank heaven) are sick partly or wholly because they think they are sick. And nine-tenths of any doctor's practice is made up of this group. If he treats them entirely from the organic standpoint he fails.

Here are some other aphorisms taken like Dr. Goodhart's from Dr. W. C. Alvarez's volumine, "Nervous Indigestion and Pain."

"When a woman thinks she is ill when she is not, then indeed she is very ill."

"The practice of medicine is an art not a trade, a calling, not a business. It is a calling in which your heart will be equally exercised with your head. Often the best part of your work will have nothing to do with potions and powders, but with the exercise of the strong upon the weak, the righteousness upon the wicked, of the wise upon the foolish." Sir William Osler.

Reduce Pressing Pother

It is advisable to baste pleats in place when laundering slip covers. The bastings can be pulled out after the covers have been pressed. Dry slip covers as quickly as possible after they have been laundered.

When Standing in the Rain

On wet days, protect your wool clothes with an umbrella or raincoat. A soaked wool coat is seldom the same again. If wool clothes get wet or muddy, dry them slowly at room warmth—never close to a stove or radiator. When dry, brush clean.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man's Second Marriage Was Saved When Wife Induced Him to Place His 'Problem' Son, 14, In Boarding School; But In-Laws Censure Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I hope you will be able to clarify for me a rather touchy (to say the least) personal problem. Two years ago, I married a man whom I loved and admired very much; and still do. I was 31, and my husband 15 years my senior. The only fly in the ointment was this—My husband had a son by a previous marriage, which had ended in divorce because of incompatibility. The boy was 12 at the time of our marriage, and I accepted the fact that he had to live with us, as his mother apparently felt no love or responsibility toward him, and hadn't even attempted to see him in five or six years.

He was not the sort of boy I would have chosen for a son,—as he had a large, sloppy body; was sulky and whiney when things didn't go his way; and had been kept back in school because of slow mentality. I was sorry for the boy and felt that I could at least try to help him. I tried to supervise his studies and improve his speech and manners, but all my efforts met with obstinate resistance. Whereas he professed great love for me, he resented my exercising the slightest authority over him. I met all his physical needs, in the way of food, clothes, etc.; but he never performed one errand willingly for me; although I asked very little of him, far less than I would have expected of my own child.

Things reached a point where I realized something had to be done. The love I had for my husband was being worn very thin. Although he was quite strict with the boy,—where his own ideas of right or wrong, or his own convenience, were concerned,—he would fly to the boy's defense at the slightest hint of criticism from someone else. He upheld the boy in situations where, if I had been the boy's real mother, he certainly would have upheld me. I saw I had a choice of either improving our marriage or calling it off. I finally was able to persuade my husband to put the boy in school,—which, I realize now, didn't take much persuading.

Boy Seems Satisfied With New Arrangement

THE RESULTS are better than I ever hoped for. My husband is like a new man,—happy, his old attractive self, and looks 10 years younger. I feel like a new woman, and have regained my former enthusiastic outlook on life. From all reports, the boy seems to be thoroughly enjoying the school,—so he is certainly not suffering from the change. I don't know if there has been any real improvement in his personality as yet; but if he is happy, that is something, as he had some trouble getting along with other children.

You may wonder why I am writing to you, if I have solved my problem. This is why: I have been very severely criticized by members of my husband's family, who accuse me of trying to deprive the boy of his father's love. Do you think the boy should be under his father's personal supervision? I want to do what is right. But I know if I try to live under the same roof with father and son, peace and contentment will fly out the window.

A. M. S.

Parents Should Know How Child Is Faring

DEAR A. M. S.: In the event you and your husband know the boarding school arrangement is benefiting the boy to some degree, in addition to harmonizing the marital relationship,—then it doesn't matter in the least what your husband's relatives think about the plan. And it is with the point of knowing just how the boy is faring that you should be most conscientiously concerned. When you are keeping abreast of accurate information on that score, and charting your parental course to insure him the smoothest possible sailing, you will be properly discharging your moral and parental obligations to the lad,—and may serenely, with good conscience, ignore the off-stage critics.

APROPOS of your desire to do what is right, it seems advisable to draw your attention to two significant statements in the foregoing letter. 1. "From all reports, the boy seems to be thoroughly enjoying the school." And 2. "I don't know if there has been any real improvement in his personality as yet; but IF he is happy, that is something. . . ." These remarks leave a definite impression that you are not keeping in commendably close touch with the youngster, so as to know for yourselves what the true facts of his reaction are; but rather contenting yourselves, far too readily, with pleasant propaganda issued by the school, such as encourages you to believe what you devoutly wish to be true.

To Keep Hands Clean, Check Boy's Progress

WHEN PARENTS transplant a child to, and maintain him in, a boarding school environment, they have a duty,—recognized by good schools,—to visit him regularly and see at first-hand whether he is thriving or languishing; and why. Parents who neglect that duty are censurable and suspect; and so are the schools (if any there be) that discourage such interest on the part of parents. The good schools as a rule set aside one or two "visiting days" per month for parents,—when tea is served and all rooms are open for inspection. And in addition, they sanction impromptu calls from parents on other days,—to see the child, that is, even though the headmaster may not be available for interview on short notice; nor the parent privileged to visit the dormitory.

SO, TO SUM UP: Altruistic and not sentimental considerations should determine your plan of care for the boy. According to your testimony, he was badly adjusted to the home environment; and his maladjustment demoralized his father and you, thus worsening a situation with which he was already in conflict. If he is better adjusted to the school environment, and disposed to prefer it, you have achieved a three-fold good in placing him there. And wherever he lives, at parental expense, he may have "personal supervision" or its equivalent from the parent who is sufficiently interested to check on and authoritatively promote his welfare. But, to repeat: Your duty is to know how he fares; and to see that he fares well. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Mrs. Roosevelt Loses Weight By Means of Calories, Travel

By Ida Jean Kain

As you may have noticed, our First Lady has lost weight. I saw her at a meeting of the New York Newspaperwomen's Club recently when she gave an informal, off-the-record account of her 26,000-mile trip to visit our soldiers.

I can't tell you about the trip, but I believe she would want the mothers here to know that their boys are making themselves right at home in the homes of the Australians and New Zealanders and the people of the other lands where they are stationed. The people in those countries seem to genuinely love our boys. It is not from a sense of obligation. It is the real thing.

And I can tell you Mrs. Roosevelt reduced. She was gracious enough to tell me how she did it. In all, she has taken off 30 pounds. She lost 20 before starting her trip, by cutting down to a 1000-calorie balanced diet, plus a vitamin concentrate. She said she didn't miss a thing from her menus, but then she has too much on her mind to think very much about food. I presume she lost the other 10 pounds through sheer wear and tear on the battlefields.

If I had been her dietitian, I wouldn't have been quite so strict. I would have kept her calories at about 1500 a day which would be about one-third less than her normal requirement. And I would have urged a few simple calithenics. When she could have managed the time to take them is something else again!

However, Mrs. Roosevelt believes it is her lack of exercise that makes her weight climb. You might suppose she would get plenty running around the world. She covers a lot of territory and her day stretches over long hours, but there is very little exercise connected with her activities.

When at the White House, she has one conference after another, and there is no chance to get out and walk. When she goes out, it is on official business and she has to ride. Often a lunch, dinner, or at least, a tea, is waiting at the end of the ride. All the exercise she gets is in handshaking and, naturally, she is expected to eat.

Since losing weight, Mrs. Roosevelt says she feels perfectly fine—and that after a 26,000-mile jaunt, too! What energy!

WACs Write GI Songs

By Margaret Kernodle
Associated Press Features Writer

"Are your beds made tight?
"Are your shoes lined right?
"Check on these and chase those WACky gigs away."

WAC songs like that began when the Army women started marching at Fort Des Moines, Iowa in 1942 and Gen. Don C. Faith reminded them that a singing army is a winning army. The WACs have been singing ever since.

Now they're to have their own songbook. Some songs have WAC words set to tunes doughboys have made popular. WACs have tapped out both tunes and words to others.

At least one WAC chorus has sung on a national network. Other all-WAC or WAC-soldier choruses prove the Army women are singing soldiers.

They like to be in Army shows or WAC shows, parade their own drum and bugle corps, play in their own orchestras and bands, even go to the Army band school at Fort Myer, Va. They have company songs and songs for their Army bases. They write rollicking marching music or love lyrics about WACs.

One WAC, 23-year-old Capt. Ruby Jane Douglass of Coffeeville, Kans., has published three songs which have been on the air. She's compiling the WAC songbook. She's a graduate of Oklahoma University with a music degree, has supervised school music at Bristow, Okla. She also directed WAC musicals and can play the piano, organ or violin and beat the drums.

One of her songs goes like this:

I fell in love with a WACky in Khaki;
She is the girl of my dreams.
See how I hesitate—
I cannot concentrate.
Why can't I make her mine?
I lost my heart to that WACky in Khaki.

She enters all my schemes.
Though I romanticise,
She only yawns and sighs.
WACkys turn in at nine.
Though her hand is no-man's land,
When she casts her spell
My heart turns a right about face,
But her heart's AWOL.

Here are some other WAC songs:

Any Gigs Today?

(Tune: "Any Bonds Today?" From Daytona Beach WAC songbook.)

Are your shoes lined right,
Are your beds made tight,
And without delay?
Cleaning and shining done?
All of your errands run?
Check on these and chase those WACky gigs away.

("Gigs" are Army talk for penalties.)

The Hut 2-3-4 Blues

(Tune: Sugar Blues.)

I've got those hut 2-3-4 blues
Walking around in G. I. shoes,
By the right flank march, to the left march.
To the rear march, count
cadence
I've got those hut 2-3-4 blues.

Another song, nameless, is sung to the tune of "Smiles."

There are WAVEs, the women's Navy,
There are WIREs, the radio.
There are WAFs, that help the country's air corps,
And the SPARs, the Coast
Guard, we all know.
The Marines, too, have a corps of women,
But there's one corps better than them all.
They're the WACs the girls who wear the khaki,
That have answered the Army's call.

Another to the tune of "Solomon Levi:"

They said we'd make good soldier girls
If we would volunteer
But we'll make darn good kitchen maids
When we get out of here.
We're refugees from society.
We joined to win the war,
And all we got at Oglethorpe
Were classes and drills galore.
Hut, 2-3-4: Hut, 2-3-4.

G. I. Song

(By June Wohrman and Mary J. Nissley.)

Cleaned her clothes and buttered her bread;
And her favorite dress was red.
Oh me! Oh my!
That ain't G. I.!

Then she came to camp one day,
Quickly learned the WACy way,—
Underwear cafe au lait.

Hat and shoes and skirts don't fit;
Your girdle bunches where you sit.
Come on rookies, you can't quit.
Just heave a high
And be G. I.

Typhoid shots may knock you out!
All day long you'll hear FALL
OUT!
Give a grin and loudly shout,
Oh me, oh my,
Gotta be G. I.

In the mess hall she now stands.
Buried 'neath the pots and pans,
Getting pretty dishpan hands
Oh me, oh my!
Gotta be G. I.

Oklahoma Society Plans 2d Dance, Other Activities

The Oklahoma State Society will hold its second dance of the season Wednesday from 9 to 12 p. m. at the Shoreham. Square dancing and congas with leaders will be featured.

The floor show will include Hensley's dance team, Rita Johnson, singer and tap dancer; Nancy Hanck, acrobatic dancer; Mildred Kikta, blues singer, and Nellie Boyd, singer from Holdenville, Okla.

Oklahoma servicemen and women stationed in and near the city will be special guests. Mrs. Della Kuntz, Stoneleigh Court Apartments, is committee chairman.

Oklahomans also are starting some new programs, in addition to their regular dances. Elgin Groseclose is forming a special activities committee to get suggestions and make plans. Mrs. May Frank Rhoads will be secretary of a new Oklahoma Society Service Bureau which will arrange for Sunday get-togethers of State people and servicemen, help Oklahomans get in touch with each other, and arrange to entertain wounded soldiers in members' homes. The society also will be one of the sponsors of the United Nations Forum lecture series beginning in Constitution Hall November 22.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Many a mother looks back with dismay at the meager diet she fed her baby and sees now, with added experience, the relation between what he ate and the way he acted.

Mrs. W. F. T. admits that until she put her boy on chopped foods he had been eating and gaining poorly and that this one change inspired him to eat better and to gain 2 pounds in three months. "He had been slow in teething," she writes, "but after that his teeth shot in.

"What obedience can I expect now? A little switch will keep him from running away, but he is only 16 months and I don't want to keep using it. I have a long, inclosed porch, but he isn't interested in toy airplanes and cars and wants to run out. He is such an active child, I suppose that is the trouble."

It is right that you should be disturbed at use of a switch on such a tiny child. From now on the child is going to be guilty of constant misdemeanors (from the parent's standpoint, of course), and so punishments would be almost continuous. That is no way to teach a child how to live in his own environment.

You can expect that most of the time from now on you will be explaining to him that this is Mommy's or that is Daddy's and this wonderful piece of wood or tin is baby's very own to play with all he wishes! You're going to be picking him out of danger spots and extracting precious objects from his clutching, greedy fingers. You'll be wise if you make action count and minimize the words. And as for switches, mark them off. Everything you do to frustrate the child's own desire is punishment enough.

Keep him on the porch where he will be safe, but give him action toys to keep him happy. Heavy blocks to lug about as well as large, stuffed animals, a swing, a wagon and riding toy, even a small box of sand in one corner. These, rather than small toys, well keep him from wanting to run away.

Our leaflets, "Early Discipline" and "Wise Management of the Child," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Washington Post.

Senator Barkley's Birthday Is Gay Event at Stotesbury Home

Several Hundred Guests Are Welcomed At Annual Party for Kentucky Statesman

"Happy birthday, Senator!"

This was repeated dozens of times yesterday as Senator Alben Barkley stood to welcome hundreds of guests at his birthday party given by Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury and her son, James H. R. Cromwell, at Mrs. Stotesbury's handsome home on Foxhall rd.

Truth is, Senator Barkley will be 66 years old on Wednesday, but Mrs. Stotesbury and her son "jumped the gun" for this fete which has come to be an annual celebration for both the hostess and the guest of honor.

Senator Barkley probably has more birthday celebrations in one year than anyone you could name. Several weeks ago his daughter, Mrs. Douglas MacArthur 2d, gave him a birthday party, getting together some of her friends, some of his for a luncheon up at the Capitol, and when Wednesday comes along there's going to be another festivity, this a strictly family affair, with Senator and Mrs. Barkley's daughter, Mrs. MacArthur, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Max Truitt in the gathering.

Guests Lured To Terrace

Yesterday's event—it began at 6 and went on 'til—was gay from start to finish. A sort of three-way party, the 500 guests included many of the Senator's colleagues from up on "the Hill;" a wide circle of friends of the hostess, and a number of her daughter's, Mrs. Lionel Atwill's, special group.

The day, more like May than November, lured guests from the spacious drawing rooms to the terrace and a twilight scene with the twinkling lights of Washington far away.

It's rare that Mrs. Stotesbury makes an appearance at a party these days, but she lingered on through the hours of 6 to 8, enjoying her own party as much as her guests. Friends of Mrs. Barkley were giving her a real welcome, too, after an absence of almost two years spent at her home in Paducah.

The Senator's daughters, "Wahwee" MacArthur, Mrs. Max Truitt, and Mr. Truitt, were here, there and everywhere, and others glimpsed in the throng were Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Justice Frank Murphy, Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostromo, the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb with Mrs. Holcomb.

Most of Senate And House There

Officialdom turned out in force on this occasion with at least two-thirds of the Senate accounted for and almost that many from the House. Senator Theodore Green and Senator Arthur Capper were there and also, Senator and Mrs. Burnet Maybank. Representative and Mrs. Albert Thomas, Representative and Mrs. Ewing Thomason, Representative Hamilton Fish who usually has little time for frivolities came with Mrs. Fish; former Gov. O. Max Gardner and Mrs. Gardner were the center of friendly groups and still others were Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, Miss Pauletta Guffey, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey, Major Fred Roy, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner.

Gold braid was much in evidence at this party trimming the Navy blue uniforms of Admiral Arthur Hepburn, Rear Admiral Herbert S. Howard who had Mrs. Howard and their daughter with them; Admiral Arthur Davis, and Admiral Clark H. Woodward, accompanied by Mrs. Woodward.

And then—Mrs. Delos Emmons, wife of the general; Mrs. Lister Hill, wife of the Senator; Mme. Quezon, wife of the President of the Philippines;

Mrs. Edward Treglown, Baron and Barones Stackelberg, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Price, Mrs. J. T. H. Mitchell and Miss Anne Mitchell, Mrs. Katherine Byron, Pierre Bedard and Hampson Gary.

Another party on the calendar yesterday was the buffet supper given by Mrs. Katharine Byron in honor of the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun and the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan.

Among others in the group were Senator George Radcliffe, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, Miquel Elizalde, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Murphy, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson.

Also, Mrs. Edward LeBoutillier of Radnor, Pa., cousin of the late Representative Byron, and Mr. and Mrs. David Byron of Maryland, brother and sister-in-law of the late Representative Byron.

Former Chilean Ambassador Renews Old Friendships Here

Eduardo Vivot, Another Visitor, Once Served on Argentine Embassy Staff

By Marie McNair

The hours are slipping pleasantly by in reunion with old friends for Don Miguel Cruchaga, former Chilean Ambassador to Washington and Dr. Eduardo Vivot, who served as Second Secretary of the Argentine Embassy here almost a dozen years ago and has just been appointed Minister to Canada.

Senor Cruchaga was sent as Ambassador to the United States, first in 1926, again in 1932. Regarded as one of Chile's most brilliant statesmen, Senor Cruchaga has held any number of important posts. He's a former minister of foreign affairs, former president of the Senate and now one of its outstanding members. With Senator Cruchaga on this trip is his brother-in-law, Jorge Matte, who also is remembered here from former visits and whose record in the service of his country equals in accomplishments that of Senator Cruchaga. Senor Matte, too, once held the portfolio of minister of foreign affairs. Moreover, he has been minister of finance, of the army and navy, and to him goes much of the credit for the establishing of Chile's air force. It was Senor Matte who recognized the growing importance of the airplane and brought about the founding of training schools for aviators.

Dr. Vivot on Way to Canada

When Dr. Vivot was last in this town of ours, he was Second Secretary of the Argentine Embassy, and was later promoted to first secretary. That was nine years ago, to be exact, and he was a young and happy bachelor. I forgot to inquire about his marital status, or if he is still "whole heart and fancy free." At any rate, no Senora accompanies him to Washington. Since those golden days of a decade ago, Dr. Vivot has gone far in the diplomatic field. Before his appointment to Ottawa he had been serving as chief of protocol.

There's no glamour attached to the job of "student nurse." There is, however, a great feeling of satisfaction in knowing that what you are learning is of vital use in the world today. If you wish "full particulars" about the job ask Miss Maria-Joao de Bianchi, daughter of the Portuguese Minister Dr. Joao Antonio de Bianchi, who is a student at the Georgetown University School of Nursing.

Thirty-four new-born babies to handle is nothing in the life of young Maria. She takes over the night shift without a murmur, arrives home at 7 in the morning, snatches a few minutes sleep and is up again for morning classes. Miss de Bianchi, born with the proverbial silver spoon, had no thought of a career in her pretty head until the world went suddenly topsy-turvy. Now she hopes that one day she can go home to Portugal and establish training schools for nurses on a pattern similar to those in this country.

DO YOU KNOW:

That Col. Jorge Sarmiento, Military Attache of the Peruvian Embassy, was a six-goal polo man before the war put an end to the sport.

That Col. Emmanuel Lombard, Military Attache of the French Embassy, until the Vichy regime, when he submitted his resignation, has been promoted to full general and is fighting somewhere overseas.

That Senora de Caceras, wife of the Honduran Ambassador, is wearing an exquisite set of earrings, necklace and bracelets of intricately engraved silver which she bought in Mexico when she visited there last summer.

That the bouquet of violets centered with a red rose which Mme. Rybar, wife of the Counselor of the Yugoslav Embassy held during her wedding anniversary reception on Wednesday, held a special bit of sentiment. They were sent to her by Dr. Rybar and were his mother's favorite flowers.

That at the same party a set of silver cups arrived from the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun, as a first anniversary gift to the Rybars.

Peruvian Consul To Live in Capital

Adhemar Montagne, newly appointed Peruvian Counsul in Baltimore, will make his home in Washington and has taken a house at 1466 Odgen st.

Senora de Montagne and their young daughter are with him.

Senor Montagne succeeds the late Carlos Mackenhie, father of Carlos Mackenhie, First Secretary of the Peruvian Embassy, who is on leave from his post here and is serving as Charge d'Affaires of Peru in Nicaragua.

Reception Planned

The American Friends of Albania have issued invitations for a reception on Sunday, November 28 to celebrate Independence Day of Albania. The fete will be held at the home of Mrs. Rosamond Walling Tirana at 3500 Thirty Fifth Street.

Charlotte Chapin Is Engaged to Clark McLain, USA

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chapin of New Hope, Pa., and Washington announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte, to Air Cadet Clark McLain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. McLain of Los Angeles, Calif.

Miss Chapin attended Vassar College and San Marcos University in Lima, Peru. She is the granddaughter of Dr. Henry Van Dyke. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Occidental University and is now stationed at the Waco, Tex., Army Bombing School. The wedding will take place in the near future.

Servicemen to Be Feted on Thanksgiving

A score of parties have been arranged for servicemen for Thanksgiving Day under the auspices of the Home Hospitality Committee of which Mrs. Martin Vogel is chairman.

Among those who will entertain on Thanksgiving with turkey and all the "fixins" will be Mrs. Francis Biddle, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Bernard Van Rensselaer, Mrs. David Wells, Mrs. Charles Halcomb, Mrs. George Becker, Mrs. E. H. Parry, Miss Mary B. Adams, Miss Mary Rohman, Miss Bonita Tarpley, Miss Audrey Wilen and Miss Mary Ennis.

Lady Dixon, wife of the Australian Minister, has planned a party at the Australian Legation for Saturday evening, November 27; Mrs. Lister Hill, wife of Senator Hill, entertained yesterday and Miss Lorraine Dargle and Miss Hazel Epley were hostesses Saturday evening.

At a recent meeting of the committee Mrs. Louise Atwill was named cochairman with Mrs. Vogel on the committee for entertaining convalescent servicemen. Mrs. Paul Bartlett spoke on plans for convalescent entertainment; Miss Margaret Lower, field director at Walter Reed Hospital, spoke on the need for activities for convalescents and Mrs. Gertrude Saltzman, welfare director at Arlington Signal Corps Station, made a plea for the Government girls.

Mrs. Georgette Howard To Speak Today

Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, who has just returned from New York, where she was the guest of Mrs. Wilbur M. Alling while attending the Herald Tribune Forum, will give a report on the conference at her weekly lecture this morning at 11:30 at Sulgrave Club.

Her series of talks on current topics and personalities in the news will continue to be a Monday morning feature throughout the winter months.

Phyllis Bollinger Becomes Bride of Lieutenant Cowan

Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Bollinger of Calvert Hills, College Park, Md., announce the marriage of their daughter, Phyllis Geraldine, to Lieut. Andrew Cowan on November 14 at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Keith Custis officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Maryland in the 1939 class and received her master's degree from the University of Iowa in 1940. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta Sorority and of Phi Kappa Phi honorary fraternity. She is at present with the Maritime Commission. Lieutenant Cowan has been stationed at Fort Belvoir, where he received his commission in the Engineer Corps. After the war the couple will make their home in Chicago, where the bridegroom will be associated in business with his father.

DON'T MISS
NAN BLACKSTONE
TIMES-HERALD WASHINGTON, D. C.
Peter Carter Says
Nan Blakstone, who is now panicking customers at Olmsted's, has had much written about her. She should have. Nan is a great actress with talented fingers for a piano. Her emotions are quicksilver—one time excessively gay—minutes later poignant, dramatic with great warmth and depth. There is an intensity of feeling there that carries an audience along with her. And—how she plays with her public—a bit of a rib—a delicate slap (when needed), a deep chuckle and a low "darling" to a favored few. One feels that Nan belongs to them, but also that they belong to Nan. She is vital, with a dominant power that has an insidious hypnotism and she is so utterly herself that it is like a breeze in a sultry room.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

Between Morton Downey's opening at the Statler tonight and the Club Jalna's debut on Wednesday, it's going to be a crashing week. Both events are super-unmissable all bistro goers ambitious to retain their standing in cafe society.

"IF I WERE ONLY TWO WOMEN" moans Nan Blakstone at Olmsted's. It seems that Olmsted's have an option on holding Nan over and are going to exercise it, b'gum! And, somehow, she's also been booked at Chicago's Colony Club for the same period . . . Nan's two stabbingly dramatic numbers, "Fantasy in Olive Drab" and "Incident in Blue" were written by her husband, Ronald Gerard, who says they're transcriptions from life in 1943. He's now working on another one, "Voyage Into Courage," which will celebrate the Merchant Marine service.

FLOOR SHOWS COMING UP. It's the "Thanksgiving Revue" at the Lotus today. Musical comedy doings by Loretta and Novarro, sultry dances by Astra Andre, tricks on rollers by the Silver Due. Casino Royal's new show, opening tonight, is headed by steppers Don and Russell, with Maury Warner as the singing emcee and Margie Robbins doing acrodancing with a flavor of the exotic . . . The Balalaika's "Caucasian Revue" continues to bound along with Slavic zest, but Mischa Bess is already trimming up a new show to open in a few days.

MORTON DOWNEY, nationally noted singer who opens tonight in the Embassy Room of the Statler Hotel

Joe Mass, coowner of Treasure Island, is proud and happy over his 19-year-old soldier brother, Louis, recently decorated for bravery in the red hell of the Salerno landing.

HUGE TOPAZES are being favored by beauteous nitery stars. Josephine Houston, now at the Troika, wears a monster topaz ring with matching earrings and a heart-shaped pendant designed by Paul Flato . . . Ruth Petty of the big blue eyes and matching voice, now at Paul Young's, has a tremendous topaz ring with sapphire baguettes. It's a gift from her b. f., Cress Courtney, booker of big-name bands. She expects matching earrings any minute.

GOOD DEED DEPARTMENT. Fred Johansen, owner of the Silver Fox, is having 200 Christmas boxes prepared for boys at the Naval Hospital . . . Harmonica player Ed Harris of the Neptune Room and his partner, Rose Allen, are getting together all the harmonicas they can lay their hands on to send overseas. It seems that the soldiers get an awful lot of fun out of harmonicas.

Mary La Marr, always one of Washington's loveliest, is back at the Lounge Riviera with Pete Macias' band. She's been on tour with Bob Allen's orchestra.

BANDSTAND BEATS. Bill Grasick's band at the Metronome Room has a new rumba elegantly entitled "Who Threw the Overalls in Mrs. Gonzales' Chile Con Carne?". It's the brain child of trumpeter Hal Loomis. . . . La Conga has a sharp new band headed by Bill Abernethy. . . . The Carlton's Harold Nagel introduced "Time Was" and "Say, Si Si" to American radio listeners when he was with NBC. . . . Eddie Fogel, young maestro of the Dubonnet Room, once played trumpet in the National Guard. . . . Washie Bratcher has postponed his Miss All States contest at the Washington Hotel for a few weeks.

VOCALIZING LADS AND GIRLS. Carole Page of the Mayflower Lounge has joined the Victory Girls who give parties for convalescents at Walter Reed and the Naval Hospitals, also stage dances for servicemen. . . . Maestro Carr van Sickler of the Madrillon is looking for a new boy singer. Because Bob Seidel is going with Sonny Dunham's band in Miami.

Postwar Business

By Roger W. Babson

Pentup Demands Presage Boom

The accuracy of any forecasts for 1944 business depends upon whether we remain at war or whether hostilities in either of the two principal theaters suddenly cease. This possibility, I will not now discuss, but will do so in my Annual 1944 Forecast. We can be certain now, however, of only one thing, namely, that the war will end some day and our side shall win. With this in mind and with no time factor involved, I wish to comment upon a few special situations.

Travel in general and long-distance motoring have been set aside now for some time. The deferred travel desires on the part of the general public are reaching a high point. With the release of wartime pressure, with Pullman berths and plane seats again available and with the freeing of hotels and resorts by the military, the general public will start going places.

Many businessmen are planning trips abroad by boat or plane to tie together once more the loose ends of their foreign interests. We are no longer an isolated nation. Our future is bound up with conditions in many other countries of the world. To have first-hand knowledge of what is happening in other countries will become a familiar part of our business techniques. I am bullish on travel agencies, on the sale of travelers' checks, on the resort business and on other lines allied to the great industry of public travel.

Certain war-industry areas in which housing is now at a premium may be liquidated at the war's end. Homes there may then be a drug on the market. However, the construction of new homes in other sections has long been stopped. Architects, contractors, supply companies and others interested in this field should look forward to considerable activity.

Whether the individual builds a new house, rents a new apartment, buys a new automobile, a new radio or travels will be based upon his purchasing power. For a while at least, this will be far greater than in prewar days, due to accumulated savings. As these are spent rather than saved, there will be a large demand for goods. This is particularly true of luxury and semiluxury items. Retail outlets, inactive during the war will take on a new importance.

Doctors, lawyers, beauty parlor operators, specialty shop owners, gas station attendants and all who serve the requirements of the individual should be very busy. This especially applies to those businesses which have suffered during the war, due to priorities, price fixing and rationing. They should have a good comeback.

Household servants will again be plentiful. They may, however, find themselves out of luck. Many families have been getting along without help. The trend of postwar living will be toward simplification aided by new and efficient household devices. The appliance business should be very active. This offers great opportunities in manufacturing and in distribution.

I now see no signs of any slackening. The holiday trade will be good. The trend seems toward larger outlets. Concentrated shopping areas may be broken up. New suburban stores will be opened. This will avoid traffic congestion bound to be terrible. The trend in real estate developments may also head toward the suburbs and actual countryside. This ties in with our coming simpler form of living

Good retailers are always progressive. They were among the first to adopt the telephone and electric lights and to use motor vehicles for deliveries. They have an inexhaustible clientele. More than any group they mold our thoughts, lives and habits. They should continue to keep ahead of the times. The entire retail picture is most interesting. It offers many opportunities for merchants and investors.

Considerable research work is being done of an industrial and scientific nature to develop new products and bring together inventors and manufacturers. It is necessary to supply retail and industrial markets with new gadgets. Their production may take the place of a large part of our present output of war materials. Industry is paying more attention to research departments today than ever before. The scientist, whatever his specialty, will be the "great man" of our postwar era.

Merchandising these new products will require large advertising campaigns. Newspapers, magazines and other forms of communicative media will be in demand. More people will be employed in distributive work. Sidetracked sales managers will again build up sales forces. We need, however, lower distribution costs. The costs of selling, not of manufacturing, have kept up the prices of retail goods. The reduction of such costs is becoming, however, a spiritual rather than an economic problem. I, therefore, pray that the postwar era will be accompanied by a return to religion.

NAM Says Work To Cost 15 Billion Awaits War's End

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Nov. 21.—The postwar committee of the National Association of Manufacturers said today that there would be no need for a huge Federal works program after the war, estimating that "actually needed" projects would furnish employment for 6,500,000 persons the first 18 months of peace on construction jobs totaling 15 billion dollars.

The report said there probably would be an increase in prefabricated houses, but that it would be so gradual it would not delay immediate construction of other types.

It suggested communities planning postwar public works schedule their road building projects first, since there may be a delay in obtaining machinery and materials necessary for building.

D. C. Churches Get Behind Salvage Drive

Leaders in churches throughout the city have pledged their support to the two-week drive for discarded clothing and rags which will begin today and continue through December 4.

Clothing and rags are needed for both domestic and foreign uses, including the rehabilitation of liberated peoples abroad, relief for home needy and war purposes, the District of Columbia Salvage Committee explained yesterday. But only discarded clothing, no longer of use to owners, is wanted.

Churches will act as depositories for the salvage contributions, and have set up collection hours and depots under direction of their women's groups.

Canon W. Curtis Draper, jr., of the Washington Cathedral stated: "We are being asked to give not what we need but the wearable clothing and rags that we can conveniently do without. The churches can help in this program to their own advantage both materially and spiritually and to the succor of those who cannot help themselves. Surely this is our great opportunity."

Pascagoula Field Hearings Set For December 16

The first field hearings of the Senate subcommittee on wartime health and education will be held December 16 to 18 in Pascagoula, Miss., Senator Claude Pepper, the chairman, announced yesterday. The hearing will be preceded by a four-week investigation by staff investigators.

From the study the committee will "draw a national pattern of the Nation's state of wartime health," Pepper said, and establish facts which will be the basis of committee recommendations for remedial measures.

Pascagoula is a production center which has grown almost overnight from a small community to a crowded boom town. It presents most of the wartime problems of the typical congested area, Pepper said.

Mason Studies Patient Releases

Whether or not there exists a law which would permit District-owned Gallinger Hospital physicians to hold an accident victim for treatment for his welfare in the face of a desire to leave by the patient, and the need of such a law if none exists, will be determined today by Commissioner Guy Mason, he said last night.

Mason said he was prompted to act by the death at home Saturday of Harry "Pop" Halley, 67, of 2 S st. sw., who was an accident victim patient at Gallinger Hospital Thursday night but was allowed to go home, doctors said, after he insisted.

Meanwhile, a report from the hospital on the entire episode was to be placed in Mason's hands this afternoon. He said he will not form any conclusions until he has read the report.
